School board member won't seek new term

A second incumbent on the Dist. 21 School Board has decided not to seek reelection this year.

Rev. L. James Wylie said yesterday that he will not seek a second term on the board because of personal reasons.

His announcement comes at the same time that Dist. 21 General Caucus officials are indicating that there seems to be subdued interest in the school board elections this year.

With three positions to fill, and the possibility the caucus could endorse four candidates, only four or five nominees appeared for screening by the caucus last weekend.

RONALD COLE is the other board member who announced last week that he would not seek a third term. With Cole and Wylie out of contention, Ed Smith will be the only incumbent seeking reelection.

Rev. Wylie will be one of those seeking caucus support.

Time is running out for persons seeking caucus support, but the caucus will allow nominations from the floor at its delegates' meeting Wednesday. At that meeting, 27 delegates will vote for the candidates they want to endorse.

The meeting will be at the board room of the Dist. 21 administrative offices, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Each candidate must have a written statement at least 500 words long explaining why he or she wishes to serve on the board. Nominees will be questioned by delegates at Wednesday's meeting before the voting takes place.

Officials of the caucus said they are very disappointed so far with the turnout of prospective school board candidates.

SPEAKING YESTERDAY about his decision not to run, Wylie said personal reasons and the amount of time required to serve on the board were his major considerations. He said he feels the job of a board member should be a primary concern of those involved. "I just don't think I can make that commitment for another three years," he said.

He added, "I am proud and pleased with this school board. It is one of the best in the state, and I am happy I could have served on it."

A Prospect Heights resident, Wylie said he hopes he can continue working with the district and that his services will always be available.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said yesterday he was very disappointed to see Wylie leave the board. "He is going to be missed by the administration and board. In his three years he has been a real credit and had made a great input."

Persons other than incumbents and residents seeking support of the caucus may run independently in the board election by getting petitions from the Dist. 21 administrative office any weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Each petition must be signed by 50 registered voter residents of the district, and must be turned in to the Dist. 21 office between Feb. 20 and March 23. All three openings on the board will be for three-year terms.

Strong Street case ruling today

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert Downing is scheduled to rule this morning on the W. Strong Street zoning case.

The judge's ruling will determine if Wheeling village officials were reasonable in their decision last year to rezone 47 lots in the area for six-flat apartment buildings.

Strong Street residents brought suit to stop construction of the apartments, contending the project would have an adverse effect on single-family homes now in the area. The plaintiffs also said there were irregularities in the zoning hearings at the time.

Testimony in the trial began Jan. 23 and ran for more than a week. Both sides called witnesses to testify on their behalf, including land planners, real estate experts, engineers and village residents.

If the judge rules the rezoning was reasonable, developer Victor Smigel will be able to proceed with construction of the project. If the judge rules for the plaintiffs, work on the apartments will be stopped.

Just a peaceful afternoon stroll out on a limb — it's the getting down that's tough.

Stricker, Koeppen make plea at MSD meeting

Village tries to halt plant site sale

Two Wheeling officials appeared at a Metropolitan Sanitary District meeting yesterday to head off a proposed public sale of the defunct Wheeling Sewage Treatment Plant site on Nancy Lane.

The MSD agenda for the meeting included plans to declare the 2.3-acre site surplus, appraise the fair market value and notify Wheeling of the sale.

Notification of the village is necessary because the village has an agreement to use part of the property for a park, although it never has. The agreement includes a stipulation that the village be given six months notice before the agreement can be terminated.

The MSD had offered in October to lease the site to the Wheeling Park District if the park district would clear the site and fill in the tanks, but the park district turned down the offer. The park board said it would cost about $10,000 for the work.

ROGER STRICKER, assistant village manager, and Trustee John Koeppen attended the MSD meeting in the morning to see if the village could lease or buy the property before a public sale.

Stricker told the board the village could save the MSD some time and money because the property wouldn't have to be assessed and sold.

The MSD attorney added that he thought it was possible for the district to negotiate with the village without putting the property up for public sale. Under those circumstances, the board deferred most of the action it was scheduled to take, but did declare the land surplus and asked for an appraisal of the property.

The MSD originally purchased the sewage treatment plant from Wheeling for $232,041.24 in 1957, so the proposed resale would put the land back in the hands of the village. The agreement with the village for use of part of the land was negotiated in 1959, and has been in force since.

Secret school board meeting denied

The school board president and superintendent in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Wednesday night vehemently denied rumors that the board has been holding illegal, secret meetings.

The two men were answering a resident asking about secret meetings. She said she "had heard rumors of meetings on Saturday mornings." The board's meetings are regularly scheduled for Wednesday nights.

"We do not talk secretly behind closed doors because it is illegal, it isn't right," said Melvin Lacey, board president. Lacey said he has never even called board members on the telephone to discuss board business. He also stressed that when he first ran for the board, he made it clear he opposed secret meetings.

"In the five years I have been in the district, I have never been to a secret meeting," said Supt. Edward Grodsky.

STRICKER AND Koeppen said the primary reason the village is interested in the property is to keep it from being developed, since it is in the floodplain. "That property would be of no use to anyone but the village or the parks," Stricker said.

He added that the village could put a public works garage there, or a park could be planned without interfering with the flood plain. The land presently adjoins a lot lot.

An MSD engineer filed a report to the board stating that the MSD should not expend funds for removal of existing structures. In addition to removal of the buildings and tanks, the MSD would have to provide $7,772 worth of fencing if it maintained the property.

Since the park district turned down the land because of the cost to make it usable, Koeppen was asked if the village would spend the $10,000. "That's something we'll have to look into," he said.

Grodsky did point to one Saturday meeting, on Nov. 18, called for mediation of a contract dispute between the board and teachers. Negotiations is a legal subject for a closed meeting according to the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

"I HAVE HEARD rumors, I have not seen the secret meetings with my own eyes," said Jo Ellen Claves, 203 N. Parkway. "But if it is happening, I want to see it nipped in the bud."

MRS. CLAVES also told board members they were "wrong in holding a closed meeting" Jan. 24 to discuss drainage problems behind the Dist. 23 three-school campus site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. Those who attended the meeting were Grodsky, Jim Hendran, Dist. 23 business manager; John Stull, Dist. 23 board member; a High School Dist. 214 board member, business manager and superintendent; an employee of Arlington Heights, manager of a department store and two representatives of area sanitary districts.

The group decided that Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Sanitary District urge Dist. 214 to hire an engineer to develop a plan to control flooding in the area. Dist. 23 officials say that runoff from the Memco Discount Store in Arlington Heights is being channeled into a drainage ditch at Hersey High School, which in turn, drains onto the property behind MacArthur Jr. High School. Dist. 23 has an exclusive contract with Dist. 214 allowing water from Hersey to drain on Dist. 23 land.

According to an attorney for the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI), the meeting was not illegal. "It would have been if a board was sitting as an entire group or if a sub-group appointed by the board to fact-find had been involved," he said.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds.

A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squelches "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

British army troops fought a two-hour battle with gunmen in a village across the border — in the Irish republic — yesterday, while other troops fought back rioters throughout Belfast.

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Malaysia Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak have concluded talks on Southeast Asia policy.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

The war

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong are hoping to meet a Monday deadline for release of the first POWs. Secretary of State William Rogers said the first POWs would come out "in the next few days." In Washington, it was reported the cease-fire agreement appears to be holding up reasonably well.

Clergymen study ways of dealing with crises

by BARRY SIGALE

If they just discovered you were about to die would you want your loved ones — or anyone else, for that matter — to tell you of your impending death?

If a relative of yours was seeing his last days, but didn't know it, would you want or be able to inform him of this fact? Or would you let him ride out his last days without having the great burden of knowing his fate and the mental anguish that accompanies it?

That is one of the most difficult problems for most clergymen to cope with as revealed at the 10th annual Clergymen's Institute all-day seminar yesterday at Forest Hospital in Des Plaines.

Everything from how to help persons face death to helping solve personal and family problems were discussed at the seminar, entitled, "Crises: What To Do?"

Though many topics were discussed and common problems shared, the participants mainly returned to the subject of death and its broad impact.

To put the problem in sharp focus, several psychodrama vignettes were performed by some of the hospital's social therapists. This also involved several clergymen who acted out real life situations they have been involved in to help them evaluate and better understand how to approach solving these problems. From several vantage points, it gave the audience a chance to observe the problem as it happened.

THE EXAMPLE of death used was that of a woman, in her 50s, whose mother was dying of cancer. The mother, about 75, was not told of her impending death but was led to believe the family would vacation in Florida once again this year as if she were not terminally ill.

The daughter told her clergyman that her mother did not have long to live but requested she not be told. Despite his feelings that the best thing to do would have been to tell the mother, the clergyman agreed not to say anything.

In the dramatization, the clergyman assumed his own identity, then switched roles with a volunteer to take the part of the doctor, who advised against informing the patient. While they argued in what the audience was to picture was the doctor's office, the mother, played by another volunteer, was shown lying in bed with her daughter by her side.

The dramatization raised many questions which were raised at workshop sessions as the 150 persons in attendance broke up into discussion groups.

Is it better not to tell the mother, letting her die in peace? Would the woman have wanted to know she was going to die and to know she was not alone in her suffering? Should she be allowed to continue to believe that all she had was rheumatism? Is it up to the family to decide? Does the doctor or clergyman have anything to say in the matter?

Many answers were suggested Among them were: Ultimately the family must make the decision and others involved must respect their wishes. When dealing with the death of the mother the family should be brought together as they would for a wedding or vacation. The mother would want to know because she would be comforted to know others were sharing in her problem. The family should cry and share with each other and show their love for each other instead of staying apart.

THE CLERGYMAN involved in the above example said that despite the daughter's plea not to tell her mother it was apparent the mother knew anyway. She had been getting massive doses of drugs, she was deteriorating rapidly and the clergyman had been praying with her daily, as had been requested by the daughter. Indeed, some of the prayers spoke to the issue of "love that will not let go," he said.

Another example of dealing with death was the three tragedies involving the collision of two Illinois Central R.R. trains on Chicago's south side, the airplane which crashed into several homes near Midway Airport and the collision of two airplanes at O'Hare Airport.

A clergyman at the scene of the IC disaster pointed out the emotionalism involved in death.

"I was on the train all morning," he said. "The only job to do there was to comfort the dying, to assure them they were dying in grace. I spent the entire morning administering the last rites. People from the train rushed up to me and kissed my hand and asked for a blessing."

Race track stock bribery trial

'Decision is my life,' Kerner tells jury

U.S. Appeals Court Judge Gov. Otto Kerner yesterday told jurors that their decision on race track bribery charges brought against him will be "so very important to me" because "it's my life."

The former Illinois Governor said he was following in his father's footsteps "and proud of it" when he was appointed to the federal bench and that whether he remains a judge is up to the seven women and five men on the jury.

Paul Connolly, Kerner's chief defense counsel, asked what the tenure is of a federal judge.

"LIFE TENURE with good behavior," Kerner replied. "That's why this suit, this action, is so very important to me. It's my life."

Kerner spent about 1 1/2 hours on the witness stand tracing his personal history, from the period when as a child he rang doorbells on behalf of his father's candidacy for a circuit judgeship to his own election as governor in 1960.

He proudly related how he turned a $13 million state deficit into an $80 million surplus during the first of his two terms as governor.

"And you don't do that by going to races and talking about race tracks," he said.

Kerner denied that a $45,000 campaign contribution from Marjorie Lindheimer Everett, the former "queen" of Illinois racing, influenced him to sign a 1961 bill that allowed her to consolidate her racing interests as a Delaware corporation.

KEENER ALSO denied that campaign funds raised by William S. Miller influenced him to appoint Miller as chairman of the Illinois Racing Board.

Miller, indicted with Kerner, testified earlier for the government in return for immunity from prosecution.

Kerner, a former National Guard and World War II Army Officer, sat erect in the witness chair responding without apparent emotion to the questions of his attorney.

The ex-governor was scheduled to resume his testimony Friday and perhaps go deeper into the series of incidents which led to his indictment in December, 1971.

The testimony of Kerner, one of the highest judicial officers ever indicted, is expected to highlight the defense case in a federal court jury trial under way for the last month.

KEENER AND HIS codefendant, former State Revenue Director Theodore J. Isaacs, admittedly profited by about $300,000 on race track stock deals. But they contend the profits were a result of "good investments," not bribery as the government alleges.

Bids required for purchase of class rings

High school juniors buying their class rings may not see the difference, but more officials may be involved in the purchase of those rings soon.

And school board members in High School Dist. 211 and 214 are likely to find themselves officially contracting for class rings because of a decision handed down this week by attorneys for the state school superintendent's office.

In a legal opinion, the attorneys said school districts must follow "standard business procedures" in contracting for class rings for sale to students.

The required business procedures include formal bidding by competing companies and the public awarding of contracts by the school board.

Neither High School Dist. 214 nor 211 now follows that procedure in buying class rings.

IN DIST. 211, according to Associate Supt. Bruce Altergott, bids are submitted to individual schools by jewelry companies and committees of students choose the ring they prefer. The junior class advisor then signs the contract for the rings, he said.

"I'm sure when we get official notification of the opinion we will comply," Altergott said. "This whole thing is a service we provide for students."

High School Dist. 214 has three different procedures for class jewelry. Administrative Assistant William Warner said only one of the procedures would seem to be affected by the legal opinion, he said.

Some schools in Dist. 214 contract directly with companies to provide class rings, he said, but others either have the booster club contract for rings or simply take no part in ring selection handled through local jewelry stores.

Schools using the last alternative, he said, "don't make the rings available through the schools at all."

A representative of one firm that sells class rings in Dist. 214 said the price range for them is $30-$40 each.

Herald executives at Inland parley

Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor and publisher, and Carl K. Schmidt, director of sales and marketing, will represent Packlock Publications at the winter meeting of Inland Daily Press Association.

The three-day convention begins Sunday at the Fairmont Roosevelt Hotel, New Orleans.

Hayes is a member of Inland's research and promotion committee and scheduled to address members Monday morning on how newspapers can prepare for and accommodate marketing and advertising needs of regional shopping centers. He also will serve on an advertising workshop discussion panel Monday afternoon.

Inland is the nation's oldest and largest regional daily newspaper association with a membership of more than 500 newspapers in 25 states and three provinces of Canada.

She's the 'Kimbies baby'

'I'm a dad—have a diaper'

by NANCY COWGER

Army Sgt. Herman Roth of Hoffman Estates keeps a box of disposable diapers on his desk in recruiting offices at Ft. Sheridan.

The diapers, in handy view and reach, are not for green recruits still wet behind the ears. Roth simply wants to be like the rest of the proud papas he knows, and display his baby's picture where he can see it every day at work.

And Roth's baby's face is on that diaper box.

Sharon Roth, aged 2½ years, is the "Kimbies baby," a brown-haired child with a sweet smile and a security blanket—the same blanket she sat on as she modeled for the diaper package.

Mr. and Mrs. Roth moved into their home at 596 Chippendale Place when Sharon was three months old. The family settled into the community quickly, with Sharon's older brothers, Maurice, then 9 and Sol, then 8, enrolled in MacArthur School.

MRS. ROTH ALSO settled herself into local organizations, starting out with La Leche League. It was through that particular group that Sharon's one-shot modeling career began.

Container Corp. called league officials and asked for potential models; saying they would make a donation to the league treasury for each baby that came to their Glen Ellyn office for a "screen test" of sample pictures. Mrs. Roth and another member went.

When they arrived, Mrs. Roth and her friend were mildly disconcerted—no one would tell them what product was involved, and the two-room Container Corp. offices somehow had a temporary look. But they were out on a lark, and to help raise funds for the league. Mrs. Roth had no idea Sharon would be chosen. She had number 13, and much as she loves Sharon, she really didn't think of her baby as a model.

"I have seen some awfully beautiful children. I have a lovely little girl—just like everybody else," she said.

THE FOLLOWING DAY, Container Corp. called and asked if the firm could send a representative to the Roth home to take more pictures. Sharon was being considered as their choice, they said, still not identifying the product. Mrs. Roth agreed, and an appointment was made for later that week.

As she thought of the impending photography session, Mrs. Roth felt even more anxious, knowing little about who was coming to her home and why. She called the firm and verified the name of the photographer, and decided to go ahead. Mr. and Mrs. Roth now are glad they did.

Sharon was posed in the Roth's living room. The family had lived there such a short time, they had not fully furnished the house, and the living room was empty except for the card table on which Sharon sat. Mrs. Roth is glad school was closed that afternoon, and her two sons were home.

"Nobody, from that day to this, can evoke the smiles from her that her two brothers can," she said.

ALL THIS TOOK place in February, 1971. While Kimbies, made by Kimberly Clark Corp., were test marketed in other parts of the country, they were not available in the Chicago area until last fall, and Mr. and Mrs. Roth were not able to see their daughter on the diaper box until last summer.

Mrs. Roth's sister, wife of Dr. Morton Friedman of Palatine was in the Black Hills this summer with her family on vacation, and came upon Sharon's Kimbies in a grocery store. They came back with armloads of diapers, said Mrs. Roth. And when Kimbies appeared in Chicago area markets, relatives on both sides of the family purchased abundant supplies, even though Sharon is the only child in the family of an age to use them. Sharon is on the package of daytime diapers for babies weighing 12 pounds or more. She may also be on the package of overnight diapers—her parents are not sure, because that baby's face not show.

While Sharon's picture has attained a measure of household word status, it has not been associated with her as a baby. She just doesn't look like a seven-month-old baby anymore.

Sharon's father has enjoyed the recognition of his baby girl, even though the public has not connected her with the diaper box. On his request, Container Corp. sent him enough unused panels for diaper boxes to wallpaper Sharon's room—but Mrs. Roth put her foot down at that point.

BIG BROTHERS can build towers of blocks, and help speed the long afternoon until a girl's daddy comes home and dinner is ready. Maurice, left, and Sol are Sharon's favorite people, the ones she smiles for most. Sharon and her brothers are children of Sgt. and Mrs. Herman Roth of Hoffman Estates.

Non-incumbent files for school board position

Buffalo Grove resident Jack Landau is the first nonincumbent to publicly announce his candidacy for the Dist. 96 school board.

Two incumbents have already said they will seek reelection, while two have said they will give up their board seats.

Landau lives at 920 Dorncliff Ln. and is personnel manager for Johnson & Johnson Co. in Chicago. He is a graduate of New York University and has a degree in secondary education.

The 43-year-old Landau is a member of the Dist. 96 Education Committee and the citizens Advisory Committee that is investigating what to do with Kildeer Countryside School.

He is vice-president of the Buffalo Grove Alliance and is a liaison for that group to Dist. 96. Landau is married and has five children, three of whom are in Dist. 96 schools.

The candidate said he has no statements concerning any issues he may feel are important in the coming election, but he may have comments in the future.

Dist. 96 will have four three-year board openings in the April election. Officials said yesterday that several other residents have received petitions to run in the election, but have not returned them.

EVERYTIME MRS. Herman Roth changes her baby's diaper, she sees her daughter Sharon at two ages—the current one and at 7 months, Sharon's age when her picture was taken for the Kimbies disposable diaper package.

Hall closed Monday for Lincoln Birthday

The Buffalo Grove Village Hall will be closed Monday in observance of Abraham Lincoln's Birthday.

The scheduled village board meeting has been moved from Monday to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Village Clerk Verna Clayton said the village hall will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday to allow residents to purchase vehicle stickers. Tickets will be issued to anyone not displaying the 1973 sticker beginning Friday.

Bicycle, animal ordinances amended

The Wheeling Village Board this week approved amendments to two village ordinances, one on the bicycle registration program, the other on licensing of cats and dogs.

The village bicycle registration ordinance now requires that bicycle owners register their bikes only once. Previously, bicycles had to be registered every year.

Bicycles now need to be re-registered only when they are sold.

The new amendment to the village animal ordinance requires owners of stray animals to buy a village animal license before they can pay the fine for owning a stray. This amendment is designed to reduce the number of animals who are repeatedly found roaming the village. By making sure these strays are licensed, it will now be easier to identify their owners.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board reappointed Mary Jane Kopacek to the village youth commission and accepted the resignation of Frank Sacco from the industrial commission.

In his letter of resignation, Sacco said the village board had been repeatedly asked for guidance and cooperation. "The industrial commission to date has been given no satisfaction," he said. "It is my opinion that my experience might best be rendered in other meaningful areas."

THE TRUSTEES approved payment of three bills. One was for a pickup truck, the second for a mechanics' cargo van and the third for three cars for the village fleet. The board also approved final payment for a water main connection at Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue.

Zoning for an apartment building for elderly residents proposed for 39 S. Milwaukee Ave. was approved. Two petitions for annexation for property at 628 McHenry Rd. and directly south of 745 McHenry Rd. were directed to the village attorney.

The zoning board was directed to hold public hearings on a zoning request for the property south of 745 McHenry Rd. Petitioners are requesting the present R-1 zoning be changed to B-2.

After the regular business, the board went into executive session to discuss personnel.

Speedskating Sunday - again

With luck and continued cold weather, the Prospect area Jaycees will hold their first annual speedskating tournament Sunday.

John Stull of the Jaycees said yesterday ice is being made for the tournament to be held at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street in Prospect Heights. The tournament, which had to be canceled last year because of warm weather, had to be postponed last Sunday for the same reason.

The tournament will consist of 20 races for boys and girls up to 15 years old. Winners will receive trophies and go on to compete in a Jaycee regional contest with a chance for state competition. All participants will receive patches.

The tournament is scheduled for 1 to 4 p.m. Jaycees expect 200 to 300 youngsters to compete.

Teachers, school board to meet on ground rules

Teacher and school board bargaining teams in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will meet Feb. 15 to exchange ground rules proposals, the first step towards 1973-74 contract negotiations.

The two teams will meet again on Feb. 22 to decide on the ground rules, including whether or not bargaining will be open to the public. Dist. 23 negotiations were open for the first time last year.

The first two meetings will both be open to the public, according to Henry Vallely, attorney for the district. The Feb. 15 meeting will be held sometime during the school day "since all we have to do is hand over proposals," according to Supt. Edward Grodzky. The Feb. 22 meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the district administrative offices, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

CHAIRMEN FOR the two teams both said their teams had made a decision on the open-bargaining question, but would not reveal their recommendations until the Feb. 15 meeting. Dist. 21, the only other Northwest suburban school district to hold open bargaining last year, decided to close its 1973-74 contract meetings.

Unlike last year, Larry Halter of the Illinois Education Association, will not negotiate for the Prospect Heights Education Association this year. Dave Kessler, chairman of the teacher's team, said "it was a joint decision between Larry and us to have us do our own negotiating this year. We thought we should start doing our own."

Last year, the two sides agreed to seek mediation because they could not reach agreement after 13 sessions. After four hours of mediation, the teams agreed to a contract including a 2.6 per cent cost of living raise for all returning teachers and $21,825 in merit pay funds.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

In its first four weeks of operation, interrupted by the funeral of former President Lyndon B. Johnson and the inauguration of President Nixon, the 93rd Congress passed little legislation.

The only law passed in the Senate was the Omnibus Rivers and Harbors and Flood Control Act. The Senate devoted considerable time to confirmation of new appointments by President Nixon, including those of the secretary of defense and the secretary of labor.

The House likewise took little legislative action, devoting a good part of its time to organization and rules.

Following is a summary of the activities of Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson, and Northwest suburban congressmen, Phillip M. Crane, R-12th and Samuel H. Young, R-10th, through Feb. 2.

QUORUM CALLS

Senate, none.
House, four, with Young present at three, Crane present at two.

MEASURES SPONSORED

Crane, a bill to amend the Controlled Substances Act to increase penalties for persons illegally distributing narcotics.

Crane, a bill to increase penalties for convictions of committing felonies while unlawfully carrying a firearm.

Crane, a bill to repeal certain restrictions on the private carriage of letters.

Crane, a bill to permit certain income tax deductions for expenses in connection with education or vocational training.

Crane, a bill to permit American citizens to hold gold.

Percy, a joint resolution to authorize the President to designate the period from Mar. 4 to Mar. 10, 1973, as "National Nutrition Week."

Percy, two bills to expand and improve the direct food distribution program, and to provide a comprehensive child nutrition program.

Percy (co-sponsored by Stevenson), a bill to establish an Institute for Continuing Studies of Juvenile Justice.

Stevenson, a bill to provide hospital and medical care to certain members of the armed forces of nations allied or associated with the U.S. in World War I or World War II.

Stevenson, a bill to amend the Gun Control Act of 1968 to require federal registration of working handguns and licensing of their owners.

Stevenson, a bill to amend the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970 to provide for availability of certain proposed agency rules and orders.

MEASURES CO-SPONSORED

Crane, in the House and Stevenson in the Senate, a bill to extend to unmarried individuals full benefits of income splitting now enjoyed by married individuals filing joint returns and to remove rate inequities for married persons when both are employed.

Crane, the Antihijacking Act of 1973.

Stevenson, a bill to establish a nationwide system of adequate and uniform motor vehicle accident reparation acts and to require no-fault motor vehicle insurance as a condition for using motor vehicles in interstate commerce.

Percy and Stevenson, a bill to amend the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to authorize certain grants to assure adequate commuter service in urban areas.

Percy, a bill to permit donations of surplus property to public museums.

Stevenson, a joint resolution designating Jan. 15 of each year as "Martin Luther King Day."

Percy, a bill to provide increased job training for people with limited English-speaking ability through manpower training and teacher training.

Stevenson, a bill to establish a Department of Health.

Percy and Stevenson, a bill to make rules governing the use of the Armed Forces in the absence of a declaration of war by Congress.

Stevenson, a bill to require the public disclosure of certain information relating to U.S. military activities in Southeast Asia.

Percy and Stevenson, a bill to designate certain lands in the Isle Royale National Park in Michigan as wilderness.

Would you believe IRS doesn't like cash?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — If forced to, the Internal Revenue Service will take cash — but it sure doesn't like it.

Jerry Lee, 32, a Sacramento contractor, found that out when he pulled a wad of $20 bills out of his coat pockets and tried to pay $13,000 in back taxes. Federal employees first tried to count it, then gave up and told Lee to come back with a check.

"They told me they wanted a cashier's check or a money order," fumed Lee. "It says right on the money, 'This note is legal tender for all debts, public and private.'"

He returned a second time, accompanied by a newsman and photographer. This time IRS revenue officer Kenneth Longanecker agreed to take the $20 bills.

"Sure, we take cash, but it's unusual. I encouraged him to get a cashier's check," said Longanecker, adding that big cash taxpayers usually use $50 or $100 bills.

Boom or bust for housing market?

Get set for another good year in the housing market, say savings and loan association representatives, the backbone of new and existing residential financing.

Brace yourselves for a sharp decline in new housing construction, say the leaders in the Chicago area home construction industry.

What's a potential home buyer or purchaser of a new multi-family unit to do? Waiting to go ahead with buying plans could mean a scramble for a short supply later on of money and housing at higher prices.

Better hustle out right now to get a mortgage if you're in the market for a new home, advises Warren Pursell of Mount Prospect, executive director of the Cook County Council of Insured Savings Associations. "Looking at the Northwest Suburban area, I think you're going to find an adequate supply of financing for the year ahead," he said Thursday. "However, the cost of money in the money market is going up daily, and we've had some cases in the last few weeks where commercial banks are raising their prime rates above the 6 per cent level."

The prime rate, generally charged by a bank to its most credit-worthy customers, often paces the change in other interest rates.

EVEN THOUGH the Chicago area can claim the lowest average mortgage rates in the country, generally in the 7 to 8 per cent range, "we can't count on it being stable forever," says Pursell. Some money shortages may be coming up in the next six months, he predicted. Pursell sees the abundance of savings and the heavy repayment rate on loans at Northwest Suburban associations as good indicators of a continuing local mortgage supply.

Other plus factors for the Northwest Suburban include confidence in the value of new and existing homes and the expanding demand for both single family and multi-family housing, said Pursell. He sees home builder doubts for the housing market as more accurate in areas dependent on government subsidized funds. He added that new housing accounts for only one-fifth of the residential sales market.

One common bond between local and national housing market, both for-sale and rental, is the likelihood of rising costs. Pursell said new labor contracts to be worked out late this spring, the cost of lumber and the rate of inflation could significantly hike the cost of housing in 1973.

Echoing this belief that housing costs will rise, home builder representatives in the Chicago area are predicting a come-down from the boom year sales year in 1972. Lynn Krause, president of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago, sees a 10 per cent cut in apartment construction and a 20 per cent drop in single-family construction for the coming year.

CONSUMERISM and municipal financing through home builders are hampering the industry, he said at a recent Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry meeting. Rising taxes, the tightening of mortgage money, possible energy shortages, and the possibility of labor strikes this year are other troublesome problems cited at the housing session.

Even the experts can't agree on the pace the housing industry should or will take in the coming year, but all agree last year's astounding record will be hard to match. As explained by the Committee on Trends and Economic Policies of the U.S. Savings and Loan League, a good housing year in 1973 could look puny in comparison with the average 2.35

Bell Federal Savings and Loan Association, Chicago, reports in its latest Survey of Building publication for the six-county Chicago metropolitan area that permits for residential construction in 1972 topped all other years in the post-war period except 1968 and 1971. Roland Barstow, president, said, "All housing, including single family and apartment permits, rose to 57,483 at year end, third only to record-breaking 62,961 units reported in 1971."

Both single-family and apartment construction dipped below the previous year. Barstow adds that apartment construction accounts for 58 per cent of new housing starts, but its lead over single family units is declining. The availability of credit and interest rates will determine whether this trend continues, he said.

BARSTOW FORESEES the recent cutbacks in the inflation rate as a good indicator that housing will continue a strong industry in 1973. The effect of housing in stimulating the purchase of other goods is great, he added.

Bell reports showed Schaumburg as the leader for the metropolitan area in the number of single-family and apartment permits issued last year. The total number of single-family permits reached 1,470 and apartment permits totaled 1,309 in Schaumburg.

Al Bercher, vice president and general manager of Schaumburg-based Lancer Corp., predicts the community will be able to absorb a large number of single-family and multi-family units this year. He expects to top last year's home sales in 1973.

Reshevsky to seek U.S. championship

In Chicago this month, 61-year-old Sammy Reshevsky will be contesting the U.S. Championship and the right to play in the world championship sequence with two other finalists, Robert Byrne and Lubomir Kavalek, who average a quarter of a century younger.

Reshevsky is the same man who 53 years ago astonished the world with his precocious talent. As an 8-year-old "prodigy" in 1920, he gave a series of exhibitions throughout Europe and the United States.

Never able to fully devote himself to chess, Reshevsky has more than held his own with the greatest players of this century. A perennial winner of the U.S. Championship until Fischer made his historic appearance in 1958, he was Botvinnik's most dangerous opponent in the world championship tournament of 1948. In 1955 he outscored Botvinnik 2½-1½ in their individual games during the U.S.-U.S.S.R. team match.

Here is a position achieved by the 8-year-old Reshevsky in a simultaneous exhibition in Hanover, Germany in 1920. His opponent has just played P-KB3.

What is white to do? Must he trade or retreat his knight? Answer: Reshevsky played NxBP! After . . . N-N2, 2) P-KB3, P-KB1.

DIAGRAM 2

(If N-K2, P-KB1 regains the piece); 3) BxP (see diagram two). The latent power of white's bishop has come to light. It is threatening black's pinned knight on the one hand, and eyeing menacingly black's weakened white square on the kingside on the other hand.

Black played 3) . . . B-N2. No white can win at least a piece. How? Answer: Q-B2!

The queen teams up with the bishop to threaten both kingside and queenside. Black played R-QB1??, and 8-year-old Sammy mated his opponent with Q-N6 check, K-B1, Q-B7 checkmate.

The most outstanding tribute to Reshevsky's greatness is the words of his nemesis, Bobby Fischer, written in 1964:

"For a period of 10 years — between 1946 and 1956 — Reshevsky was probably the best chess player in the world. I feel sure that had he played a match with Botvinnik during that time, he would have won and been world champion."

How the chessmen move

THE ROOK (occasionally called the castle) moves and captures horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE BISHOP moves and captures diagonally.

THE QUEEN, the most powerful piece on the board, moves and captures diagonally, and horizontally and vertically, along the ranks and files.

THE KNIGHT moves and captures in the form of a capital L — two spaces in either a horizontal or vertical direction and one space to the right or left. It is the only piece permitted to jump over other men.

THE PAWN moves only forward one space, with the exception of its first move when it has the option of moving two spaces forward. It captures one square diagonally forward.

THE KING moves and captures one square at a time in any direction.

You can have a lot of fun with today's hand. Look it over and decide if South can make four hearts after West leads ace, king and a third spade and East ruffs.

South overruffs and runs off four rounds of trumps, taking care to pick up West's jack by finessing.

He discards a diamond on the last trump and East has to make a fourth discard. The first three were clubs and the fourth must also be a club because East must keep diamonds stopped.

At this point South leads a club from dummy, East can rise with his ace or duck, but either way, South is going to make two club tricks and his contract.

Therefore, South can make his contract if he adopts this line of play. Reasonably simple. Or is it?

Suppose East's fourth and last club discard is the ace? How can South ever score a second club trick?

The answer is, he can't. Even though South runs off three diamonds before playing clubs, West will get in with the queen and score the setting trick with a spade.

Would this whole play come off at the table? Possibly, but not at all probable. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Anonymity's welcome here

A breath of fresh air wafted from the State Capitol last week when Gov. Daniel Walker issued orders to keep his name off official documents issued daily by the hundreds of governmental offices throughout the state.

The order was one of a series of actions by the governor relinquishing personal prerogatives of his office which have become so enshrined by tradition that people long ago quit protesting them.

In addition to informing state officials that he does not desire to have his name promoted on every piece of paper produced by the state, he has also made it known that he does not wish to have his picture hanging in every office of government, a practice every other governor in memory has enjoyed.

Equally refreshing is Walker's order to omit his name and portrait from all the highway signs welcoming visitors to Illinois at state boundaries.

These orders followed his instructions to divest the governor's office of several shiny luxury limousines and to put a couple more in storage, to be used only for ceremonial occasions.

While none of these are monumental reforms, we find them meaningful symbols of the attitude which Dan Walker brings to his position as the top elected official in the state.

As he pointed out, printing of the governor's name on such documents as hunting and fishing licenses serves no purpose but to promote the governor personally. There is no reason why stationery from state offices should bear his name or that of any other elected or appointed officials in big bold letters, except to ingrain the name in the mind of the public.

On state occasions, the dignity of his office surely entitled the governor to a shiny black limousine. But as Walker has demonstrated, the governor needs no such ceremonial carriage to get him from one place to the other in the course of his daily duties.

His pointed directive to state functionaries that "governmental forms and reports should not be utilized to give personal publicity" should serve as adequate notice to lesser officials.

Whether in response to Walker's example or not, Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett recently ordered that the traditional color portraits of state officials be deleted from the new edition of the Rules of the Road.

We suspect that the actions of Walker and Howlett are such that other political officeholders will find it difficult not to emulate them. And, hopefully, future officeholders will find it embarrassing to try to revive these self-serving practices.

And for our part, when we pick up a state document without being treated to a smiling portrait, in glorious color, and the flourished signature of some state official, we will think kindly of Dan Walker.

Motorcyclist 'image'

Gone is the stereotyped image of the motorcyclist as a "hippie," "greaser" or lawless member of a gang—at least in the eyes of juries deciding accident cases.

With the increased popularity of the bikes, it appears that previous jury prejudice has declined and a motorcyclist is more likely to win a favorable verdict, reports Jury Verdict Research, Inc., based in Cleveland, Ohio.

In a recent study of trends in jury verdicts in liability situations involving motorcycles, the motorcyclist driver or passenger was found to have a 58 per cent chance of winning his case.

Not only are motorcyclists winning more often, but they are receiving higher awards as plaintiffs, says the study group.

Timely quotes

I know it gags some of you to write this phrase, but it is true, and most Americans realize it is true.

This is a lawyer's dream. It's like peeling an onion. For each skin of onion you need a new lawyer.

—Securities and Exchange Commission attorney, on the Penn Central Railroad bankruptcy case.

Every time the federal government wants to make people think they're cutting down on spending, they freeze the federal highway money. That's really false because that money comes out of the Highway Trust Fund, not the general appropriations of the government.

Senior plan praised

We the senior citizens are happy to hear some good news coming out from the Mount Prospect Village Hall. Up to now the officials of this monastic-like establishment have done a lot of talking about doing this or that for our elderly. But so far, I am sorry to say, nothing much tangible has materialized. Perhaps because, as the poet Dryden once said, "They think too little who talk too much."

Now, there really is good news for us seniors, and it comes from the least expected corner, the department of health. Mrs. Marjorie Boswell, village health official who is serving as a sanitarian, health inspector and health director, recently announced that she is initiating a program aiming to provide hot meals daily to the senior citizens at reduced prices through the cooperation of the local restaurants. Most of the restaurants are expected to support this worthy program. As of this writing, Matt Mores, the owner of the Starlite Coffee Cup, 10 N. Main, is already serving meals to the senior citizens at a discount of 25 per cent, between 2 and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

As I envision it, this program has many fine possibilities. I consider it as a breakthrough to good things to come to both the senior citizens and the participating restaurants. I base my assumption on the grounds that the younger folks in our village are sincerely concerned about the welfare of the elderly in the like manner as most sons and daughters are eagerly helping their mom and pop who may be living with them. I predict the increased business for the participating restaurants, for their good-will toward the elderly will reflect favorably upon the community and, consequently, attract younger folks to patronize their places.

There is a possibility that Mrs. Boswell's program, if successful, may attract other businesses and services to join, what I shall call "Let's Help The Elderly" movement. Foremost in my mind are: barbershops, beauty salons, taxicab companies, drugstores, doctors, just to mention a few. In my opinion everyone of them can offer a substantial reduction in the cost of services and feel happy of doing their share.

The success of this program will depend upon the cooperation of the parties involved. There will be expressions of gratitude for what Mrs. Boswell is trying to do, and there will be expressions of criticism and disdain to swallow. For every beginning is difficult. The simple virtues of willingness to work together, readiness to help and courtesy to support will carry it further. Like Marie Dressler stated: "Never one thing and seldom one person can make for success. It takes a number of them merging into one perfect whole."

Reader blasts abortions

An 18-month-old toddler isn't a completely developed person until after puberty, just as a 3-month fetus isn't a completely developed baby until nine months. From conception, individual beings are, at all stages of development, just that, individual human beings with the right to life.

No one has the right to determine that a fetus shouldn't develop into a baby anymore than a toddler into an adult.

Wouldn't we be appalled to find a mother had disposed of her 18-month-old because of emotional, financial or health reasons and wished not to be burdened

Religion letters bother reader

I was saddened to read the recent letter headlined "What Faith Are Two Governors?" In a time of our nation's history when enlightenment is trying to break through and when bigotry and narrow-mindedness are slowly but surely being relegated to the ultimate oblivion they deserve, I am distressed to find even one citizen who feels that a public official's religion is "... such an important matter..."

I hope that writer was speaking for himself and not for others. For that matter, I hope that he, too, will see the light.

Sexism 'tone' hit

I commend in content but condemn in tone the Herald's editorial "Grade School Sexism?" on February 2.

The truth of the fact of anti-female sexism in text books and cultural expectations of girls and women is obvious to the concerned, sensitive person. Also the fact that boys are reprimanded nine times as frequently as girls is a point well made and is discriminatory sexual repression.

However, I object to the tone of the editorial and language like "Lib types" and the last paragraph, "Perhaps they will admit, though, that at times it can be pretty tough practicing to be a male chauvinist." Whether you were serious or reaching for humor, these are symptoms of blatant sexism. And sexism—either against females or males—is, of course, the attitude which propagates the conditions you speak against in the editorial.

The tone of this editorial is certainly inconsistent with the sensitivity and social responsiveness one usually finds in the Herald.

County budget cut? Yes . . . and no

by ROGER CAPOTTINI
Metropolitan Editor

The Cook County budget was made public late Monday morning without fanfare.

The county board had been meeting since 10 a.m., without mentioning the budget for fiscal 1973—which started Dec. 1.

It was well past 11 a.m., and the group had just finished its regular business when County Board Pres. George Dunne started reading, "Ladies and Gentlemen, transmitting herewith the 1973 Executive Budget."

Dunne continued through the four pages of his budget statement without interruption as the commissioners flipped through the massive blue document before them.

He talked about lowered property and non-property taxes; revenue sharing; increases and decreases in personnel; budget format; and other aspects of the new budget.

And George Dunne said the 1973 corporate budget was decreased by $1,704,239 from last year.

The Chicago Tribune, the next day, said, "The corporate fund appropriations proposed total $123.6 million for the new fiscal year, or $1.7 million less than was appropriated for fiscal 1972."

The Chicago Sun-Times called the new budget, "... a decrease of $1,704,239 from last year. . ."

The Chicago Daily News said about the same thing. And so did Chicago Today.

Did all the Chicago newspapers say that because it is true, or because that's what they were told? Is it true?

Well, technically it's true enough. Last year the total corporate budget was $127,323,911. This year it's $125,619,672. A decrease of $1,704,239.

As a matter of fact, the Herald also called it a budget decrease of $1.7 million. But we went a little further into that analysis.

The truth about the county budget is that while, technically, it's smaller than last year, it's also true that it's larger than last year—and the taxpayers should not go through the year with the misconception the various county departments are spending less money.

The reason the total budget went down $1.7 million is that there are no countywide elections in 1973. And right there the county—and the taxpayers—saved almost $6.7 million.

Because there are no elections, the Election Division of the County Clerk's Office is spending $3.3 million less than it did last year. For the same reason the Board of Election Commissioners is spending almost $3.4 million less.

If this were an election year, then, the budget would include that $6.7 million.

If every county department had the same budget total it did last year—and there were no elections—the budget would be $6.7 million less than last year.

Excluding the costs of elections, the county budget was not decreased by $1.7 million—it was increased by almost $5 million.

All of this is not to say there's anything crooked or shady going on. The $5 million is all there—all accounted for. It's not only there, but it seems to be money well spent. The money saved by the absence of elections went toward:

- Sheriff, Court Service Division — $462,000.
- Sheriff, Police Department — $813,000.
- Sheriff, Department of Corrections — $418,000.
- State's Attorney — $1,321,000.
- Public Defender — $333,000.
- Adult Probation — $422,000.
- Juvenile Court — $255,000.
- New Audy Home — $725,000.

That all adds up to slightly more than $5 million—just about the same amount of the actual budget increase, excluding the election costs.

Technically, the budget went down. At the same time the amount of revenue to be raised through real property taxes went down almost $9 million. The corporate tax rate for property also went down by almost four and a half cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

But, don't forget—four cents of that was for election costs.

George Dunne kept his promise to the taxpayers of Cook County. He not only held the line on property taxes, he lowered it. And he lowered the corporate budget at the same time.

Just remember, though, when next year's budget comes up, it'll be for a year during which there will be a countywide election.

And then that $6.7 million, or more, will go right back in. And the four cents per $100 of the tax rate will go back on.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Employment conditions in the engineering world have improved in recent months. There even are some shortages.

Nevertheless, at least 10,000 qualified graduates engineers, many of whom a few years ago had responsible jobs and were earning upwards of $25,000 per year, still are jobless and their chances of finding an engineering job poor. Men with masters' degrees in engineering are driving cabs and clerking in stores.

Many are bitter. Their hopes of comfortable living and giving their children good educations have disappeared.

THERE'S A DEBATE inside the profession on how serious the situation is. All factions agree on one point: somehow, they must end the roller coaster of recurring shortages and surpluses of engineers.

There also is general agreement that engineers should not go so far as the medical profession has "in creating a shortage of doctors" by discouraging the opening of new medical schools.

"We simply can't afford that as a nation," said a spokesman for the Engineers Joint Council, which represents engineering societies. "With the Soviet Union reported to be training 200,000 engineers yearly and Japan 80,000, we need at least 40,000 to 45,000 engineers yearly."

Forty-three thousand engineers were graduated in 1972, but enrollment has been dropping steadily. The number of graduates could drop as low as 23,500 by 1975 if things continue.

RECENTLY, Joel P. Snyder, chairman of the Long Island Section of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers IEEE, accused the Engineers Joint Council EJC and the engineering schools of being responsible for heavy unemployment in the profession.

Snyder charged the EJC and the schools with conducting publicity campaigns about supposed shortages of engineers right after cutbacks in the aerospace and defense industries resulted in layoffs of engineers in 1957-58, 1962-63, 1966 and 1969-72.

Snyder said that "an engineering professor, when he sees an empty seat in his classroom, states that the nation will suffer if his class is not filled." And, he said, "when personnel men have trouble recruiting top talent at reasonable salaries with exactly the experience they want, they cry 'shortage' and demand larger enrollments."

"One reason unemployment in engineering is exaggerated is that 43 per cent of the persons who list themselves as engineers in the census have no degree in engineering," said the EJC spokesman.

AN OFFICIAL spokesman for the IEEE said many older engineers are pushed out of jobs by young engineers.

Displacement of older engineers results from rapid changes in technology, the up and down fortunes of companies, and from the fact that many engineers in the prime of life are not highly mobile.

Both the EJC and the IEEE spokesman said the crying need is for a professional mechanism to induce and require engineers to continue and diversify their training so they will remain employable 10 and 20 years after taking their first degrees.

Hearings on utility firms' ads slated

Reassuring words and pictures used in advertisements designed to puff up a public utility's image will be scrutinized again this month in hearings before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The purpose of utility advertisements, the cost to consumers and their reasonableness in times of energy shortages are being considered. The hearings began last October. The next session is set for Feb. 15 in the ICC offices, 160 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

Should consumers pay for advertisements that tell them of the local electric utility's concern for their total environment or that the telephone company is serving them better? The hearing examiner in this case, Stephen Claggett, said the commission wants to determine the need for public utility ads, if any. Other purposes of the exploratory sessions are to consider the objectives of public utility advertising the extent to which these objectives are being met and whether consumers should pay for these ads.

"WHAT WE'VE done so far in the hearings is to hear from consumer groups," Claggett said. He added that a number of transportation utilities are asked to be dismissed from the hearings and that this request has been granted.

"We're heading into a series of four hearings now," Claggett continued. "We expect to hear from eight utilities. The utilities have, comparably speaking, major advertising budgets."

The utilities slated to testify in hearings stretching Feb. 15 thru mid March include: Commonwealth Edison Co.; Illinois Bell Telephone Co.; Peoples Gas Co.; Northern Illinois Gas Co.; Central Illinois Public Service; Illinois Power Co.; Central Illinois Light Co.; and General Telephone Co.

A number of consumer representatives have asked to intervene in the case. Commonwealth Edison Co. indicated it may decide to challenge earlier testimony presented by the Citizens for a Better Environment organization.

PHILIP MILLER, CBE's assistant director of research, testified before the ICC in a January hearing. "We're asking the ICC to make Edison take the cost of their ads out of stockholder payments, not to add this in to service charges," said Miller last week.

"We're not attacking their activities. But they've presented an incomplete picture," Miller said of the electric utility ads. Claims presented in Illinois Prairie Path and other environmental ad image advertisements include "assertions that we don't feel are substantiated," said Miller. "The claim that Edison is concerned for your total environment isn't true," continued Miller. He cited a national study in which Edison was named as the "third worst polluter" of all U.S. electric utilities, and added that Edison is involved in more environmental litigation than any other electric utility.

Miller also discounted Edison advertising claims that thermal pollution "just isn't happening" at its Sangre de Cristo Lake cooling pond. Prairie Path advertisements claim preservation of the natural environment and that electric heat was chosen for the Chicago Water Tower for its preservative qualities.

Much of the same information was included in the recent CBE petition to the Federal Trade Commission last week to order an immediate halt to the environmental image ads by Edison. The petition asked that corrective ads be run, the cost of which should not be included in the utility rate base.

DONALD PETKUS, Commonwealth Edison's director of advertising, said CBE is bringing in issues that are "getting a little off the purpose of the hearings." He added, "Most of the document (presented by Miller) pertained to environmental issues or truth-in-advertising rather than who should pay for the advertisements."

"I thought an advertising hearing would be on, should utilities advertise, and is it in the public interest and if they want to get into it, who should pay for it — that's a third question. But the environmental issue is another question," Petkus said.

Current Edison advertisements include the promotion of a booklet on 101 ways to conserve electricity at home, according to the ad executive. He maintains that advertising is needed to stimulate power consumption in off-peak periods even when the power shortage. "In the winter-time and at night we have excess capacity not being used," said Petkus. He said lower service rates to consumers result in the most efficient use of power, which these ads promote.

"Our advertising expenditures last year were slightly under $3 million, or less than three-tenths of one per cent of revenues," he continued. The utility spent less on advertising than in the previous year, and yet the utility's total budget increased, he said. Petkus added that a company of similar size, Campbell Soup Co., spent 3 per cent of its revenues for advertising for the comparable period.

Illinois Bell Telephone Co., whose advertising practices have been attacked by Independent Voters of Illinois at previous hearings also said its ad practices are in the consumer's best interests.

New coding equipment for packaging industry

New coding equipment capable of non-contact printing more than 1,300 characters per second on containers and packaging materials is under joint development by American Can Co., headquartered in Greenwich, Conn., and A. B. Dick Co., Chicago.

The experimental equipment, called the Videojet printer, already has the capacity, for example, to print food cans with source and batch coding at a speed of 2,000 cans per minute — far exceeding present production line capabilities. American Can plans to apply and distribute to the packaging industry, basic equipment developed and manufactured by A. B. Dick Co.

Tiny droplets of ink are emitted from the nozzle of the Videojet printer at the rate of 60,000 per second and are electrically deflected to form complex letters, numerals or symbols in an ink dot matrix. New inks under development are intended to make it possible to print metals and plastic films using the technique.

In experimental use, the Videojet printer has been proved effective on various other packaging materials, including waxed papers, polyethylene, and coated paper board.

The equipment remains in the development stage for containers and packaging and first systems will probably not be available commercially for up to a year. A prototype unit was displayed publicly for the first time at the National Exposition for Food Processors, held recently in San Francisco.

Be careful about who prepares your tax return this year. You might get scooped up, along with the nice man who figured your generous tax savings, in a wide net the Internal Revenue Service is prepared to cast.

Having already done extensive undercover work, the IRS has plans laid for a nationwide assault on preparers of tax returns who use their sharp pencils not wisely but too well — and there are thousands of them.

Early last year, the IRS made a test run on a small sample of the once-a-year tax experts, "and it was like turning over a rock," says Raymond F. Harless, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

"The initial findings were so alarming," he's reported, that the investigation was at once broadened. More than 3,000 preparers of returns, who'd drawn attention by "excesses in advertising," were singled out for "undercover contacts."

OF THE investigations completed, more than a fourth have resulted in convictions or guilty pleas. Of the remaining individuals, more than a fourth are under arrest or indictment. There have been only seven acquittals.

And the bad news for the clients of such "tax experts" is that three-fourths of them, after the IRS audited their returns, drew additional tax payments and penalties. The average was $185 per return.

Harless has outlined plans for the massive crackdown in a publication of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. He estimates that from 50,000 to 200,000 persons are now in the business of preparing returns for fees. More than half of all individual returns are now prepared for the taxpayer, he said, and "probably another 20 per cent receive paid or unpaid assistance without showing a preparer's signature."

HE MADE it clear that he was not talking about "tax practitioners" — those professionally trained in accounting or law — or the established firms employing adequately trained personnel.

"Unqualified fly-by-nights" are the principal targets, "Anyone," Harless observes, "can award himself a diploma as a tax expert, rent an office or have no office at all, and start preparing tax returns."

But how accurately they're prepared is something else. About this, Harless says it's not easy to tell "how much is due to plain incompetence and how much to a willful attempt to defraud the government. Some of the incompetence has been so gross as to make nice distinctions virtually impossible."

Such "charlatans" he calls "the Typhoid Marys of our tax system." The loss in tax revenues is less significant, he feels, than "the eroding effect such cynical noncompliance has on public confidence in our tax system, in tax administration and in the IRS."

TO DISPEL the idea that preparing a tax return is too complicated for most individuals, the IRS this year is taking "a completely new approach to taxpayer assistance," says Harless.

The "short form," 1040A, is back again, along with a booklet, "Preparing Your Tax Return," that is designed to "walk the taxpayer through" Form 1040A.

A "Centiphone" system in 29 district offices will enable taxpayers to make long-distance calls to the offices, for information and assistance, for the price of a local call. As before, IRS experts will prepare individual returns, on request — and, to make available expertise go farther, will this year work with groups of taxpayers on preparation of their returns.

Funds to fight water pollution sought

Metropolitan Sanitary District officials traveled to Washington this week to plead for federal funds to fight water pollution.

Trustees Valentine Janicki, Joan Anderson, William Jaskula, and Joanne Alter went to Washington along with Bart Lynam, acting general superintendent.

Janicki said the group met with William Ruckelshaus, director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, to talk about President Nixon's embargo on funds for water pollution projects.

The district faces major delays on construction of water reclamation plants and the Chicago underflow tunnel system unless federal funding is restored.

JANICKI SAID officials met with both senators and all eight Illinois congressmen. He said another meeting with Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-8th, and REP. Harold Collier, R-6th, will be held later this month.

"Our congressmen now understand the MSD's position relating to the impounding of funds and the resulting danger to water quality," Mrs. Alter said.

In action at the MSD meeting yesterday, the board delayed giving $30,000 in annual contribution to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. The delay was authorized after Trustee Chester Majewski said, "I don't think we should give $30,000 to NIPC or any other organization without them making a personal appearance in justifying the use of public money." He said NIPC officials should appear at an MSD board meeting.

Last year the district contributed $30,000 to help support NIPC's operations.

THE BOARD yesterday also appointed Raymond R. Rimkus as acting director of the district's maintenance and operations division.

Rimkus replaces Lynam who became acting general superintendent when Ben Sosewicz resigned, effective Feb. 1.

The board also awarded a contract to Santucci Construction Co. for $1,249,277.50 to build Upper Salt Creek Interceptor Sewer No. 11. That sewer will run from directly west of the Salt Creek Plant north to Higgins Road in Schaumburg Township.

Book to help smokers quit

"There now is a book available which can be very helpful to those who want to quit cigarette smoking," Dr. Earl E. Suckow, president, Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society, announced.

"It's a paperback called, 'The Thinking Man's Guide to Quitting Cigarettes,' now on sale at $1.25 and published by Award Books."

Dr. Suckow said that while the per capita cigarette consumption remained about the same last year, total consumption hit a record high of 547.2 billion in 1971.

The book, written by Elliot Tozer, writer-director-producer for TV, includes four special tests which are easy to take and which give the smoker many insights on why he smokes, and how he can be helped to quit, he said.

"According to Dr. Luther L. Terry, former U.S. Surgeon General, and now special consultant on tobacco and cancer to the Society, the stories of three people involved in the TV series and in the book 'will provide insight for the readers who are smokers.'

"The TV series helped many Americans to quit and we believe that the book will add considerably to that number. As Dr. Terry has said, we have as our target getting 45 million Americans to quit cigarettes, and also keeping our youngsters from starting the habit," Suckow said.

The book, he went on, also contains many helpful hints on what to do after the smoker has finally given up cigarettes, during those most difficult early days.

If the book is not available in your neighborhood, you can send a check or money order for $1.50 (the extra 25 cents to cover postage and handling) to Award Books, P.O. Box 500, Farmingdale, L.I., N. Y. 11735.

Des Plaines petition aired

906 oppose MSD plant site

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Metropolitan Sanitary District board members yesterday accepted a petition reportedly signed by 906 Des Plaines residents urging the relocation of the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant.

But the MSD Pres. John E. Egan refused to allow Des Plaines alderman candidate Richard F. Ward to speak at the MSD meeting.

District board members, including Trustee Joanne Alter, reaffirmed their lack of enthusiasm for Des Plaines' proposal to relocate the plant west of Busse Road and south of Oakton Street in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Alter had invited the Des Plaines residents to a Wednesday meeting and sought cost figures on a possible relocation of the plant. But, she said yesterday, the minimum $8 million cost to relocate the proposed plant was too expensive for the MSD to consider. "I was hoping it could be done for less than $1 million," she said.

Ward's petition was turned over to the board's committee on engineering. But, Egan told Ward he could not speak at the meeting because, "We heard all that Wednesday."

THE SIGNERS OF Ward's petition seek to have the plant site transferred from the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road to a less residential location. It also requests the MSD drop plans for a combined sewage reservoir in the area and calls for connecting Northwest suburban underflow tunnels to a west suburban branch of the Chicago Underflow Plan instead of treating the combined sewage at the O'Hare plant.

After receiving the petition yesterday, the board deferred action on awarding an engineering for contract for the plant. But Trustee Valentine Janicki quickly noted the delay had nothing to do with Des Plaines residents' objections.

Janicki asked Bart Lynam, acting MSD general superintendent, whether delay constituted acting in "a politically advantageous manner" to Ward who, Janicki noted is a candidate for 8th Ward alderman in Des Plaines.

LYNAM SAID THE delay was coincidental and was needed to break the work into three phases for funding purposes. Janicki then admitted he already had known the answer to his own question.

"I don't want to give any extra publicity to a candidate out there just because he brought in a petition," Janicki said.

Ward said, after the meeting, he had hoped to point out to the MSD board that a letter from Circuit Court Judge Samuel Epstein requires the district to build and operate the plant so that it will have, "the least deleterious effect on the neighborhood."

IN OTHER ACTION yesterday the MSD board dropped plans for three inter-ceptor sewers originally planned to tie into the O'Hare plant. The sewers will be replaced by the tunnels in accordance with the underflow plan.

At the Wednesday meeting Lynam evaluated two other possible sites for plant relocation.

He said relocating the plant to a site south of the Northwest Tollway and east of Elmhurst Road — which includes a drive-in theater, trailer park and vacant land — would cost $11.1 million.

Relocation to the second site — south of Touhy Avenue and west of Mount Prospect Road — would cost $13.6 million, Lynam said.

Valentine, oh Valentine

Sentiment's in season

by GENIE CAMPBELL

"I'm caught in your web,
By my Valentine."
Your secret admirer XXXXXX
It's almost that time again. The middle of February pause to send someone special a filly greeting set amidst hearts and flowers or... for the more avant-garde, a studio card bestowing more wit than love. Either way, it's still classified as a valentine. And many women still cry if they don't get one.

But the real question is why? Who sent that first valentine and while we're at it... how did the word valentine come into being in the first place and become associated with mushy lines of greeting interspersed with cupid's aiming arrows? Were the greeting card companies responsible? No, they simply capitalized on a lucrative situation.

ACTUALLY there are many legends about the origin of Valentine's Day. Although eight early Christian martyrs named Valentinus were canonized by the Church, which might suggest where the name was coined, there is one story that is even more popular.

It is about a young Christian priest who was imprisoned by the Roman Emperor Claudius II for helping fellow Christians escape persecution.

According to this legend, the blind daughter of the young priest's jailer (no one seems to remember her name) took pity upon the poor man and befriended him.

On the eve on his death the priest wrote a farewell message to the girl thanking her for her extreme kindness during his stay in jail. He signed it no less... Your Valentine. The day was Feb. 14, 270 A.D.

A good explanation, to be sure, but isn't it rather unpleasant to note that Feb. 14 also marked his execution day?

OTHER STORIES linking past history with Valentine's Day include the Romans noting that Feb. 14 was the day when birds chose their mates and also the pagan feast of Lupercalia in ancient Rome when boys drew the names of girls by lots and courted them. (Personally, I prefer the one about the birds, but then that doesn't explain the word valentine.)

A great deal of inventiveness and creativity are spent on Valentine's Day each year. 1973 is no exception. And though the individual cards may undergo face liftings to keep them appropriate with modern times and though the method of expression may also change for the same reason, the sentiment underneath remains the same.

When I was growing up it was popular to recite a verbal valentine:

"Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
Sugar is sweet,
And so are you."

Of course, for teachers and people we kids didn't like, the words were easily changed for more derogatory ones.

BUT THE point is, it might be somewhat harder today to memorize a quote from Shakespeare's "Hamlet" that the English lit major might have in mind for his Valentine.

"Doubt thou the stars are fire;
Doubt that the sun doth move;
Doubt truth to be a liar;
But never doubt I love."

With our fast pace, however, there often isn't time to even read long verses. So for those who detest the frills, there's today's card which simply says on the cover, "Love is now." Inside it adds, "And so are we... Happy Valentine's Day."

Harry J. Cooper, executive director of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, says many of the old valentines were creations of Louis Prang, the man who pioneered the card industry.

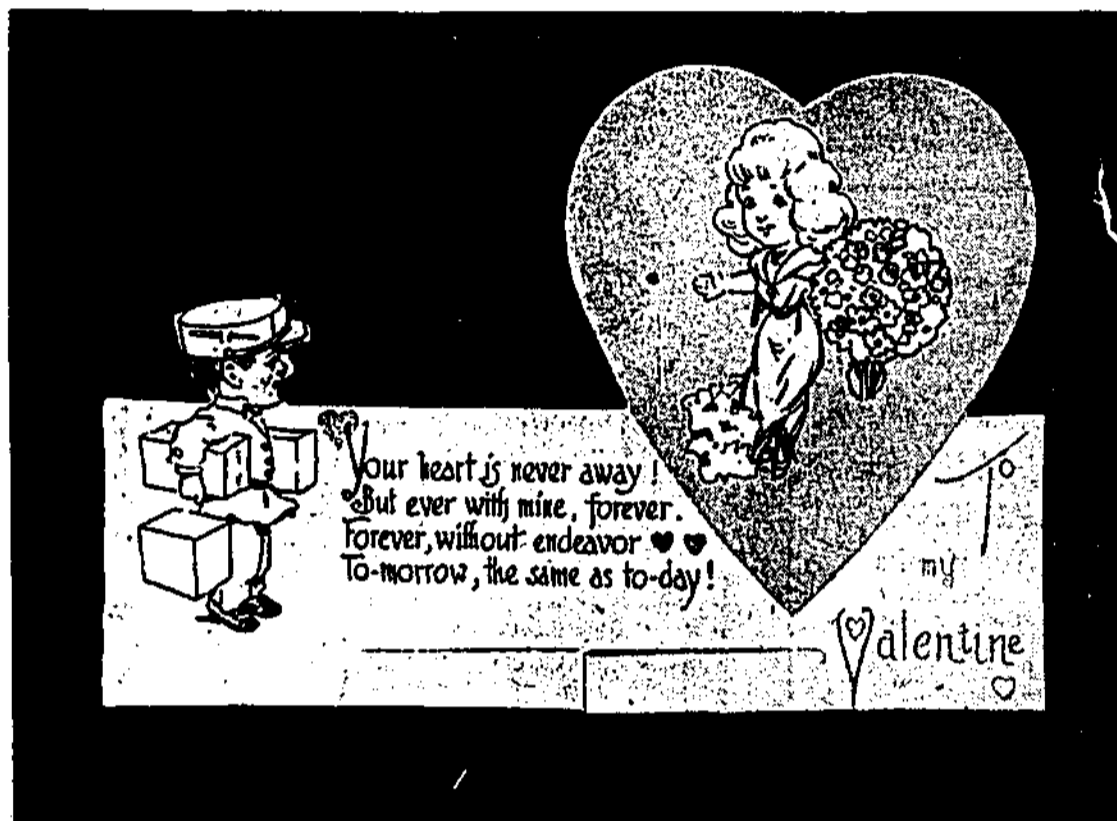

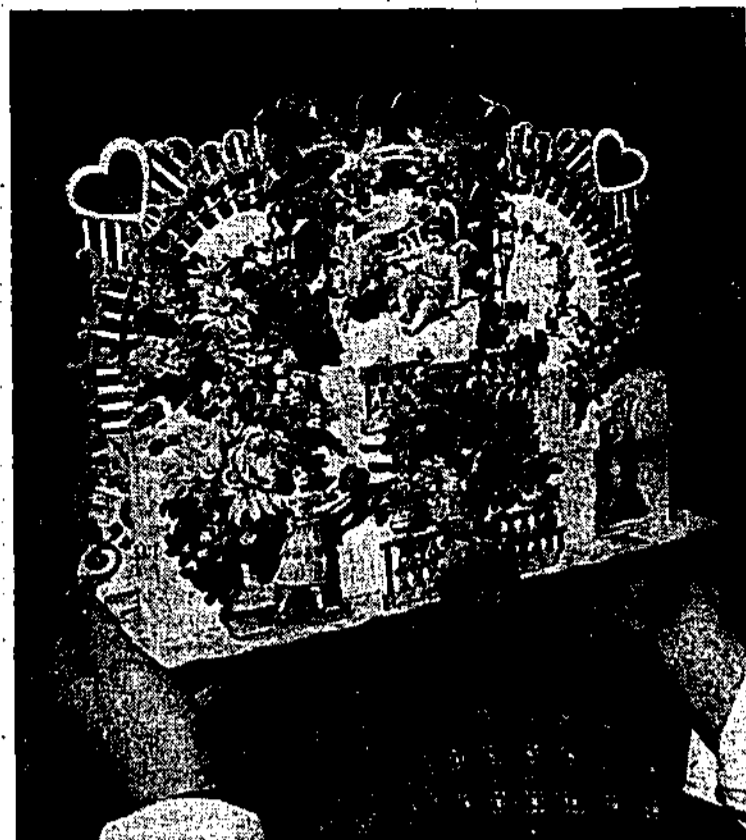

And Cooper said that Valentine's Day follows right after Christmas in the number of cards sent.

"SENTIMENT expressed candidly seems to be coming back," said Cooper. "It's also going up."

He's referring to the new queen-sized sweetheart cards containing a brooch or other piece of jewelry that can be mailed cross country for less than a dollar.

But take heed, men, it might be wise to find out just how much you are appreciated before investing in more than a quarter's worth of greeting.

(Robert G. Robinson, president of the Highland Park Historical Society, has been collecting and preserving valentines for a number of years. The valentines pictured here belong to him and currently are on loan to Hollands Jewelers at Woodfield where they are being exhibited in the display cases during February.)

Rural Illinois landscape fascinates California artist

BY GENIE CAMPBELL

What many native Midwesterners take for granted Harold Gregor has studied, researched and called attention to in a special art show currently being exhibited at Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights.

Fascinated instead of bored with the flat rural countryside in and around Bloomington, Ill., where Gregor teaches art at Illinois State, the artist said he discovered "an almost infinite space, defined by barn-like sentinels."

"Later I discovered the barns were not barns at all," he continued. "They are called corn cribs and are a very special structure totally functional and, as far as I could tell, unique to central Illinois."

GREGOR HAS captured on canvas in a photographically realistic manner a variety of corn cribs and other dated buildings typical of rural Illinois.

"When I moved to Bloomington from California three years ago, I kept hearing disparaging remarks about this area. But I've really enjoyed living here," said Gregor, whose primary focus is depicting various aspects of the agricultural environment.

Listening to the guest artist discuss his individual discoveries and personal impressions, heightens one's respect for "Crib, Corn, Barn and Barns," the given title of his show, which has reproduced a complete outdoor environment inside.

But doing even more than just suggesting certain landmarks typical to rural Midwest, Gregor has become intrigued by a very special quality of light he noticed. It appears to be created by the Bloomington flatland area. "A spring light, quite strong, appears to permeate the whole campus," he said.

IN MANY OF his canvases he has attempted to use the direct solid character of the crib image as a means to capture the quality of light.

This interest in light led to other investigations of which his "Corn Meal Flash" piece, laid out in the front room of the gallery, is a direct result.

"I tried to find ways of picturing this light by using materials that were associated with the area," said Gregor. "I discovered that yellow and white corn meal, properly arranged, reflects a golden light that really seems to match that strong light I've experienced around Bloomington."

The "Corn Meal Flash" piece, which includes a one-foot wide strip of corn meal-covered canvas around the outside to represent the horizon, is presented as a constructed equivalent of the "flatland solid space and light." The corn meal is specially arranged in small mounds topped by plastic tubes filled with alternating rows of green peas and lentils.

IN ADDITION to the one large corn meal display and his painted canvases that are noteworthy for not only reproducing the rural building but also the quality of light, the associate professor of art has included in his show a series of black prints, silk screens, watercolors and chalk and pencil drawings.

Most of these too depict various aspects of the agricultural environment in varying degrees from impressionism to stark realism.

"Also the newspapers in this area have a character far different from anything I know in California and I began using newspaper images as a source for monotypes and drawings."

PICTURES HE has chosen for prints are based on personal preference although again, the agricultural theme is readily seen in many of them.

Gregor's show is the second half of a back to back exhibition that highlighted first the work of Kenneth Holder who combined in his paintings food images with landscapes. Holder's exhibit has now been moved upstairs in the gallery.

The work of both ISU artists can be viewed through February. Countryside Art Center is open Tuesday through Sunday, 1 - 5 p.m. The gallery is closed all day Monday.

RURAL SETTINGS. Many of Harold Gregor's photographically realistic paintings focus on corn cribs. He is pleased with this one, because he feels the quality of light has been captured to add more depth and drama.

HAROLD GREGOR DISCOVERED that "yellow and white corn meal properly arranged reflects a golden light." The Illinois State University professor, who stands behind his constructed piece now on exhibit at Countryside Art Center, describes it as "matching the summer light." The title is "Corn Meal Flash Piece."

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

One of my first columns dealt with the strange and diversified things some people like to collect, and I'd like to report that this practice is still going strong. Reading over my trade papers, I gleaned some ideas you may wish to adopt for your own:

Old office items — this is a real scoop, for they are still fairly inexpensive and available. For instance, at a flea market last week I saw an iron spindle for impaling receipts, etc., for $1; a cast iron device for stamping official seals, $1.50; and a cute revolving stand which originally held rubber stamps for $2. Larger items such as cash registers and typewriters are popular, but bulky and expensive.

Have you ever seen an elongated coin? These are U.S. minted coins (usually Lincoln cents) which have been rolled and flattened, and sometimes embossed with slogans or dates. It is believed this practice started with the Columbian Exposition in 1893. Look over old cigar boxes and jewelry cases belonging to your older relatives for samples of elongated coins. Speaking of cigar boxes, they are still available at garage sales for as little as 10 cents. I have found dozens for a young collector friend and many are colorfully decorated with beautiful old lithographs. Some are dated, usually around 1900.

I'VE OFTEN HEARD of beer can collectors, some of whom number thousands of cans on their basement shelves. About all I can say about this hobby is that it keeps the cans from polluting the countryside. I recently read about a man with a more modest collection, about 500 cans, but the unique thing is, he drank the contents of every can personally! You might say his collection is part of him, or, that it grows on him.

Those of you who date the past with other wars remember ration stamps. Sugar, meat, gasoline and shoes were some of the things rationed during World War II and the books and stamps are becoming collectible. Don't overlook K and C ration cans and labels. My husband thinks anyone who collects the latter either never ate them or has a short memory.

With the demise of "Life" magazine recently, the prices of old copies will surely escalate. At least one collector I know has an entire set, spanning all angles of American life over the past 50 years. He is a photographer and enjoys the magazines for their pictures.

In the kitchen department, you might find metal pie markers. These are solid brass devices lettered "C," "A" or "B," used to identify pies made of cherries, apples or blackberries in the days when a dozen pies were made each morning.

OLD BASEBALL autographs are rare and valuable, especially from players who were active before 1900, but popularity also has a lot to do with value. Babe Ruth gave out thousands of signatures, but his name personally inscribed on a baseball will bring $50 today. If your son is a baseball addict, have him collect autographs of current players. A good idea is to clip colored photos of the baseball heroes from magazines or newspapers and to take them along to the games to be autographed. In a few years these will be treasures with both sentimental and intrinsic value.

Let's not forget the bicentennial coming up in 1976. The 200th anniversary of our country's birth will be the impetus for countless souvenirs, and these are things which will be collected by your grandchildren. You can give them a good start, as I intend to do for Collin Lloyd, who is six months old today.

If you have a collection or a question, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

The Book Stall

"STRANGER IN CHINA," by GOLIN McCULLOUGH Morrow, $8.95

As a Canadian correspondent stationed in Peking from the fiercest days of the Cultural Revolution through Mao's meeting with President Nixon, the author was in as good a spot as any westerner to see what China was going through and where it was headed.

His book is written in clear, journalistic style and switches smoothly from a closeup view of his family's life in an exotic land to wide-ranging analyses of the state of agriculture and industry in the world's most populous nation.

McCullough warns that China's resumption of relations with the West should not be taken at more than face value. China as a nation will remain aloof. A foreign observer will stay a stranger, he says, and sums up: "He is not Chinese, there is nothing more to say."

Though limited to Peking and immediate area during his year and a half in China for the Toronto Globe and Mail, McCullough's contacts and observations convinced him China will have to concentrate on domestic problems for years to come.

HE DESCRIBES the cauterizing terror of the Red Guard period and judges it a desperate — and finally successful — effort by Mao Tse-tung to regain the power that was beginning to diffuse in the early '60s.

McCullough expects no de-Maoization after Mao's death. The chairman's works more likely will attain the force of Holy Writ — but China's fate will depend on who takes up Mao's mantle and how he interprets Mao's thoughts.

Mathis Chazanov (UPI)

"INDIAN LIFE OF LONG AGO IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK," by REGINALD FELHAM HOLTON Crown, $1.95

A charming account of the first New Yorkers who roamed the forests and swamps and left their mark in paths that became streets and place names that designate modern neighborhoods. This expanded and illustrated edition is a reissue of a book that went out of print soon after it was first published, in 1934.

"THE MATING GAME," by JOHN GODWIN Doubleday, $7.95

This is what happens when boy meets girl via computer, orgy, singles solace and all the other new-fangled introductions to romance — as well as one old-fashioned method, the matchmaker. It makes one yearn for the good old days of moon-June-spoon, and happily ever after.

"TOMMY AND JIMMY: THE DORSEY YEARS," by HERB SANFORD Arlington House, $8.95

The reader will find that while Sanford's book is a chronicle of the lives of the two brother bandleaders, it is more important as a nostalgic review of musical America in those years before World War II.

"THE TRUTH ABOUT DRACULA," by GABRIEL RONAY Stein and Day, $7.95

Ronay, born in the Transylvania "Dracula" country, sets out to show that Bram Stoker played loosely with the facts in writing his famous vampire novel. The author's scholarly study convinced him the real Dracula was a Balkan noble who was a sadist, not a vampire. The real vampire was Countess Elisabeth Bathory, who murdered more than 650 girls.

"YOUR MIND CAN STOP THE COMMON COLD," by LUCY FREEMAN Wyden, $5.95

Who knows what anxiety lurks in the heart of man? Your nose knows, according to Miss Freeman, whose thesis is that psychic conflicts, more than viruses, cause colds. As with so many things, if you believe in it, it's probably true for you.

Magician switches roles

by ROBERT MUSEL LONDON (UPI) — A man stopped by Chazanel Milfalew's table in the sandwich bar in which he holds court Sundays to ask whether he knew he resembled a magician whose television act was a nationwide talking point a few years ago.

"You mean that chap, Chan Canasta?" "That's the name," said the man. People are always asking Milfalew, an artist with a growing reputation and a unique way of using his materials, whether he is Canasta who was just as much an innovator when he dazzles laymen and magician alike with his new technique.

Of course, they are the same person. It would take more than a change of name and dress — Milfalew affects a dramatic, broad-brimmed black artist's hat — to make people forget the bony face and intense eyes they saw so often on the stage or on television.

Canasta still surfaces every now and then in a theater or club with an act that magicians say is very different because success is not built into every trick. There is always a margin for failure — which sometimes happens. It depends on how well he reads the character of his subjects, an art he learned as an intelligence officer, specializing in interrogation, in Israel.

MILFALEW HAS just staged another successful one-man exhibition of his work at a gallery off Grosvenor Square. His pictures are hard to categorize. He paints fanciful ships on oceans that never were, flowers that nature may get around to some day, street scenes and the interiors of houses that represent his very own view of these things.

The word "paints" is a bit misleading. Milfalew has developed a method of using crayons so that the finish on the board base on which he works is diamond-hard without losing the brilliance of the original colors. He commands prices around the $500 and up mark and some of London's more astute collectors are (he says) stockpiling for the future.

Milfalew has not given up magic. He was thinking about it when he heard a well-known magician was opening his act, by saying, "Chan Canasta started a new era in magic."

"Who could quit after that?" he said.

Elton John

Having read somewhere that they (record company and the public, I guess) were going to wear out Elton John by his continual exposure on stage and a steady stream of new albums in the record racks, I find this is not so.

Even John once picked 1973 as the year for the decline. But "Don't Shoot Me, I'm Only the Piano Player" (MCA-2100) is very reassuring as to the continuing quality of John's music and partner Bernie Taupin's lyrics.

More than ever, John and Taupin are about rock this time out. The album is led by the very successful (currently No. 1 nationwide) single, "Crocodile Rock." They add a bit of funk with "Midnight Creeper" (John has long been a fan of the Motown sound) and "Have Mercy on the Criminal" takes from Eric Clapton and the Beatles.

A bit slower is "Blues For Baby and Me," which features Paul Buckmaster's arrangement and use of a sitar. It's a different type of highway song, with a yearning more akin to that found in Simon and Garfunkle's "America."

The soothing synthesizer sound on "Daniel" are fine too, but as always I found particular delight in Taupin's lyrics. "Texas Love Song" is a devastating look at the southern gentleman known as the redneck. "You long hairs are sure gonna die . . . The minds of our daughters are poisoned by you. With your communistic politics and them negro blues." All done with a delightful, beguiling melody.

The other Taupin gem is "Teacher I Need You." The song is about your typical school boy crush, but it has never been told like this. The teacher has something "to drive a school boy wild" and the kid's "got John Wayne stances, I've got Errol Flynn advances."

The satire and economy of words with John's fine music show anything but a decline. In fact, I think it's all getting tighter and better. It's like good "Elderberry Wine."

Several people have used the word "honest" in association with Steve Goodman's new album, "Somebody Else's Troubles" (Buddah BDS-5121). Well I'd agree if honest is used to mean good, unpretentious songs sung in a pleasant manner.

Goodman is a native of Chicago and is one of the best in describing the urban situation in an almost country musical style. It's truly hard to pick out favorites among the songs, but "The Lincoln Park Pirates," which reaches for that Chicago background, is one.

With the air of a jauntily told sea chanty, Goodman recounts the nefarious adventures of a somewhat familiar sounding towing agency. (Allegedly, this song was so familiar that someone is planning to sue.)

The song that most sticks out on first hearing is "The Ballad of Penny Evans" which is sung a capella. It is the very moving tale of a Vietnam widow and her reactions to the war "they say . . . is over, but I think it's just begun." The emotional content is powerful in this not-so-ordinary protest song.

The rest of the album glitters as well, from the short, bluesy "I Ain't Heard You Play No Blues," where B. B. King comes out better than a drowning lover, to the night the vegetables had a wild time in "The Vegetable Song." Most of it is very uncomplicated, but all of it is very good.

His help is expert. It includes David Bromberg, David Newman, Kenny Kosek, Arif Mardin, Willie Bridges and Robert Milkwood Thomas. (The latter is better known as Bob Dylan — the name coming from Dylan Thomas' play "Under the Milkwood.")

That whole support crew and others help out Doug Sahm too in his first Atlantic album, "Doug Sahm and Band" (SD-7254). This time Dylan gets credit under his proper name as he plays, sings and even writes a song, "Wallflower," which is real nice.

Doug Sahm is probably better known as Sir Douglas and two members of the former quartet join forces here. The music is Texas swing, shuffle blues and country with a beat. It's a bit more instrumented than Goodman's, but it goes down as easy.

So now you know some of what Dylan's been up to the past year. For someone who is supposed to be tired of music, he seems to keep his hand in, even if he himself hasn't done a new album in over a year.

Entr'acte

The role of Ruth in "Blithe Spirit" is familiar to Karen Knudsen, who is appearing in Village Theatre's production of the spoof this month. Only 16 years have passed in between performances.

Karen was cast in the same role when her high school produced the Noel Coward comedy. Her last appearance on stage was 14 years ago when she portrayed Eliza Doolittle in "Pygmalion." This will be Karen Knudsen's theatrical "comeback."

Jack Sharkey, a playwright residing in Elk Grove Village is going around while pretty loud these days. He has reason to.

His first play, "Here Lies Jeremy Troy," opened this week at Pheasant Run Playhouse in St. Charles starring George Nuharis. While that comedy was in rehearsals, he received word that Samuel French had optioned his latest play, "A Crack at the Top."

His new comedy is about the efforts of a psychiatrist to write a best seller professionally utilizing the dreams of a patient who is dreaming a chapter per night of what purports to be a sizzling torrid novel. The ethical hangup, of course, is that the hero does not want to cure the patient until the final chapter is in.

Also, since the patient is love-frustrated (the cause of the dreams in the first place), the psychiatrist cannot let him fall in love either. Sharkey said, "It makes for a not too subtle but pretty hilarious knockabout farce."

HOWARD TELL is interested in premiering "A Crack at the Top" at the Abbey Theater in Philadelphia. There is a very good chance that this comedy is Broadway-bound, according to Sharkey.

While at Pheasant Run watching rehearsals of "Here Lies Jeremy Troy," Sharkey met Hans Conried, who starred in the production "How the Other Half Loves" that just completed its run at the playhouse.

Before Conried left, Sharkey promised to send him the script of his new play to read. Thus wheels seem to be in gear for both "A Crack at the Top" and "Here Lies Jeremy Troy."

Arlington Heights violinist James Hahn will perform with the DePaul University Youth String Orchestra tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the Lewis Center, 25 E. Jackson Blvd. The orchestra is under the direction of Mary K. Rosen. The recital is open to the public free.

Audience acts as jury in 'Night of Jan. 16th'

Audience participation is an integral part of the next Guild Players' production, "The Night of January 16th."

Opening in the Hoffman Park District Vogelel Barn Friday, Feb. 23, the play deals with the trial of a young woman, and the jury will be selected from the audience each night.

As patrons get their seats at the box office, they may leave their names as candidates for jury duty. On performance night, these names will be given to the clerk of court, a role in the play, and the 12 jurors will be drawn by lots from these names after they are placed in a drum.

The 12 will be called to the stage one by one to take their seats in a regular jury box just as they would in a legitimate court trial. They will be sworn in and listen to all the testimony given during the play.

Each act represents one day of the trial, and jurors will be led off stage between acts to a small deliberation room. Just before the ending of the third act, they will retire for the last time to render a verdict. Though legally a unanimous decision is required, for the sake of dramatic brevity, in this play a majority vote is taken.

WHEN "THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16TH" was first presented in New York, it was doubted whether the innovation would prove popular. Women might not like to leave their escorts and patrons might prefer to watch from their seats in the auditorium rather than from the stage, it was feared. But the public responded enthusiastically. Each performance averaged a hundred jury candidates, and there never was a clown in the jury box to mar the performance. Chief problem was the restlessness of the jurors because they were not permitted to stroll about the lobby between acts.

A tabulation of verdicts given during the Broadway run of the play showed acquittals outnumbered convictions three to one, and the jury was unanimous on only two occasions.

"Night of January 16th" will be playing also on Feb. 24 and March 2 and 3. Further information may be obtained from Louise Parenti, 529-9262.

JUDY CASTALDI, seated, is the heiress in the Ruth and Augustus Goetz drama that opens next weekend at the Guild Playhouse in Des Plaines. Appearing with her are Sue Pelinski and Gloria Terris.

BOB announces auditions for 'Man of La Mancha'

Best Off Broadway Players will hold open auditions for its summer production, "Man of La Mancha," on four separate dates this month.

Tryouts are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 18, and 8 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 19, 20 and 21. Auditions will take place in the Congregational United Church of Christ, 1001 Kierchoff Road, Arlington Heights.

Angelo Karas of Chicago will direct the musical. John Shaw of Mount Prospect will be the choral director and Lynn Jensen of Arlington Heights will conduct the orchestra. Choreographer will be Don Frohman of Glencoe.

The musical tale of the imprisonment of Cervantes (Don Quixote) during the Spanish Inquisition requires a cast of 13 males and five females. In addition, there are parts for dancers, guards, Inquisitors and Moors.

Further information concerning the tryouts is available through 381-5371.

Music teachers meet at Harper; recital slated

A piano and voice recital will be presented at the next meeting of Northwest Suburban Music Teacher's Association at Harper College Tuesday, Feb. 20.

Grace Garrett of Des Plaines will perform in duet with Genevieve McNeal, also of Des Plaines.

Among other performers are Ruth Wyble, Ellenore Bonebrake and Elva Johnson of Northbrook. Mrs. Johnson is on the piano faculty at Harper. Two other faculty members who will play are Emanuel Lancaster and Joanne Schlegel. Also scheduled to perform are Andrea Handley of Evanston, Helen Castle and Jane Moseley of Elgin and Verna Dean Roberts and Mary Ellen Steinman of Lake Zurich.

All music teachers in the area are invited. Further information about the teachers association may be obtained from Mrs. John Jenkins, 211 Audrey Lane, Mount Prospect.

Kid's play Saturday

Des Plaines Park District Children's Theater is sponsoring a performance of "The Prince and the Pauper" Saturday afternoon in the Maine West High School Auditorium.

The Robin Hood Players, a professional company from Chicago, will present the play with curtain time at 2 p.m. Doors open at 1:30.

Girl's lost love told in DPTG's 'The Heiress'

The story of a shy sensitive girl who becomes bitter and disillusioned after being jilted by the man she loves will be told on stage when Des Plaines Theatre Guild presents "The Heiress." The play opens Feb. 16 and will continue for three weekends through March 3.

Judy Castaldi of Lincolnwood is cast as the heiress in the Ruth and Augustus Goetz drama that was suggested by Henry James' novel of inheritance and frustration, "Washington Square."

Ed Sauer of Des Plaines will be the heroine's stern father who despises his daughter for her lack of wit and charm. He threatens to disinherit her if she goes through with her marriage to a fortune-hunter.

JOHN SCHILE of Wheeling is cast as the conniving suitor who jilts his fiancée when he learns that the fortune he inherits through marriage is less than he anticipated.

Other roles in the Des Plaines Theatre Guild's production of "The Heiress" will be played by Gloria Terris of Lincolnwood, Jean Kay of Mount Prospect, Lana Ducey of Des Plaines, Jackie Shadinger of Chicago, Sue Pelinski and Tom Gaines, both of Des Plaines.

Producer is Ken MacCowan of Glenview and the setting, a fashionable parlor of a century ago in New York City's Washington Square, is being designed by Marshall Klevit of Des Plaines.

"The Heiress" will be staged at the Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St. in Des Plaines. Tickets, 296-1211.

DP Theatre Guild presents 'Verbatim'

Two performances of "Verbatim," a controversial so-called "atonal music-dance play," are scheduled at the Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines, this weekend.

Sponsored by Des Plaines Theatre Guild, the 90-minute play, subtitled "An Oral Piece," will be performed tonight and tomorrow night by the Luther Burbank Dingleberry Festival from the Body Politic.

"Verbatim" was created communally during the past six months and uses modern improvisational techniques, but the performances are not improvised nor do they employ contemporary audience participation theories.

Curtain time is 8:30 both nights. Admission, $2.50.

Public service

NEW YORK (UPI) — While there are more than 1,000 neighborhood performing arts groups in New York City, including theater, dance and opera companies, six of these were chosen as typical for presentation in a unique public service film, "Hometown," now being shown in schools and to arts councils throughout the country.

Produced by the Arts and Business Council of the New York Board of Trade under a grant from the Exxon Corporation, "Hometown" is spearheading a nationwide drive to stimulate interest in community cultural programs — the kinds of participatory arts organized by and for the general public.

Night out

New dates for some plays, others closing

by GENIE CAMPBELL

If you've been putting off getting tickets to see a favorite play or musical in the Chicago area, better get your calendar out and begin planning now. Announced this week were closing dates for some shows that have been playing quite some time and others that are ending earlier than expected.

One exception is "ONE FLEW OVER THE CUCKOO'S NEST" which has now been extended at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE through Feb. 23.

An excellent production, "Cuckoo" has received five Joseph Jefferson Award nominations. JAMES FARENTINO was nominated for best guest artist and two other cast members were nominated for their cameo role performances.

They are MEL HAYNES and NORMAN RICE. It is the second nomination this season for Rice. The other was for best actor in the Country Club Theater production last fall of "The Lion in Winter" which he also directed. Rice and his family reside in Palatine.

Other nominations received were for best production and best ensemble performance.

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" is one theatrical offering that shouldn't be bypassed this month.

HUGH O'BRIAN is next in line at Arlington Park Theatre. He will open March 1 in a suspenseful drama, "THE DESPERATE HOURS." It will be directed by HARVEY MEDLINSKY who also directed the current production.

EDWARD ANDREWS and BETTY FIELD are starring together in "NEVER TOO LATE," a comedy farce that is opening at the IVANHOE THEATRE Feb. 22.

This pushes up the closing date for "SUDDENLY LAST SUMMER," currently playing at the Ivanhoe, to Feb. 18. The Tennessee Williams drama was originally scheduled to close March 4.

The early closing indicates an unwillingness on the part of Chicago theatergoers to become involved with a heavy, emotionally draining evening of live entertainment. And "Suddenly Last Summer" is a gruesome play that unravels the hideous characteristics of man, but even so, through its horror, the Williams drama presents a very important lesson about humanity. Both SYLVIA SIDNEY and KATHARINE HOUGHTON give powerful, captivating stage performances.

Directed by GEORGE KEATHLEY, the production has received six Joseph Jefferson Award nominations for: best production, best direction (Keathley), best guest artist (Miss Sidney and Miss Houghton), best supporting actor (Allen Carlson) and a special nomination for Joseph Niemi's set. The play does deserve attention.

Two long-running musicals have announced closing dates.

The light and frothy show, "NO, NO, NANETTE" will end its Chicago engagement on March 10. The SHUBERT THEATRE production will have played here 26 weeks of a total 63-week national tour. CANDLELIGHT DINNER PLAYHOUSE'S "FIDDLER ON THE ROOF" will end a run of more than 21 months March 11.

But "GODSPELL" a musical celebration based on the Gospel According to St. Matthew, is still going strong and is now the longest running hit in the history of the STUDEBAKER THEATRE.

On the nightclub scene, JIMMIE RODGERS, who lists among his memorable hits, "Honeycomb" and "Kisses Sweeter Than Wine," will be opening in the BLUE MAX of the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE this Monday. He is here for a two-week engagement. Rodgers will be preceded on stage by the comedy team of TIM and TOM.

JULIE WILSON is bringing her supper club show to the TOP OF THE TOWERS in the ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS HOTEL beginning next Tuesday. The BOB ACHI QUARTET will play for Miss Wilson and also for dancing. The vocalist will appear in the penthouse restaurant through March 10.

THIS PLACE in St. Charles is having a massacre on Valentine's Day, a massacre of the winter blues accompanied by music of the prohibition era.

Conversion of the entertainment spot to a speakeasy was simple because the building at 11 S. 2nd Ave. was once an old garage complete with pock-marked brick walls.

Adding to the decor will be waitresses in costumes of the 1920s, musicians well-versed in the Black Bottom and other tunes of that time, and prizes for customers whose attire for the evening best reflects the sparkling days when bathtubers were for gin and Charleston was a dance.

The WAUBONSEE DANCE BAND has been booked for the Wednesday event. Reservations are necessary.

TV notes

Despite the cancellation of "Bonanza" after 14 seasons, Lorne Greene has nothing to worry about so far as employment is concerned. Actually, during many of the "Bonanza" years, the "big daddy" of the Ponderosa had all of the outside engagements he could handle on and off television. Now, he is headed for a one-hour series for ABC's 1973-74 season in "Griff," in which he plays a retired police captain.

The telecast of the annual Oscars for motion picture excellence in 1972 will be from 10 p.m. to midnight on the NBC network March 27.

James Stewart, who has made many a movie movie, has made his first movie-for-television for CBS exposure later this season. It is titled "Hawkins on Murder," and the star plays a country lawyer defending a girl accused of a triple murder.

"Ironside" Raymond Burr will be the host of an NBC comedy-variety special, "Keep U.S. Beautiful," scheduled for March 27. The title indicates that ecology is the theme. Ruth Buzzi, Tim Conway, Sandy Duncan, Lena Horne, Don Knotts and the Muppets participate.

The American Broadcasting Company again has acquired the exclusive U.S. television rights for the Olympics. It will broadcast the 1976 summer games from Montreal, July 17 to Aug. 1.

The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences will present a 90-minute telecast of its Emmy Awards for news and documentary programs on the CBS network late in May. This will be the first national telecast of these awards. It will come a week or two after the annual telecast of Emmys for entertainment programming, which will be on ABC May 20. (UPI)

Special Oscar

Hollywood (UPI) — Richard Roundtree was awarded a special "Ethiopian Oscar" by the Imperial Ethiopian Navy at a special screening of "Shaft" at Addis Ababa.

A GHOSTLY SITUATION. Carol O'Dea stars as the beautiful ghost Elvira in Village Theatre's production of "Blithe Spirit" that opens next weekend at Arlington High School.

Ghostly comedy

There isn't a ghost of a chance, Village Theatre members are betting, that their production of "Blithe Spirit" will fail to provide a laugh-filled evening for theatergoers.

The Noel Coward spoof is being staged Feb. 16, 17, 23 and 24 in the Helen Bristol Auditorium of Arlington High School.

"Blithe Spirit" recounts the riotous complications that ensue when a writer's deceased wife returns as a ghost to haunt him and upset his harmonious relationship with his second wife. In true Alfred Hitchcock style, the ending offers a double-twist surprise.

THE CAST FOR "Blithe Spirit" includes Carol and Pat O'Dea and Tom Wagner, all of Elk Grove Village; Karen Knudsen and Debora Threedy of Palatine; Alice Orlinsen of Arlington Heights; and Phyl MacCowan of Glenview.

Tom Ventris is directing the production for Village Theatre. Shella Baker and Mike Miner are co-producers and Sue Rucenik is stage manager. All reside in Arlington Heights.

Roger Krupa of Mount Prospect is set and lighting designer and Randi Behl of Rolling Meadows designed the costumes. Tickets, 250-3200.

Dining An informal elegance at Le Gourmet

By Edward Robert Brooks

Two Georges have brought elegant French dining to Chicago's northwest suburbs. Both the Georges - Dravillas and Vavaroutsis - have had extensive restaurant experience, and now they're putting it to good use at their new place, Le Gourmet, 500 Rand Rd., Arlington Heights (259-3400).

The building itself isn't new. It functioned for years as a steak and beef house. But the Georges have remodeled the entire operation to create a plushly informal Parisian outpost. And they've introduced a menu of sophisticated cuisine that's rather unusual for a suburban restaurant.

Seafood choices, for instance, include sauteed pompano and baked shrimp stuffed with crabmeat. Other possibilities are Dover sole meuniere, broiled red snapper, scampi in garlic butter and turbot with hollandaise sauce.

ENTREES ON THE A LA CARTE menu cost $4.95 - $9.75, including potato or rice and a house salad. In addition, there are several selections available for parties of two or more. Filet a la Talleyrand is delicious: hearts of beef tenderloin stuffed with mushrooms, braised in a Madeira marinade, then baked and topped with sauce Perigueux. It's priced at $17.50 for two. For the other multiportion dishes - roast rack of lamb adorned with vegetables ($8.00 per person) and beef Wellington ($8.75 per person) - the Georges request 24 hours advance notice.

Curry dishes also rate a special listing. They're Vavaroutsis' specialty and are available with either mild or pungent seasoning. Customers can choose chicken, shrimp, crab or lobster versions for $6.25 - $7.75, including rice, chutney and shredded coconut.

ONE MEMBER OF MY group on a recent visit to Le Gourmet was a real duck aficionado. She pronounced the restaurant's roast duck with bigarade sauce as one of the best she's ever eaten. I found the beef Stroganoff equally outstanding.

Other choices include the usual steaks and chops, plus a pepper steak, prepared with onions, green peppers and mushrooms, and a peppercorn steak, coated with crushed black peppercorns and lambert. Meat eaters also can choose tournedos Rossini, medallions of veal sauteed in Marsala, calf's sweetbreads, beef en brochette and veal cutlet a la Oscar. For this last dish, the veal is sauteed with crabmeat, topped with sauce Bearnaise and glazed under a broiler.

Le Gourmet serves lunch Monday through Friday 11:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. and dinner 5:30 p.m. - 1 a.m. A downstairs room, the Moulin Rouge, offers dancing and entertainment until 4 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Piano bar Monday through Thursday.

Colleen Moore going strong

Mother taught screen star zest

by DICK KLEINER

ATASCADERO, Calif. (NEA) — Somehow, in this advanced year of 1973, the words "silent star" conjure up a picture of a doddering, decaying, downhearted dame. Well, you conjure up what you want, but I'll stick with the genuine lively article, Colleen Moore.

I drove up here — Atascadero is roughly halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco — for a visit with Miss Moore and found her a rip-roaring 70-year-old woman with a great zest for living, and happily, the wherewithal to exercise that zest comfortably.

Once one of the biggest stars in the business, Colleen Moore retired at the height of her fame. She's been away from films for 40 years, and never missed acting for a second, she says. For the last 30 years or so she's been living in Chicago. Last March she bought 100 acres of rolling hillside here and built herself a winter home.

"Have you been to Africa?" she said, as we strolled around her property. "Doesn't that look like Kenya?"

SHE'S BEEN ALL over the world. This past Christmas season she decided, on two days' notice, to do her Christmas shopping in Hong Kong. She also popped in on friends in Bangkok, Tokyo and Honolulu.

"Traveling is fun," she says. "So many people from my era in films have scattered. I see them all over. It's like an old school club."

For Colleen Moore, retirement didn't mean an end but a beginning. She was active with civic and family matters in Chicago and still is. She says she was psychologically ready to retire and credits her mother for that fortunate state of mind.

"I had a very wise mother," she says. "She started preparing me for retirement before I was a star. She had me learn art, sculpture, music, many things. She exposed me to projects. Then, when I did retire, I was so busy I haven't had time to get to the bottom of the list yet.

"I REMEMBER when I was 10 I complained to my mother that I had nothing to do. She said, 'Don't ever say that — it proves you're a stupid girl.' It's true — anyone who finds that time hangs heavy on their hands is a stupid person."

Colleen Moore isn't stupid and time hangs very loose on her hands. Every day is an adventure.

"I've lived many different lives," she says, "and now I'm going into the most interesting. Life unfolds every day and it's not true that life begins at 40 — life begins every day."

She says the only worry she has left is that she won't have enough time to do all the things she wants to do.

ONE OF HER THINGS is writing. She's already published three books—her autobiography, a book on her famous doll house and one on financial advice, a product of her long marriage to one of the founders of Merrill Lynch, etc. — and now she's writing a fourth. This is her first stab at fiction, a novel with a Chicago setting.

Another project is reading, because she has an insatiable desire to learn.

"I know how little I know," she says. "I get up early in the morning, work, read, then quit and run around all day with a vague look."

She has learned, to her joy, that the public hasn't forgotten her. To the contrary she finds there is a rebirth of interest in her old films.

"My name apparently still means something," she says. "It's surprising how many of the younger people know me. It's nice. I like it. But I'll do no more acting — my God, no, I did that." (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Birth notes

Twins surprise the Moningers

Mrs. David L. Moninger of Mount Prospect didn't have much time to prepare for the birth of her twin daughters, but everything is running smoothly at home now.

Just 10 minutes before she gave birth to Deborah Sue and Denise Marie on Jan. 27, Mrs. Moninger was told to expect a double birth. An x-ray showed the two babies. They were both a good size, too, Deborah weighing an even 6 pounds and Denise 5 pounds 8 ounces. They arrived in Lutheran General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Moninger live at 909 S. Owen and have another daughter, DeAnna Lynn, who is 2.

All the children's grandparents are residents of Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Manning in Bay City and Paul Moninger in Lansing.

LUTHERAN GENERAL

Mary Rose Petrucci made parents of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Petrucci on Jan. 16. The 6 pound 3/4 ounce baby is now at home with them at 306 S. George St., Mount Prospect. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Petrucci of Des Plaines and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Godecki of Niles.

Timothy John Roscoe's birth adds another son to the William P. Roscoe family of 1075 Kenilworth Drive, Wheeling. He has two brothers, Billy, 3½, and Jimmy, 2, and a sister Janet, 1. Timothy arrived Jan. 19 at 8 pounds 9 ounces. His grandparents are the Peter Roscoes of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Giansakakis of Buffalo Grove. The baby also has a great-grandmother, Mrs. Mae Herhold of Buffalo Grove.

Julie Christine Hill is the name of the first-born for Mr. and Mrs. Dennis G. Hill, 351 Willow Wood Drive, Palatine. She weighed 7 pounds 11½ ounces at birth Jan. 22. Julie is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Fasano of Chicago and the Robert Hills of Carbondale, Ill.

Tara Jean Fallon is the new arrival in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael P. Fallon of 8933 Robin Drive, Des Plaines. Tara was born Jan. 22 and weighed 6 pounds 1 ounce.

Stael A. Mandas is the first baby for Mr. and Mrs. James W. Mandas of Des Plaines. Born Jan. 23, she weighed 6 pounds 13 ounces. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mandas, and great-grandfather, George Mandas, are all Des Plaines residents. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Frudakis of Long Beach, Calif.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY

Denise LaVerne Felten was a Jan. 28 arrival for Mr. and Mrs. James Michael Felten, 353 Pleasant St., Hoffman Estates. Sister for Andy, 10, and Michael, 8, Denise weighed 5 pounds 12½ ounces. Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Felten and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huege, all of Des Plaines, are the grandparents of the children.

Michael Scott Funck has joined 2-year-old Kristine in the Rolling Meadows home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Funck, 2202 George St. Born Feb. 1, Michael weighed 9 pounds 11½ ounces. Grandparents, all of Rolling Meadows, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Lieser and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Funck.

Carol Ann Stelger was born Feb. 5 at 6 pounds 9 ounces. She is the second daughter for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stelger of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stelger of Chicago, Ill., and another granddaughter for Mrs. Evelyn Brodlo, Wheeling, and the Joseph Stelgers, Arlington Heights. Her sister is 2-year-old Laura.

Bryan Joseph Brady joins another boy in the Terry Brady household. He arrived Jan. 28, a brother for 7-year-old Brent. Grandparents of the 2 pound 8 ounce baby are the Jerry Bradys and the John Weiders, all of Arlington Heights. The Terry Brady family lives at 144 N. Forest, Palatine.

Laura Stephanie Wendler was a Feb. 4 baby for Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wendler of 121 Garden Lane, Prospect Heights. She weighed 7 pounds 4½ ounces and is their first child. The E. H. Walls of Western Springs and the G. Wendlers of Bartlett are Laura's grandparents.

Andrew Mathias Thomas makes a trio of sons in the Kenneth Thomas home in Rolling Meadows. Andrew was born Feb. 4 at 9 pounds 4½ ounces. His brothers are Kenny, 5, and David, 3, and all live at 4207 Linden Lane. The Mathias Thomas and Mrs. Mary Thomas, all Chicagoans, are the boys' grandparents.

OTHER HOSPITALS

Peter Gerard Duffer is the name of the new baby in the Robert Duffer home at 1091 Anderson, Des Plaines. Born Feb. 1 in Oak Park Hospital, he has a sister Julianne who is 4. Peter's grandparents are the Peter Giamminis of Park Ridge and the Thomas Duffers of Chicago.

Carol Marie Gallagher's birth adds another daughter to the William Gallagher family of 600 Piper Lane, Wheeling. Gina Marie is her year-old sister. Carol was a Jan. 30 arrival in Oak Park Hospital. Her grandparents are Rosario J. Lombardo of Chicago and William J. Gallagher of Crystal Lake.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in February To:

1. Wander through a florist's greenhouse. Glory in the flowers!
2. Go through your house and put away everything that is out of its place.
3. Send a Valentine letter to a favorite old schoolmate.
4. Do something to show good neighbors that you appreciate them.

White fur trims her bridal gown

An original gown by Oscar de la Renta with white fur bordering the hem of the skirt and the chapel train was worn by Patricia Ann Paynter when she became the bride of Samuel Kevin Snyder. The Victorian gown was of light ivory silk satin with pleated bodice and long, bishop sleeves.

Inserts of Swiss lace trimmed the bodice and the sleeve cuffs were trimmed in the same lace used on the high collar. A pouff of netting held her long veil, and she carried a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis with maribou plumes.

Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Camen Russell Paynter, 222 S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights, Patricia and Sam, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Snyder, Hinsdale, were married Jan. 26 in a 6:30 candlelight, nuptial mass in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights. The service was also double ring and the groom composed the music for the ceremony and mass.

MARY THERESE PAYNTER was her sister's maid of honor and the bride's college classmates, Cheryl Ann Irwin, Johnstown, Pa., and Kathleen Brems, Birmingham, Mich., and her cousin, Mary Kay McDermott, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. The girls carried white fur muffs to complement their scarlet red velvet gowns. The Empire gowns, with matching hoods, were fashioned with white lace on the bodices. The sleeves were long and fitted and the necklines were scooped.

Colleen Power, 4-year-old cousin of the bride from Chicago, was flower girl wearing a gown like the bridesmaids' and carrying a white basket with petals which she scattered in the aisle. The bride's 4-year-old brother Thomas was ring bearer wearing a black velvet jacket and knickers, white stockings and white ruffled shirt.

Leading the bridal party was Julianne McDermott, 7-year-old cousin of the bride, whose scarlet velvet gown had a white fur collar.

SAM CHOSE his brother, William M. Snyder Jr., Hinsdale, as best man. Ushers were his brothers Jeremy, Evanston, and Brian, Hinsdale, and the bride's brother John Stephen Paynter, Arlington Heights.

The service was followed by a dinner reception for 200 guests in Nordic Hills Country Club. The newlyweds honeymooned for a week at the Wagon Wheel in Rockton, Ill., and are now making their home in Franklin Park.

Patricia, a '69 graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School, studied at St. Mary's College of Notre Dame and the University of Notre Dame. A psychology major, she completed requirements in December for a Notre Dame degree.

Sam was graduated in 1970 from Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., with a major in biology. He is now in his third year of medical school at Loyola University Stritch School of Medicine, Maywood.

The evening includes bowling and prizes for refreshments. Fran Erickson is party chairman.

Car fixing class for women

Classes for lady motorists that tell how to identify squeals, clanks and "things that go bump in the night" will get underway next week at two area car dealers.

WOW (Women on Wheels) is a national program implemented through Chrysler Motors and is designed to uncomplicate the car for the lady motorist.

Taught in four two-hour evening sessions, the program is open to all women; it is free and not exclusive to Chrysler Corp. car owners. Classes will cover the car, why and how it runs; electrical aspects; braking and fuel systems; evaluating noises and driving in snow, rain or on ice.

After completing the sessions the women will be able to talk car and fix one with the aid of four simple tools — a flat blade screw driver, a Phillips screw driver, a crescent wrench and a pair of pliers, according to Chrysler.

Classes at Fireside Chrysler-Plymouth, Schaumburg, are scheduled to begin next Thursday, and interested women may call the service manager at 882-9000. Classes at Des Plaines Chrysler-Plymouth are also scheduled to begin Feb. 15. The service manager may be reached at 298-4222.

For homeowners

A guide to energy use

by DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — At the click of a switch: light, heat, cooling, any one of hundreds of appliances. All are at our service instantly. We expect it. We seldom think about it, unless there's a power failure.

The aware citizen, however, should think about it — and think about conserving the precious energy which is as much a part of our environment as the air we breathe, the water we drink.

Just as our air and our water are threatened, so are energy supplies. Demand for oil, natural gas, electricity is growing much faster than new supplies are being found.

And the industry is mounting a campaign to enlist the aid of consumers in extending the usefulness of various energy resources.

The American Petroleum Institute, the American Gas Association and the Gas Appliance Manufacturers have joined in publishing a brochure of fuel-saving tips — A Consumer's Guide to Efficient Energy Use in the Home.

The homeowner who heeds these tips may feel not only satisfaction in contributing to needed conservation of resources, but the reward of lower fuel bills.

The brochure offers the following checklists:

YEARLY:

— At the end of the heating season, or at least well in advance of the next one, have your entire heating system checked.

— If you have an oil furnace, burners should be adjusted at least once a year to prevent wasted fuel.

— Unless your attic is well insulated, you may be spending money to cool the outdoors.

— Sealing off cracks and openings around windows and doors can save you from 10 to 30 per cent of annual heating and cooling costs.

— Check weatherstripping and storm doors and windows carefully. Tight insulating here will save on fuel.

SEASONAL:

— Make sure furnace or air conditioning filters are clean; they need regular cleaning or replacement. Dirty filters cause poor distribution of heat or cooling, waste fuel and money and will shorten the life of heating or cooling equipment. Filters should be changed at least once each heating season and again each cooling season with central systems.

— In hot weather, lamps, candles or television sets near the thermostat will create heat and make your air conditioner put out more cool air than is really necessary for comfort.

— Don't place objects in front of heating or cooling registers — or your heating or air conditioning system will have to work harder to keep your home comfortable.

— If you use decorative radiator covers, be sure they're not trapping heat. If radiators are near cold walls, a sheet of aluminum or aluminum foil between the wall and the radiator will reflect heat back into the room that would otherwise have been lost.

— Let the sun help save money. During winter daylight hours, leave windows which face south or west unshaded and enjoy the free energy of the sun heating your home. In summer, keep these windows shaded to conserve cool.

AS OFTEN AS POSSIBLE:

— Clean dishwasher screens. Built-up food or detergent wastes energy.

— Turn off electric lights and appliances when not in use.

— Close doors and registers of rooms such as guest rooms which are seldom used.

— Try not to vary your thermostat setting higher than 72 degrees. Once you pass this point, energy consumption and heating costs rise significantly.

— If you're going to be away for the weekend, lower the thermostat about five degrees. If you plan a longer winter vacation, lower the setting to 55 degrees.

— Thin coatings of dust on radiators or baseboard units act as insulation and waste heat. Dust or vacuum these surfaces frequently.

— Try to use major appliances — washer, dryer, dishwasher — only for full loads. It's more comfortable in summer to do "hot" jobs, such as ironing, in

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Want to keep off those extra pounds? Then follow my tried-and-tested formula. It came the hard way, to be sure. For years the holiday festivities left me with much too much evidence of my weakness for food. It used to take me months to get back to size.

Now I do the usual things like cutting off visible fat, going easy on gravy and cream sauces and passing up all second helpings. Most of all, though, I avoid the party pitfalls. I make one drink do for the whole evening. When a hostess will trap me with a trayful of hors d'oeuvres, I'll leap up instantly and ask to help serve. I'm the server, not the partaker, and I feel quite smug about the whole deal. Thinner, to boot. — Georgia E.

Smart, brave gal. Wish I had your character.

Dear Dorothy: I seem to be a bit confused about tangerines and tangelos. What's the difference? — Elsie Kane Tangelo is the name given to the fruit made by crossing the tangerine with the grapefruit. To get you even more confused, the cross is sometimes between the tangerine and the orange. Most tangelos, however, are crosses of the Duncan grapefruit and the Dancy Tangerine. It's about the size of a common orange with a tendency to be slightly drawn out at the stem end. The rind is thin, smooth or slightly bumpy and fairly loose and easily peeled.

Dear Dorothy: Some of my large-leaved houseplants were so full of grime, I was afraid I'd lose them because the leaves couldn't breathe. A friend told me to spray the leaves with a mild soap detergent, then wipe them off with a paper towel. I just used an old window-cleaning spray bottle. It was easy to do — and the plants seemed to thrive after that. — Lily S.

Introduced in state House

'No-fault' auto insurance proposed

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A "no-fault" automobile insurance plan, similar to one passed last session but declared invalid by the courts, was introduced in the Illinois House Wednesday by Rep. Tobias Barry, D-Ladd.

Barry's plan incorporates the basic provision of "no-fault" insurance — that in the event of an accident, each injured victim is paid medical expenses by his own insurance company regardless of which driver was "at fault" in the mishap.

Regular insurance plans generally require payment to all injured parties by the firm insuring the driver judged to be at fault.

Barry's bill would set an upper limit of $2,000 on the amount of "no-fault" benefits collectable by any motorist in a year. It would also provide, however, that the victim's insurance firm pay part of any wages lost due to an auto accident, up to $150 a week.

BARRY SAID the "no-fault" concept would reduce the number of claims going to court each year for settlement, thus saving court costs and insurance companies' legal fees. Those factors in other states have allowed reductions in auto insurance rates.

A similar "no-fault" bill passed the General Assembly in 1971 but was declared unconstitutional because it did not apply equally to pedestrians and some other persons subject to injury. Barry's bill includes those provisions in its terms.

As do most other "no-fault" plans, Barry's provides that medical costs above those covered by "no-fault" limits could be recovered through normal, fault-finding insurance practice.

The new bill also adds two special funds to help provide more complete coverage for medical expenses arising from auto accidents.

EACH MOTORIST at the time he buys his auto license plates, would be required under Barry's plan to pay $10 to the secretary of state. That money then would be used for two purposes — reimbursing medical costs to victims of hit-and-run or uninsured drivers, and paying medical costs above the limits of insurance policies.

Such a plan, Barry said, would mean that almost all medical costs arising from motor vehicle accidents would be covered either by insurance or by the special state funds.

"I am not providing for a state of Illinois insurance company," he said. "I am not suggesting that the state control insurance. I am suggesting compulsory liability insurance."

"I am suggesting 99 44-100ths per cent coverage — hundreds of times better than the current situation."

Train hits auto, delays traffic

An accident between a Chicago and North Western Ry. commuter train and an auto at Northwest Highway and Sayre Avenue in Chicago delayed trains slightly during yesterday morning's rush hour.

Tom Judge, spokesman for the railroad, said the accident occurred about 7:20 a.m. near the Norwood Park station. The train hit the car after it had stalled. "I would assume the warning bars had gone down," said Judge.

There were no injuries.

Seek Society for Retired chapter

An effort is under way to organize a local chapter of the American Society for Retired Persons.

Members for the new AARP chapter are being sought from Wheeling and Maine townships. Marguerite Miltner, currently an AARP member, is organizing the group.

According to Mrs. Miltner, currently the closest chapters are in La Grange and Hoffman Estates. The local group must have 15 members before it can become a chapter.

Mrs. Miltner said membership in AARP gives persons "opportunities to meet and know other mature Americans that have the same problems and interests. This is really not provided by other senior citizen groups."

National dues are $2 a year, and chapter dues are usually about $1.50 annually, according to Mrs. Miltner. Membership is open to anyone 55 or older. Despite the group's name, persons do not have to be retired to join, said Mrs. Miltner. For more information, call Mrs. Miltner at 824-9552.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Public Hearing will be held at 7:45 p.m., February 20, 1973 in the Municipal Building, 33 South Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois at which time the Zoning Board of Appeals will consider a request for a variation from the strict terms of Section 11-43 (Lot Size) of the Zoning Regulations to permit the construction of a single family home on each of the following legally described lots:

Lot 19 in Block 13 in North West Highlands, a subdivision of the east 1/2 of the South West 1/4 (except 3 acres in extreme south east corner) in Section 19, Township 43 North, Range 11, East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

Lot 20 in Block 13 in North West Highlands, a subdivision of the east 1/2 of the southwest 1/4 (except 3 acres in extreme south east corner) in Section 19, Township 43 North, Range 11, East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

Commonly described as south of Cintonon Avenue on Ridge Avenue.

The above request for a variation will be considered by the Zoning Board of Appeals in connection with a hearing held on November 13, 1972 and continued to February 9, 1973. Interested persons will be given an opportunity to be heard.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI)—This is the third in a series of reports on long-range plans that are being developed for coping with various aspects of the energy crisis.

The first report dealt with alternate power sources, such as attaching a horse to a long pole and having it walk in a circle, thus activating a corn grinding machine.

The second report dealt with alternate military weapons, such as the SROHM (Self Returning Orbital Hand Missile).

This ingenious weapon consists of a curved stick that is hurled at an enemy. If it misses, an aerodynamic guidance principle causes it to come back to the thrower.

Today's report deals with alternate modes of transportation, which may be needed sooner than you might think.

For it recently was revealed that gasoline rationing is one of the steps being contemplated by the Office of Emergency Preparedness in the event the fuel shortage worsens.

With that in mind, I paid another visit to The Future Is Yesterday Corp., a prominent research center and "think tank" that is meeting the energy crisis head-on.

"There's no reason we have to depend on gasoline-powered vehicles," Harry McErst, one of the research assistants, told me. "Take a look at this."

He pointed to an open field beyond the visitors' parking lot. Moving across it was a large two-wheeled conveyance pulled by four horned bovines.

"We call that an oxcart," McErst said proudly. "As you can see, it provides a means of transporting cargo, in this case a bundle of flax, without any sort of motorization. We believe it will eventually replace the trucking industry."

"JIMMY HOFFA would love it," I said. "But hauling freight is only part of transportation's function. How are people going to get around when the gasoline is gone?"

McErst raised a hand in a gesture of reassurance. "We here at The Future Is Yesterday are fully cognizant of the need for personnel carriers," he said.

On a test track in the rear of the plant, to which we now repaired, technicians were assembling a two-wheel carriage from which extended two thin wooden shafts.

"Imagine a whole fleet of these on the street," McErst said. "One or two persons ride in the carriage; someone else propels it by joggling along up front."

"It looks like a real breakthrough," I said admiringly. "Individualized mass transit."

"Thanks," my guide responded. "Technology got us into this mess and technology will have to get us out."

Square Dance News

HAND RAMBLERS

Don Baldwin from Champaign, Ill., will be the guest caller tomorrow night for the Hand Ramblers when they meet at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, for their regular dance.

Edna and Gene Arnfield, the club's regular round dance leaders will begin the rounds at 8 p.m. All area dancers are invited. Squares begin at 8:30 p.m. and dancing will continue until 11 p.m.

ARLINGTON SQUARES

All area dancers are invited to join the Arlington Squares tonight when guest caller, Gene Tidwell squares them up for "Gene's Scene" at St. Simon Episcopal Church, 717 W. Kirchhoff Rd., Arlington Heights.

Rounds cued by Edna and Gene Arnfield, will begin at 8 p.m., with squares at 8:30 p.m. and dancing will continue until 11:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

HAPPY TWIRLERS

The Happy Twirlers will have their "Valentine" dance tonight beginning at 8 p.m. at Congregational Church, Grace-land and Marion streets in Des Plaines. It will also be another "75 Basic" dance, with most of the dancing confined to this level. The "easy" round of the month, which was taught after the dance last Friday night, will again be taught at 10:30 p.m. tonight.

The new beginner's class, associated with the Happy Twirlers, drew a capacity crowd last Sunday night to St. John's Episcopal Church at 200 N. Main St. in Mount Prospect. As is their policy, Char-lee and the Happy Twirlers, contribute all receipts to the church, Sunday will be the last night for beginners to enroll. Registration may be arranged by calling 259-9063 or 392-3581. Class starts at 7 p.m.

Above, beyond call of duty

GURGAON, India (UPI) — A man who submits to sterilization for the good of the nation and 60 rupees deserves anonymity, so let's just call him Ram.

Understandably nervous, Ram's eyes darted over the gaily-colored walls of the circus-like tent that houses this town's government-sponsored mass vasectomy camp.

Ram sat stiffly before an official who read him a form which said, "Please arrange to have me sterilized."

RAM REACHED deep into the pocket of his dirty white trousers for a bent cigarette stub as the official continued reading from the mimeographed form.

"... After understanding its full import, I willingly give my consent for undergoing the vasectomy operation," the official intoned. "I have obtained the consent of my wife for undergoing this operation."

Ram made his mark on the form, validating a contract that called for the government to pay him the equivalent of $7.80.

It seemed to Ram a fortune. It was, in fact, as much as he could earn in a month tilling the dry land that surrounds his town 20 miles south of the capital city of New Delhi.

THE MAN WHO brought Ram to the camp in a battered jeep is called "motivator" by the government and he was paid six rupees (78 cents) for his powers of persuasion.

A physician opened a demonstration kit and showed Ram precisely what was going to happen to him during a 10-minute operation he was assured would not hurt.

Using a plastic model, the surgeon showed Ram how he planned to make an incision in his scrotum, gingerly snip a tube in two places and tie the ends.

RAM HAD some questions about the effects of the operation on his virility. The physician reassured him.

There were posters on the wall which Ram could not read. They displayed the inverted red triangle, symbol of India's family planning program, and promised that vasectomies and other contraceptive methods would build a better India.

The posters promised "work for all" and "higher wages" but Ram and most of the other men who have been sterilized here since the camp opened two weeks ago are illiterate and could not read them.

Before evening, Ram sat upright on a cot in the tent sipping tea. A short time later he returned to his village.

DR. R. C. SHARMA, the senior medical officer in charge of the camp, said complications from vasectomies are "very rare" but there was some possibility of a "slight local infection."

India adopted family planning as a national policy in 1951 but progress has not been satisfactory.

Indians still are breeding so rapidly it is impossible for millions of them to earn adequate wages.

With 550 million people, India is the world's second most populous nation, topped only by China. It has been estimated that if India's birth rate does not decline, in another two decades its population will be 934 million.

INDIA'S FAMILY planning program uses a "cafeteria approach," which means that people are offered a choice of contraceptive methods.

The government contends that of the 98 million couples in the reproductive age group, 12.43 million of them or 12.7 per cent, have been protected by the various contraceptive methods available.

However, some family planning experts from abroad who have worked in India claim this country's program has not been fully successful and could achieve better results if Prime Minister Indira Gandhi throws the full weight of her political power behind it.

Infant death rate down: 'treat babies as patients'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The infant death rate here is declining nine times faster than the national rate and it may be because newborn babies are treated like patients.

"Many babies can be saved if they are looked upon, and treated, like what they are — patients," said Dr. George Cassidy, director of the nursery and professor of pediatrics at the University of Alabama-Birmingham School of Medicine.

"We do it," Cassidy said, "and it's working."

"Most people expect their own bed, own nurse and all hospital facilities to be at their disposal when they come into a hospital. But hospitals are set up for adults, not babies, and in most hospitals babies don't get first class treatment."

HE SAID those infants admitted to the high-risk nursery include premature babies, those weighing less than five and a half pounds at birth and those considered ill at birth.

Cassidy said a study in the early 1960s gave babies weighing less than three pounds a 1 per cent chance of survival with as many as three-fourths of the survivors likely to be impaired either physically or mentally.

At the facility here, he said, infants weighing less than two pounds — a pound less than the babies involved in the 1960s study — have a 20 per cent chance of survival while the impairment rate is below 10 per cent.

Cassidy said the nursery, presently being expanded with federal and private funds, attempts to provide total, first class care for the infant and fights the fatalistic attitude that sick babies always die.

HE DESCRIBES the nursery as a "baby hospital," and said means had been developed to feed underdeveloped babies in the same manner they are fed in the mother's womb, intravenously, for periods of several weeks. A special baby-size respirator also has been developed.

In addition, he said, the department is studying the nutrition of babies, educating nurses and others in the pediatrics field and monitoring, constantly, the condition of high risk mothers to detect future problems.

"If problems are found," Cassidy said, "the physician and necessary equipment are standing by when the baby is born. Instant action at birth can save hours of critical work later."

Soul food rates high in nutrition, balance

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Soul food" popular with black Americans is an exceptionally nutritious and balanced diet, according to a health expert.

It may be more nutritious than the diet of the typical white American, said Dr. Derrick Jelliffe, professor of public health at the UCLA School of Public Health.

"Hog jowls, chillings, chicken backs and catfish are not only inexpensive, but perhaps more nutritious than higher status cuts of meat," Jelliffe said.

The typical corn products — grits and corn pone — provide the proper protein and amino acid balance when combined with the traditional legumes, pinto beans and black-eyed peas, and many vitamins are provided by collards and mustard greens, he said.

It should be called "body and soul food," he said.

Scientists anticipating new flu strains

PARIS (UPI) — Scientists at the Pasteur Institute said they have developed a vaccine to combat future, stronger strains of influenza.

Claude Hannoun, head of a research team at the institute, said scientists developed the new vaccine by working with latest types of flu virus.

"A new flu virus is always stronger than the earlier one," Hannoun said. "This explains why a vaccine prepared in advance has little effect. The new vaccine is made with these advanced strains and we have every reason to believe that it will protect until 1977-78."

The vaccine, he said, will go on sale in France next September.

"The idea is to find the strain that is coming in the future," Hannoun said in explaining the development of the new vaccine. "It doesn't do to follow nature. You must precede it."

"WHAT WE TRIED to do was to begin with the strain 1968, which was the first Hong Kong strain, and we got a series of stronger and stronger strains and one of those we found in 1971 was that which became what we now call England 1972, the current strain."

"And we also found one that was even stronger, one that we feel will be the strain of 1977-78."

The World Health Organization has called influenza "the last of the great plagues." Doctors say influenza killed 11,000 Frenchmen in December.

Experts say the flu virus changes almost every year. Thus vaccines to fight a particular strain, the Asian flu or this year's English flu, have been quickly outdated.

The use of vaccines is important because specialists say there is no medicine that works effectively against influenza.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I was very pleased to see your article about informing the public. In my state, there is a regulation against using polyunsaturated margarine in restaurants. Therefore, many like myself who are on a medically prescribed unsaturated fat diet have difficulty ordering low fat foods in restaurants.

These limitations could be substantially reduced by permitting restaurants to use margarine products for cooking, dips and spreads.

However, the dairy lobby is so strong in our state that its hold on enforcing the use of high priced spreads appears impossible to break.

Our state was one of the last to permit colored margarine for sale and still has an old-fashioned milk commission which forces the consumer to pay dearly for milk.

How can we get the support from the American Medical Association to break this lobby for health's sake? I think you and the medical profession have a duty to lobby for such changes in the law. Your article was only a start.

DEAR READER — I am including your letter in the column because it is often charged that the food manufacturers of polyunsaturated products have taken unfair advantage of the dairy industry by touting the benefits of polyunsaturated fats. The situation you describe tells the other side of the story.

It is indeed very difficult for patients to obtain foods low in saturated fats because of a number of marketing practices. This is true even though their doctors, have prescribed such diets for them in the interest of their health.

I must agree that it seems unfair for an individual with a medical problem to be handicapped in carrying out his doctor's orders because of the practices of special interest groups.

YOU SHOULDN'T single out the dairy industry though. They have developed tasty low-fat and nonfat products that have really been a big help, such as fortified skim milk.

Many other foods such as baked items are prepared with lots of fat, usually saturated. Then there is the practice of using coconut oil in products (much higher in saturated fat than butter) and putting on the label "vegetable oil," which deceives the buyer.

Many coffee whiteners are touted as low in calories, yet they contain as many calories as cream and use coconut oil for fat.

Of course, there is the other problem of protecting the consumer who wants and thinks he is getting butter in his food and instead is receiving a substitute.

I BELIEVE MOST of these problems could be resolved by sensible rulings that require all foods to be properly labeled in sufficient detail to permit people to know what they are buying and restaurants should be required to provide essential information on foods served.

This would go a long way toward helping people with diabetes, people with heart disease and other medical problems who need to know what they are eating.

Girl Scouts to take cookie orders soon

Orders for Girl Scout cookies will be taken beginning March 2 in the Northwest suburbs.

The cookie sale is one of the largest fund-raising projects of the Girl Scouts. Five types of cookies will be available this year and the delivery date is the week of April 3.

I firmly believe that the choice of what a person eats should be up to the individual and his doctor and that it is the consumer's right to know what he is getting. Legislation which prevents the consumer from knowing is hardly in the tradition of the fundamental freedoms of our country.

Schaumburg seeks upset

Prospect unit hopes to make it official

Playing out the schedule, to the dismay of five out of six teams, has become merely a formality in South Division basketball in the Mid-Suburban League.

Prospect all but formally clinched the title last weekend with pressure wins over its closest chasers, Conant and Elk Grove, so about all the South teams can shoot for in their last three division games is pride and sharpening up for the Regional tournament playoffs. The Knight clincher is expected to come tonight.

One division game tonight should be an even match — Conant at Forest View. In the other two, Prospect should have no trouble with Schaumburg, nor should Elk Grove with Glenbard North.

Prospect now has the best defensive record in the South, having allowed two less points than Conant. Elk Grove has scored the most MSL points of any South squad, two more than Forest View.

More on Friday's matchups:

CONANT AT FOREST VIEW

Even though both clubs appear to be out of the running, this is an intriguing matchup.

It figures to be much more interesting than the first time the two teams met just before the holidays. Conant made its Christmas merrier and issued a lump of coal to the Falcons, whipping them 57-36.

But if that was the last time you saw Forest View's cagers in action, you'd hardly recognize them now. The Falcons of coach Ted Wissen have been running more, getting more good shots, and scoring much more. With a deliberate, uncertain offense, they were the lowest-scoring team in the conference in losing four of their first five.

Since then, Forest View has won five straight MSL games with scoring totals of 70, 75, 85, 69 and 61. What a difference a few weeks makes.

Tom Mueller, 6-foot guard, has been hot as a firecracker from outside during that time. He has averaged 20 a game for the last six contests in leading the resurgence. Rick Haaning, 6-foot-4 center, has remained a steady scorer in the 12-to-15-point range.

Don Woodsma, the team's leading scorer and seventh in the MSL last year with a 16-point overall average, hasn't been the same since a severe ankle injury in December. But the 6-foot-4 forward is back playing most of the time, helps on the boards, and scored 14 last week for his best effort since being injured.

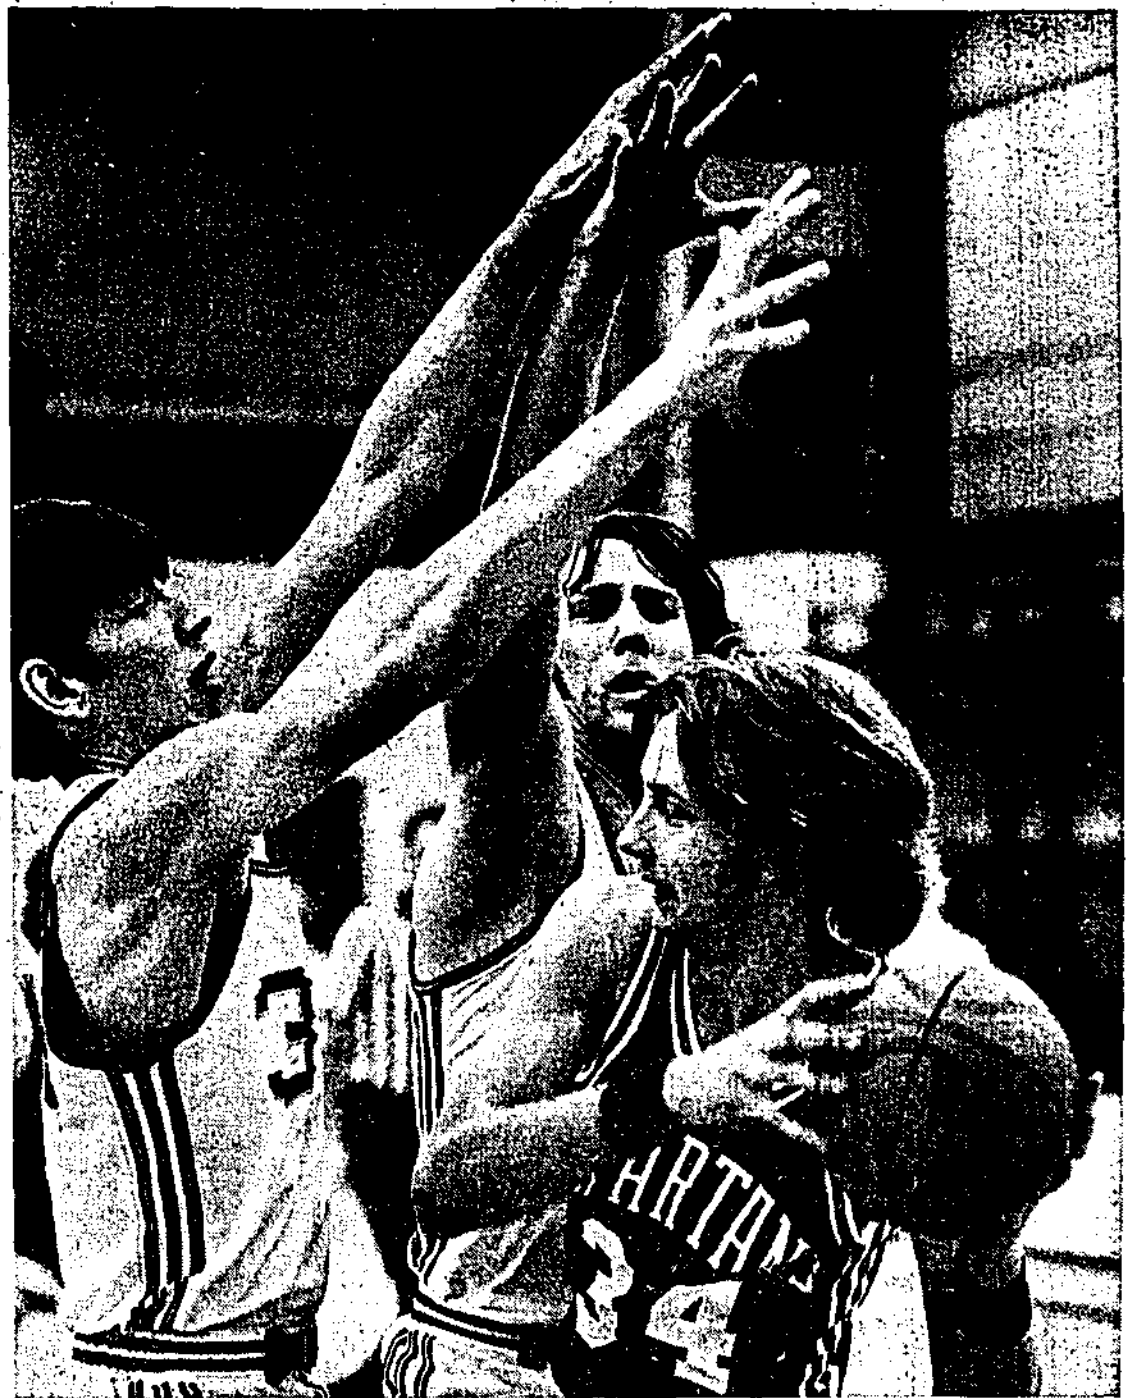

"We're not going to change anything," says Wissen. "We just hope to do a better job on Conant this time. They're physical and we'll have to hold them off the boards."

"We just hope to win as many as we can now and then have a good tournament."

Conant will go with the same lineup it used last week in losing 68-56 to Prospect — a front line of Steve Irion, Dave Sutherland and Roger Sander, all with good size, and Mike Alkocis and Dick Southworth at guards.

"If we need more defense we can always put in (Neal) Thompson and (Jim) Brown at guard and if we need

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

IF YOU BOWL in a league, you probably roll about 100 games each season.

Keep that number in mind.

It's also a pretty safe bet that you have some excuses ready whenever you have a bad game.

It was just the other day, when I was wrapping up another frustrating series, that I made the mistake of complaining about fatigue to someone following in the next league at Beverly Lanes.

"That didn't work. 'Nobody should be tired after just three games,' he said. 'Did you hear about that bowler from Rockford? Now, there was somebody who really was tired.'"

When somebody mentions Rockford, Ill., these days, I usually think of that charming little Janet Lynn, who brightened the Winter Olympics with her figure skating and her smile.

But there was another interesting story involving a Rockford resident late last year, a story about a bowler, or as some people called him, a nut.

It's a story that should make you think twice before you complain about fatigue after a simple three-game set in your weekly bowling league.

John Falzone is a 30-year-old family man. He's a good bowler, averaging in the 180s. One day he read about a bowling marathon record set in 1971 by Richard Dewey of Kansas City.

Dewey had bowled 1,220 games without stopping in an effort to raise money to keep the Kansas City Philharmonic in Kansas City. The orchestra played during Dewey's last few games, and he seemed to get a lift and performed a few dance steps between each roll. He helped raise more than $3,000.

The wheels started turning. Falzone wondered if he could roll that many games. It didn't take him long to decide.

"First, I wanted to break the marathon bowling record," he recalls, "and second, I figured it was a great way to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy fund."

Falzone felt a marathon attempt would be a good tie-in with Jerry Lewis' annual Muscular Dystrophy telethon. After checking with most of the centers in northern Illinois, who thought the idea had enough merit to donate the proceeds of one of their lanes all during his stint, Falzone went ahead with the idea.

"I didn't know what to expect," he admits. "I did some running and a lot of swimming to get into shape, but that was the extent of my training."

Falzone started bowling righthanded and after 30 games his thumb split open. He bowled the next 270 games with his left hand until it was battered and bruised.

The Rockford bowler had set some goals. He wanted to roll 400 games in the first 24 hours. After the first 24 hours he had bowled 481 games and thought he could beat Dewey's marathon record by 100 games.

"But I didn't fully realize the amount of physical strain. You can't explain the strain unless you try it, but the ball gets heavier and heavier as you bend over for all those hours."

Rest periods were allowed, a few minutes after sets of games. In the beginning it was a short break after every 40 games. Then as things got tougher, the breaks came after a lesser number of games.

Dr. Ken Skaar, a bowler and friend of Falzone, attended him throughout the marathon, and said that at least once, and probably a few other times, John fell asleep standing up.

Following a short rest period after 700 games, Falzone attempted to roll a ball but found his arms wouldn't move. He kicked the ball down, and kept kicking it down until a hand vibrator got his arms working again.

Falzone did not sit down to roll any balls. He rolled, pushed or shoved except for the times he kicked the ball. It was the kicking that caused him the most problems. "My feet hurt so bad I could hardly stand up," he recalls. "If it wasn't for the feet, I think I could have gone on for another 24 hours."

Falzone obviously wasn't that interested in his scores. He averaged far from his 180 mark, shot many games in the 150s, and also many under 100.

"In the wee hours of the morning," John said, "there were only eight people watching but as I came down the home stretch bearing the record, almost 300 people jammed behind the lane I was bowling on, urging me to keep going."

"When I broke the record, I got a big mental and even a physical lift and I seriously thought of going on for another 24 hours to break the time record. I looked over at my wife. She looked worried and was crying and then Dr. Skaar told me to quit, too, so I evened it out to 1,230 games and packed it in."

"On the doctor's advice I went home, got into the tub for 45 minutes and fell asleep three times while I was soaking."

Falzone had bowled 1,230 games in 74 hours and seven minutes. It was like putting a couple years of bowling into a long weekend.

He went to sleep for five hours, then appeared on TV asking bowlers to donate a penny for each game he had rolled. The plea brought in almost $2,000 and that plus the money raised at the bowling centers added up to more than $12,000.

Was it worth the effort?

"I knew I'd do it again when I saw the Muscular Dystrophy poster girl smiling up at me," Falzone said. "Knocking down 63,000 bowling pins is a cheap price for a smile like that."

STATE RUNNERUP. Schaumburg High School finished second last weekend in the first state bowling tournament for girls. Making up the powerful entry were (back row, from left) Coach Sharon Niekamp, Tina Bie-

Arlington idle; Fremd, Meadows to host North Division contests

Things still haven't quite reached the dull stage in the Mid-Suburban League's North Division basketball race, thanks to Wheeling.

The Wildcats, who refused to be counted out by toppling Arlington last Friday for the Cardinals' only league loss, can stay one game behind by doing the expected tonight — defeating heavy underdog Rolling Meadows.

The only other North game has Hersey at Fremd. The Huskies can stay two games out if they can duplicate an earlier win over the Vikings, who are always dangerous, especially on their home floor.

Arlington gets to sit back and watch its pursuers square off, hoping one will be upset. The Cards earned the night off by trouncing Palatine Tuesday night and jacking their lead to a game and a half.

Details on tonight's two contests:

HERSEY AT FREMD

Perhaps the shoe is on the other foot this time around.

At least Fremd coach Leon Kasubosko would like to think it is.

Last time around the Vikings approached their contest with the Huskies concerned chiefly with a method of holding down Dave Corzine. The towering junior had hit for 25, then 33 and then a staggering 48 points in the three conference games leading up to Fremd.

Although Corzine remains a mighty scoring threat every time he steps foot on a court, another junior has posted some pretty impressive offensive figures in his last two outings now and it should be Hersey's turn at taking note.

Doug Mize, a 6-4 youngster who wasn't even listed with the Fremd varsity when the season commenced, has plunked in 27 and 29 tallies his last couple of times out and the Huskies will probably have to take some extra measures to contain him.

"I think it was just a matter of time before Doug started breaking loose," Kasubosko commented. "He's got the natural tools, like strength, great jumping ability and an instinctive desire to go toward the basket."

Teaming with burly 6-6 Larry Coughlin, Mize gives the Vikes plenty of muscle power under the bucket, a necessary ingredient if the team hopes to hold Corzine down once more. He was limited to a sub-par (for him) 17 in the last meeting and Kasubosko would be pleased with that kind of a display again.

"We finished within five points of them last time and I'm convinced we can make it even more interesting now if our defense holds up as well as it did then. I know Hersey's been coming on strong

Fan's Forum

HOPING FOR PLAYOFF APPROVAL

Paul Logan:

I read with interest your recent column dealing with the possibility of a state playoff for high school football. I think it is a shame that so many principals seem to be against the idea. There is a chance it may be approved (the voting, I believe, is in progress right now) but I'm afraid the men with the power will veto it.

It seems the foremost reason the principals are against the idea is what they feel is overemphasis on this sport. But you never hear anyone saying all the other high school sports are overemphasized even though they have had state playoffs for years. Besides, just one team from each conference would be involved (at the most, three from this whole area including Des Plaines) and even they would probably play just one or two extra games. And this would not matter anyway since the season would start a week earlier. Only a very small fraction of boys would find the football playoffs interfering with participation in winter sports.

I have asked many friends who are prep fans what they think of the proposal and out of about 25 or 30 people, every single one was in favor. The fans (who are really the ones who foot the bills for athletic programs through taxes and admission prices) deserve the playoff and so do players and coaches.

MORE ON NEW RULE...

Dear Fans Forum:

I read the letter on the designated pinch hitter last week with interest because I think the idea is lousy. I like it when the pitcher comes up. Do you walk the guy ahead of him? Do you have the pitcher bunt? Can he bunt? Do you leave him in or take him out?

What will we have now? Some guy who isn't even good enough to get into the starting lineup standing up there and flailing away at the ball. If you want to see batting practice come out early.

Dear Herald:

The new rule is absurd if for no other reason that one league is using it and the

Fremd, Hersey league contest on radio tonight

"This makes it complete. We've hit all the schools."

That was the way WMM-FM Sports Director Dick Thomas announced the station's next choice for its Friday night basketball broadcasts.

"We set out at the beginning of the year to cover every area Mid-Suburban League school at least once," Thomas said, "and Friday we'll work Fremd's home game with Hersey. This will give us our first chance to see the Vikings of Fremd."

WMM-FM plans three more Friday night broadcasts and then coverage of the important Mid-Suburban League championship on Tuesday, Feb. 27.

Thomas and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will be at the 92.7 FM microphone at Fremd High School Friday at eight o'clock.

Spoiler role for St. Viator

Tonight's Marist at St. Viator basketball game is nothing more than another line on the schedule for the Lions, but for the visiting Redskins it's much more than that.

Coch Ed Molitor's visitors are in the thick of a red-hot scramble for the Suburban Catholic Conference East Division title. Their 9-3 record ties them for first place at the moment with Notre Dame, while Holy Cross and Carmel trail by just a game.

So, as if Marist weren't tough enough to contend with anyhow, St. Viator must meet a team tonight for which victory is very important.

The Lions, of course, haven't been in the race since about its second weekend. After being whipped last weekend by the other co-leader, Notre Dame (60-36) and St. Joseph (64-55), St. Viator has lost five in a row, nine of its last 10, and is 3-15 for the season with just one conference win.

As far as the Lions are concerned, the best thing that can be said about this season is that only two more conference games remain after tonight and one will be against St. Francis de Sales, the only SCC team Viator has defeated.

It's getting repetitious, but a point famine continues to be the same old problem for the Lions. They still aren't averaging 50 a game although their defense has been respectable. No Lion has scored more than 14 in the last four games and only two have topped 20 for any game all season.

In spite of all this, Molitor says his Redskins "are taking this game seriously . . . no doubt about it. St. Viator can be tough any time, especially in their gym. (Dave) Hutchison did a good job against us the first time (scoring 14 points)."

Marist boasts the leading scorer in the league, Russ Radz, a 6-4 forward who is averaging 19 points and a dozen rebounds per outing. He is that much better because of Kevin Howard, a 6-8 center pulling down about 15 rebounds a game.

Prospect pads girls bowling lead with win

Prospect High School increased its lead this week in the Mid-Suburban League girls bowling competition.

The Knights rolled past Fremd 7-1 and now own a lead of 2½ points in the little chase which concludes with two more Tuesdays of bowling.

In other action at Rolling Meadows Bowl, second place Forest View topped Rolling Meadows 5-3, Arlington handled Glenbard North 6½-½, and state runnerup Schaumburg battled Conant a 4-4 deadlock.

The schedule next Tuesday matches Conant vs. Prospect, Forest View vs. Arlington, Schaumburg vs. Glenbard North, and Fremd vs. Rolling Meadows.

Forest View	23½	16½	20070

Fan's Forum

other isn't. When the World Series comes around, those American League pitchers will be even more of an automatic out than they are now. Can you imagine not swinging a bat for an entire season and then coming up to bat in a crucial World Series situation and having to hit for yourself. What baseball needs is a new commissioner who would either make both leagues use the same rule or junk it entirely.

Robert Cassidy
Mount Prospect

RESTRUCTURE BASEBALL

Dear Fans Forum:

Whether or not the designated pinch hitter rule will work or not I don't know. I like the idea but I still think baseball needs to restructure itself geographically before it starts changing the rules. That would give the game a real shot in the arm.

It's absolutely absurd for the Cubs and White Sox not to play each other in a series during the summer. Just as it is ridiculous that the New York Mets don't play the Yankees or that the Oakland Athletics don't play the Giants and Dodgers.

Baseball looks for changes but then continues to pass up the most logical one.

Ray Mirron

TOO EARLY FOR PRAISE

Dear Fans Forum:

Everybody seems to be praising the Bears and (Abe) Gibron for the pro draft. Isn't it a little early? Remember he passed up a tremendous running back and a Chicago boy in Otis Armstrong, a guy who really wanted to play for the Bears and who would have put out 110 per cent. What are the chances that the running back they did get from New England, Carl Garrett, will ever put out even 75 per cent?

Garrett is a front-runner, a guy who will put out if things are going well. I can't imagine him being too pleased at watching Bobby Douglass carry the ball so much and just from reading about their personalities, I see problems developing between these two.

I remember the glowing press on the "sleeper" pick the Bears got when they picked Mike Hull No. 1 a few years ago. Hull is still sleeping, and so are the Bears.

ELK GROVE ANOTHER HOCKEY ASSOCIATION

Elk Grove's Midgets dominated their game against Schaumburg and breezed to an 11-1 victory at the Polar Dome. Rob Goetz led the way with a three-goal hat trick. Larry Mitsch and Ron Cierkier recorded two goals apiece, and also putting the puck in the net were Jim Santurik, Mark Christensen and Bob Brun. The same boys figured in assists as well as Bill Haispenny, Bob Morita, Bob Lamminta, Tom Baker, Mark Rodeth and Mike Tucker. Next Polar Dome game for the Midgets will be Tuesday, Feb. 13 against Tri-Cities at 7:30.

In state tournament play, the Elk Grove Squirts and Pee Wees won to join the Bantams and Midgets in the quarterfinals. The Squirts defeated Oak Lawn 2-1. The Pee Wees were 2-0 winners over Naperville and will play Friday, Feb. 9 at 9:15 at Downers Grove.

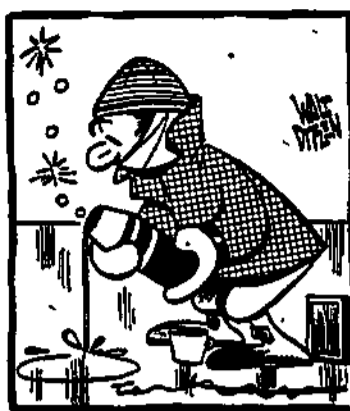

The Bantams, who defeated Franklin Park 7-2, will play at Joliet this Sunday at 9:15 a.m. The Midgets will take on Westmont Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Polar Dome. They shut out Hoffman Estates 4-0.

The Juveniles played a fine game but weakened in the final period and dropped a 2-3 decision to Joliet.

Ford offers credit card plan

Northwest Lincoln-Mercury, Inc., 1200 E. Golf Road, Schaumburg, has joined a Ford Motor Company program that offers the first national credit card plan for dealership service customers.

The plan makes credit card purchases at participating Lincoln-Mercury dealerships available to anyone who holds any of five major credit cards — Master Charge, BankAmericard, American Express, Diners Club and Carte Blanche.

Paul J. Zimmerman, vice-president of Northwest Lincoln-Mercury, Inc., said under the program his dealership will honor all five cards for all parts and service transactions.

"Credit card shopping has become a way of life with today's fast-moving consumers," Zimmerman said. "About 40 per cent of all U. S. families hold one or more of these five cards. Many people have come to expect this convenience from retailers — especially women who are now frequent service customers at our dealership."

The credit plan announcement falls under a continuing service improvement program launched last fall by Ford Motor Company and its dealers. Having as its goal and theme, "No Unhappy Owners," the program also includes a written guarantee on repairs to both new and used cars, and prizes for dealership mechanics who turn out high quality work.

GAME RESULTS

Team	W	L	T
Zarko	4	4	3
Macech	4	4	3

(Editor's note: Please include first names in reports).

Zarko scored four goals to lead the Flames to a 6-0 shutout of the Leafs. Burley and Byrnes added a goal each as the winners scored twice in each period.

The Rangers topped the Kings 5-2, getting one goal apiece from Marquette, Anderson, Hollingsworth, Pratt and Geox. The Rangers had a 5-0 lead before the Kings scored.

The Flames were 7-3 victors over the Kings after taking a 4-1 lead into the final period. Zarko had a three-goal hat trick and Fredrickson added two goals. Iverson and Miller each scored once for the Flames. Shanley had two of the Kings' goals and Brush one.

The Leafs defeated the Kings 4-1 after spoiling the Kings' first goal, again by Shanley. Leafs Glazowski, Pritchett, Rodgers and Passch then put the puck in the net.

The Flames beat the Oilers 4-2. They led 2-0 after the first period before the Oilers cut it to 3-2 after two. Zarko, Byrnes, Clark and Miller scored for the winners and Byrnes and Atkinson for the losers.

Rolling Meadows romped to a 7-0 shutout over Schaumburg as Simon led the way with a three-goal hat trick. Perkins, Smith, Atkinson and Kitcham had the other goals.

Addison had no trouble with Schaumburg, breezing to a 10-0 win. Another shutout was Broadview's 3-0 victory over Rolling Meadows after a scoreless first period.

The Bruins shut out the Sabres 4-0 with three goals in the second period and one in the third. Cox scored twice and Bonfield and Sweeney once each.

In still another shutout it was the Saints over the Jets 3-0. Again all goals came after the first period. Hendry scored twice and Sanford once.

The Penguins whipped the Wings 7-3. The winners ran up a 4-1 lead in the first period, saw it cut to 4-3, then put home three more scores. Toolman, Voss and Lee each tallied twice for the Penguins and Peterson had the other goal. Herbrick had two goals for the Wings and Kane one.

The Penguins also won over the Flyers, 3-1, snapping a 1-1 tie in the final period. Peterson had two of the Penguins' scores and Garrow the other. Veray averted a shutout for the Flyers.

The North Stars were 6-3 winners over the Flyers. The winners had leads of 3-0 and 4-1 before the Flyers cut the deficit to one, only to have the North Stars score the last two goals. Riendeau paced the victors with two goals and Ralandino, Santoro, Kussman and Fugitt each scored one. Dolan, Rodei and Wright had the Flyers' goals.

Mike Miller and Scott Feige will be the guards, Steve Heldt and Gary Pemberton the forwards and Dave Schmitt at center. Chuck Neary, Don Spry and Don Lewan will be ready to come in if needed. "If they come in like they have been, it will be great," added Bechtold, referring to the trio's clutch performance against Elgin.

Harper, presently enjoying his second three-game winning streak of the season, will be at Triton on Saturday. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

"I think the team is starting to believe in our defense," said Bechtold, referring to the man-to-man that demolished Elgin earlier in the week. "I'm happy with it. We're going to try it from the start. (The Hawks switched to it after trailing by 14 and ended up winning 79-65 against Elgin)."

Harper can help decide Skyway basketball race

"It's not over yet," said Roger Bechtold, Harper's coach, after being reminded that next week will determine the winner of the Skyway Conference.

The Hawks, 7-4 in the league and 9-13 overall, will have a lot to say about who will wear the crown. Two of the three teams they'll play appear to have a shot at overtaking frontrunning Lake County (10-1)—Waubensee (9-2) and Triton (7-3).

Old Buckeyes Legendary

Ohio State's legendary basketball team of the three years spanning 1960-62 — featuring such superstars as Jerry Lucas, John Havlicek and Larry Siegfried — still holds the record for most consecutive conference victories with 27 in a row. No other team in modern Big Ten history has come close to that record.

Cougars visit Falcons in South action more scoring we can use (Tracy) Robertson at forward," said coach Dick Redlinger.

"The thing that worries us most about Forest View is cutting off Mueller. He really has a hot hand right now." The Cougars will probably employ a zone defense as usual, coming out after Tom.

Redlinger felt that Southworth and Irion (who scored 20 points) did fine jobs against Prospect. Sander, a fierce rebounder, and Sutherland, a fine shooter, are also counted on for scoring.

"Our one goal now is the regional," admitted Redlinger. "Every game should be geared toward that. We've still got to correct a lot of mistakes."

An interesting fact about this tussle is that Forest View is second in scoring and Conant second in defense in the Division — by a mere two points in each case. Each will be trying to get the other to play its style.

SCHAUMBURG AT PROSPECT

Looking for the kill, Prospect won't hesitate to put the clamps on their third successive South Division title tonight against Schaumburg. "We want to clinch it as soon as we can," Knight coach Bill Slayton said, not caring for a race to the wire.

The Knights, having earned at least a tie for honors, must win one of their final three league games to gain the undisputed trophy.

"We're not going to overlook anybody," Slayton said in sizing up two-time winner Schaumburg. "We had a lot of trouble in the first half the last time we saw them."

"We couldn't keep (Art) Abraham from penetrating our defense," Slayton remembered. "We now that (trent) Tucker is their best scorer and if he has a night with (Ilay) Kralicek (21 points vs. Glenbard North), we could be in for a long, difficult night."

Slayton will send his regular lineup against the Saxons with the reservation that both Gary Davis and Brian Groth will see an abundance of playing time. "These two have really helped us by coming off the bench," Slayton said.

"Don't get me wrong. We're not experimenting or anything like that. We can't afford to do that until we win that thing. That was the only goal we made this season and until we reach it, we're just going to sharpen our normal game — nothing fancy."

The foremost concern for Schaumburg, if it is to make tonight's game interesting, is to hold down the Knights' dazzling 6-9 center Tom Bergen. Not stop him completely. Hardly anyone can do that.

Bergen burned the Saxons with one of his best nights ever, 36 points, the last time the teams met just after the holiday break. Prospect methodically romped to an 80-53 victory in that one despite fine games by the Saxons' Kralicek and Tucker, who scored 16 apiece.

Schaumburg came to life in the fourth quarter last Friday against Glenbard North, cutting a 17-point deficit down to within halting distance, but the Panthers notched their first conference victory, 61-54. The Saxons have won just two against eight losses in MSL play (they're 4-11 overall) and are just trying to stay ahead of Glenbard and out of the south Division cellar.

Kralicek's 21-point outburst, best total of his career, lends hope for the Saxons but they must get help from others. Aside from improving Kralicek, average about 15 a game for his last four outings, no other Schaumburg player has scored more than a dozen points since that Prospect matchup nine games ago.

GLENBARD NORTH AT ELK GROVE

Fans probably should not be surprised if the Grenadiers and Panthers decide beforehand to make their game only three quarters long.

Final periods have not been particularly kind to either Bill Parmentier and his hosting charges or Terry True's GBN bunch this season. Last week, as an example, the Grens led Prospect from beginning to near end before dropping a 51-50 heartbreaker to the Knights.

There have been several other contests finishing up the same way for Elk Grove, most notably their setback at Conant a number of weeks back. Not one of their five conference losses have been by more than 10 points.

While the Grove will be trying to rebound from a pair of setbacks last weekend that eliminated them from the South Division chase, the Panthers are coming off their first triumph along the conference trail but True is still concerned about the fourth period blahs.

"A couple of weeks ago I thought we gave Forest View a great game for three quarters and then ran totally out of steam. And even in beating Schaumburg last week we were slipping toward the end. Only our biggest margin of the season . . . about 17-18 points . . . prevented them from catching us in the fourth period."

True credits a large portion of the recent Panther upswing to the improved play of his 6-6 junior center Mitch Paine.

"I had high hopes for him before the season but he really didn't start off very well. We even dropped him to the jayvees for a while.

"I think the turning point might have been his game against (Dave) Corzine," True continued. "He played well that night and it boosted his confidence. He's helped us ever since."

Parmentier, who saw the Glenbard-Falcon match, expresses his concern. "There's been a great amount of improvement in this GBN club since we last played them. We'll have to play defense just as well and hit the boards just as hard as we did last time if we want to stop them again."

The Panthers were stopped 70-41 by Elk Grove last time but Parmentier's Lub was healthy then. "We've got Bill (Butler) on the mend now and hopefully Bob (Prince) will be back at full strength by the weekend. Otherwise, we could be in for more trouble."

Butler, who absorbed a badly sprained ankle several weeks ago has been used sparingly ever since. Prince came down with the flu last weekend and saw only limited action. As of Tuesday, he was still not back in school and Parmentier was beginning to fret a bit.

"The conference race is over for us now but I'd still like to see us pick up some momentum in time for the regionals. So far the kids have been great about shaking off losses and coming back tough and we're definitely going to need some more of that kind of attitude after last weekend's discouraging results."

Although the Grove mentor was obviously displeased with those back-to-back setbacks at Forest View and Prospect it was the verdicts rather than the methods he was down on.

"Saturday, especially, we played great basketball all the way through. Our shortcomings in the fourth quarter, like three successive turnovers after not losing the ball once earlier, and missing a couple of crucial layups cost us the game but we did an awful lot of things right before that."

Wildcats swim to win

Mat Zukowski joined Bill Modica in leading Wheeling against visiting Libertyville Wednesday.

Zukowski and Modica combined for four individual wins and helped capture a relay in routing the Wildcats, 61-34.

Zukowski took the 200 (2:04.7) and 400 (4:31.0) freestyles and Modica came through in the individual medley (2:23.6) and the 100 free (54.6). Then anchorman Modica and double win buddy joined Steve Friedenberg and Mike Hyde in winning the 400 free relay (3:49.7).

Paul Lindquist and George Wurtz rounded out the individual firsts in the 50 free (21.5) and diving (180.80), respectively.

The medley relay — Larry Slad, Ken

Bergman, Lindquist and Hyde — started the meet off right with the first triumph (2:04.7) which helped lead to Wheeling's 10th win in 12 tries.

Taking three seconds were Bergman in the 50 free (24.9), Ed Wilkosz in the butterfly (1:11.0) and Slad in the backstroke (1:08.8).

Posting six thirds were Wilkosz in the individual medley (2:38.8), Friedenberg in diving (147.55), George Johnson in the butterfly (1:11.0), Hyde in the 100 free (56.7), Bergman in the backstroke (1:09.1) and Lindquist in the breaststroke (1:16.6).

Victories in the 50 (20.3) and 100 (57.8) freestyles by Dan Woodruff paced the young Wildcats to a 54-41 win.

Hoffman Lanes widens lead

Hoffman Lanes, led by Ted Gelsersbach and Jim Garvos, took five points from Ten Pin Bowl to widen its lead to seven points in the Paddock Classic Junior Traveling League.

Gelsersbach rolled a 569 series while Garvos raised his league-leading average to 181 with a 565 series. High for Ten Pin was Brad Zent with a 504 series.

Striker Lanes took seven points from Beverly Lanes. Pat Fiddick was high for Striker with a 538. Kim Christenson was high for Beverly with a 406 while Larry Pelfer had a 492 for Beverly.

Rolling Meadows Bowl captured five points from Spencer's Lanes. Dan Jordan led the Rolling Meadows team with a 569 series and Dave Thorntons helped Rolling Meadows with a 494. Tops for Spencer's was Dennis Gordon with a 470.

Heading the list of 200 games was Gelsersbach (201, 200), Garvos (218), Jordan (203) and Fiddick (202).

Illini hike tickets

The University of Illinois athletic department recently announced it intends to raise football tickets $1 for the 1973 season.

Single game tickets will sell for $7 each and season tickets for the six home games are priced at $42.

An Illini spokesman said most Big Ten schools will charge those prices next fall.

Augie power?

Quick quiz: The last college basketball team to score just 49 points over two games but still win both?

It's Little Augustana College from downstate, a small college power. And they did it this year.

Recently, Augustana defeated Carthage, 37-34. Then it became involved in a real lulu, defeating Carroll College of Wisconsin, 12-6. That's right, 12-6!

Last year, Augustana thumped Carroll 106-63 and losing coach Ed Fleener was determined his club wouldn't be humiliated again.

The two wins enabled Augustana to move into third place of the United Press International small college poll.

Roller Derby Monday

The Mount Prospect Lions Club will sponsor a game Monday night between the local Pioneers and Hawks. Game is 7 p.m. at Prospect High School.

Tickets are $4 and can be purchased from any Lions Club member or at Sammy Skobel's, 34 S. Main St. in Mount Prospect.

Right sweeps Hinsdale

Right Club of Schaumburg recently recorded a two-match sweep over the Hinsdale Racquet Club during indoor tennis competition.

Right's Bruce Williams and Larry Pauly won over Jack Harrey and Chris Kolaitis, 8-2.

In exhibition, Right's Jim Hagedorn and Jim Bottalla lost, 8-6.

Zikes on ABC ballot

Les Zikes, manager of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, recently polled 12 votes on the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame ballot.

Ninety-five votes are required for installation into the 53-member Hall. Zikes will be eligible again next year.

Only one bowler, Ray Bluth of St. Louis, received the necessary vote call this year. He polled 102 votes. Complete ballot tabulations follow.

Bluth, 102; Dick Hoover, Akron, 74; Billy Welu, Houston, 69; Tom Hennessey, St. Louis 40; Lee Jougard, San Diego, 38; Harry Smith, Rochester, 36; Tony Lindemann, Detroit, 33; Pat Patterson, St. Louis, 29; Billy Golembiewski, Detroit 28; Glenn Allison, Los Angeles, 13; Zikes 12; Harry Lippe, Chicago, 6; Peter Carter, San Diego, 5; and Don Ellis, Houston, 4.

CBA's sign pro pacts

Two players of the Continental Basketball Association recently took off for greener pastures, one heading into NBA territory and the other going ABA.

George Gervin of the CBA's Pontiac, Mich., franchise signed a fat pact with the ABA Virginia Squires. Justus Thigpen, formerly of the Flint, Mich., club, has been picked up by the Detroit Pistons.

Although the CBA has proven a worthy developer of talent for the basketball's big leagues, attendance continues to dwindle, posing a serious threat to the league's future existence.

For instance, last Sunday's game between Lake County and Decatur was seen by only 61 fans. The previous weekend, Lake County had a paid attendance of 65.

Meyers at Arlington

Jack P. Meyers, one of thoroughbred racing's most highly respected officials, has been named racing secretary and handicapper for the 1973 Arlington Park season.

Meyers brings 35 years experience to his new post after leaving Hollywood Park in California where he has handled similar duties for 12 years.

"Getting horses for Arlington will be my first line of business and I think with my contacts in California and Florida, I can get some good stables," said Meyers.

Conference mat tourneys highlight weekend action

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Defense is the name of the wrestling game this weekend as all area grappling teams prepare for conference tournament action.

Waukegan, Niles and Arlington Heights are the sites of league gatherings involving local mat groups tonight and tomorrow and in all three last year's loop winner is favored to retain their title.

Here's the rundown:

WAUKEGAN

With freshly received news of their national ranking to boost them along, Harper's mat game is a solid favorite to turn back Triton and the rest of the bunch at the Skyway Conference Tournament tomorrow.

The meet will begin at 10 a.m. and run right through, with finals pegged for approximately 6 to 7 p.m. at the National Guard Armory on Glen Flora Ave. in Waukegan.

The Hawks, under the direction of Ron Bessmer, will take a 21-1 dual meet record into the action and are expected to annex a number of individual titles, fending off mostly Triton entries in the finals.

Bessmer's group also won it all last year and they gained the inside track this time around by again knocking off all the loop competition in head-to-head combat. They have to also be encouraged after mid-season rankings by the National Junior College Athletic Association last week placed them in the No. 4 slot behind North Iowa, Middlesex (N.J.) and Bismarck (N.D.) on the list of top junior college wrestling teams around the country.

NILES

Carmel out of Mundelein is a heavy favorite to maintain its grip on the Suburban Catholic League crown at Notre Dame High School in Niles this weekend.

But that will not stop St. Vitor, among others, make a rush at several individual titles deemed up for grabs. John Zid's Lions are one of a trio of clubs rated just a notch below the state-bound Corsairs and they, in turn, will be hoping to at least repeat as the number two team in the loop.

The SCC tournament will also be run through on one day — tomorrow — with the opening session slated for 10 a.m., a second round scheduled for 1 p.m., the wrestlingbacks kicking off at 6 p.m. and finals estimated for around 8 p.m. at the Dempster Street school.

The hosting Dons along with the Crusaders will be giving Vitor the most trouble for that No. 2 finish.

The only defending Lion champion is Mike Mooney, going at 155, but St. Vitor will also have excellent chances at 98 in Tim Marwitz, 126 in brother Jim Marwitz, 138 in Dave Nosicka and heavyweight with Ralph Bosch.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Hersey has won the last two Mid-Suburban League titles and figures to make the third time the charmer beginning this evening when that loop tournament commences at Arlington High on Euclid Ave. at 7 p.m.

Rated to have the best shots at upsetting the Huskies are Conant, Forest View and Wheeling although individual talent is diversified enough to put just about everybody in the running.

There will be 48 preliminary bouts and 48 more quarterfinal contests tonight with semifinals and wrestlingbacks set to begin at noon tomorrow in preparation for the championship round at 7 p.m. Saturday. Hosting coach Jack Cullip notes that four mats will be used for the initial rounds to speed up the action, a departure from the usual three-ring affair.

Scoring at the MSL tournament will award 10 points for a first place finish, seven for second, four for third and two for fourth. Additionally, advancement points will be awarded after all bouts except the title and third-place clashes and bonus points will be added in for pins, default and forfeit wins with an extra half point netted on decisions of 10 points or more.

There are three returning champions — Schaumburg's Gary Evans at 105, Elk Grove's Craig Mann at 119 and Kevin Pancratz of the Huskies at heavyweight.

Other top entries include Hersey's Joe Rizza at 98 and Kurt Weisenborn at 105, John Beck of the Cougars and Rick Morris of the Greys at 126, Fremd's John Lynch at 132 and Dave Motta at 119, Wheeling's Kent Lewis at 138 and Ken Smith at 155, Steve Frankovic of the Cards at 167 and Jeff Reinhard of Hersey at 185.

The 112 and 145 divisions are very much up for grabs. At 145 pounds there could be no less than eight grapplers in the running with winning conference records.

GAMES BY DATE, FEB. 11

St. Thomas at St. Hubert

St. Anne at St. Colette

St. Emily at St. James

St. Raymond at St. Alphonsus

Our Lady of Wayside at St. Theresa

For the third week in succession, the St. Raymond Saints had victories at all levels. The eighth grade sent every team member into the game and everyone scored in a 79-31 outburst against St. James.

Jack W. H. L. Tom Martindale and Steve Wilkinson were high-point men while Lou Ciro and Joe Kellner nabbed numerous rebounds. The seventh graders had a fight on their hands against a very talented St. James team (Iban, Tumlinson, Jones, Carley and Rosinski) came through with enough points to take St. James 46-31 in an exciting contest. The sixth grade Saints ran their Sunday record to 10-1 by running past St. James 20-13 Jim Apuzzo and Bob Magnus were high pointers while the defensive work of Chip Cernopik, Kevin Keady and Rob Mann kept the game in control all the way.

ST. ALPHONSUS VS. ST. THOMAS

The St. Colette Tigers made a clean sweep of three games against St. Thomas in action last Sunday on the Trojan home court. In the eighth grade contest, both teams kept a point per shot pace during the first minutes of play until St. Colette gained a five-point edge, ending the quarter 15-13. From then on the Tigers gradually increased their lead making the final decision 54-41 and capturing their seventh conference win. St. Colette put team effort into this game with players contributing to the score. Jeff Schrock once again led his team with 18 points followed by Scott Sander's sharp-shooting that netted 11 and Jack Maccholi who tallied 10. Hamill was high for St. Thomas with 15. The seventh grade game was close from start to finish, resulting in St. Colette's first win of the season in a big upset. St. Theresa leading the conference in the North Division kept their regular starters out of the game until the fourth quarter with less than two minutes left on the clock. The score was then 16-14 in St. Colette's favor but the Trojans failed to connect on their shot and only made one free-throw as time ran out making the final score, 36-15. Keith Zurawski paced St. Colette's sixth graders with 10 points defeating St. Theresa, 24-17. It was the seventh grade contest that saw three players (St. Colette) score in double figures.

SEVENTH-GRADE ST. THOMAS

Seventh-grade forward Kevin Weaver of the host school won the St. Theresa conference tournament at Palatine High School. Weaver scored a 12-10 victory over a taller Wade McKinstry during halftime of the St. Theresa-St. Colette game.

DISTRICT IS TOURNAMENT

The Plum Grove Chargers advanced to the finals of the 16th annual District 12 basketball tournament at Carl Sandburg Junior High in Rolling Meadows. The Chargers will meet the winner of the St. Thomas-MacArthur game for the title at 3 p.m. Saturday. Plum Grove has had an easy time in its two tournament games. In the opening round the Chargers stopped St. Theresa 64-31 behind a 19-point effort by Mike Hildagard. Theresa tried pressing the Chargers, but guard Dale Halberg scored his team's first five points as Plum Grove moved to a 17-0 first-quarter lead. The Chargers hit 12 of 17 from the field in the first half for a 30-17 lead. Halberg hit 10 points and guard Dale Kukla added 10. Plum Grove battled Carl Sandburg's Wildcats in semi-final action. Sandburg had advanced by disposing of St. Colette 47-33. Just one week prior, Sandburg had used an effective man-to-man pressing defense to upset Plum Grove 41-38. But this time the Chargers prevailed easily, 54-34.

Coach Gary Dykes expected Sandburg to play with its press and inserted new players which freed Kukla. It worked and Kukla poured in 22 points, 12 in the first half. Halberg was held to five points but Hildagard connected for 18. John Schramm scored 13 for Sandburg. In other first-round games, St. Thomas beat Winston Park 46-27 behind 14 and 13 points by center Brandt and guard Liner, respectively. Thomas controlled the boards and moved to a 22-14 halftime lead. Alan Knotek of Winston pumped in 20.

At Arthur Junior High of Prospect Heights had little difficulty with Sanborn of Palatine, winning 63-29. The winners led just 26-16 at the half but outscored the Sabres 25-8 in the third quarter for a 54-19 command. Bob Mendrala paced MacArthur with 12 points, Brian Hastings had 11 and Steve Johnson eight.

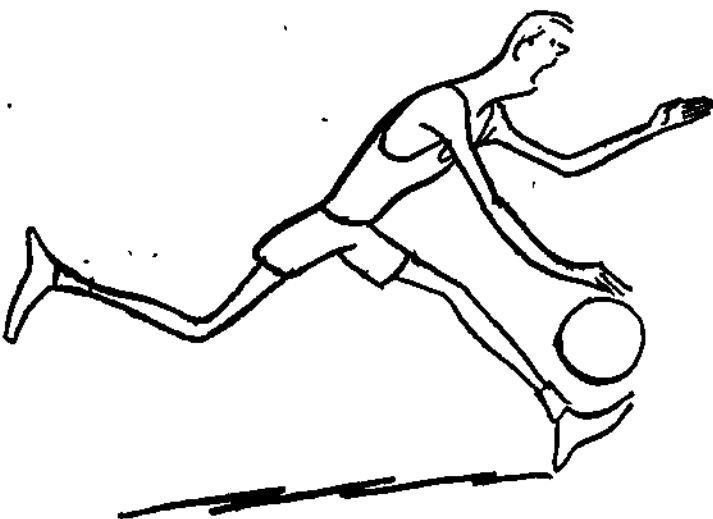

Mike Palpan was high man for Sanborn with 14. The championship game at 3 p.m. will follow a third-place contest at 1:30 at Carl Sandburg.

ST. JOSEPH WARRIORS

In a battle of unbeaten division leaders St. Joseph the Warriors' Chargers won a thrilling game from St. Mary of Buffalo Grove, 18-16.

The game featured a great man-to-man defensive effort by St. Joe as St. Mary's came into the game with a high-scoring average. With the victory St. Joseph is 11-0 in the conference with a two-game lead over Transfiguration.

The seventh grade Chargers won a pressure-packed 33-32 victory over St. Mary's to extend

by MIKE KLEIN

Eight weeks ago tonight, Maine West's Warriors endured an embarrassing 93-63 loss at Maine South.

Bluntly, it hurt like the dickens. And as the Warriors began filling home, guard Joe Prang said, "We get another shot at 'em and we'll have to make sure we do something better next time."

The much awaited chance comes this evening.

In the Warrior den, Gaston Freeman's club will entertain Bernie Brady's Hawks at 8 p.m. This will be a grudge match worth seeing.

Throw out the records. Kick aside the standings. Forget that first score.

So what if South has a 7-1 league record and West is only 5-3. The Hawks have been had before. It could happen again.

"If we have a true rivalry, this would have to be one of them," said South's Brady. "We always expect a spirited game."

"The mere fact that one team beat another by a large margin the first time

Brady said, "Some teams will feature a ballplayer. They'll go to him. If we go to anybody, it's probably Jones."

"I never have seen a real great team with the emphasis all on one boy," Brady stated. "They'll win a lot of ball games but the chances of getting beat in a big one are more."

Tonight's Hawk-Warrior ballgame is the first of two weekend Central Suburban games for each school. Maine South entertains Glenbrook North on Saturday. West travels to Glenbrook South.

Maine East will entertain Maine North at 8 p.m. this evening. Tomorrow, the Blue Demons host Deerfield while North entertains Niles East.

Maine East will entertain Maine North at 8 p.m. this evening. Tomorrow, the Blue Demons host Deerfield while North entertains Niles East.

The Demons are gunning for a 500 record tonight. They're currently 3-0. Jerry Nelson's Norsemen are still looking for that first win after 13 setbacks. Perhaps they needn't look further than tomorrow night.

The Trojans have two nice ballplayers in Don Diamond (14.5) and Len Weinstein (12.4). They're 12th and 14th respectively in league scoring. Diamond hit his average and Weinstein 21 points last Friday against Maine West.

But there's little else for the liking in Niles East's current group of varsity goers. They're not much on ballhandling and little better defensively.

Although still winless, North looks about ready to beat somebody. Most importantly, Nelson is developing young players who'll be seeing varsity action in future years.

Best of the group might be George Kaufman, a sophomore whom Nelson didn't list on the early season roster.

Kaufman's the No. 21 Central Suburban scorer with an 11.0 average. His most recent CSL efforts are 17 points against New Trier West and 25 versus Glenbrook South.

When the Norsemen lost a 71-33 non-conference tilt to New Trier East last weekend, Kaufman scored all but 15 of Maine's points.

His 25-point game against the GBS Titans was Maine North's second highest individual game ever. Last season, Marty DiFavio hit 27 points against Niles West, the present school standard.

East is making one lineup change — forward Jim Cromer replacing Rich Schumacher — for tonight's game with the Norsemen.

Schumacher played well against Evanston, held Highland Park's 6-foot-8 Chuck Bergen to two baskets through three quarters and was the overtime hero against Glenbrook North, scoring the winning bucket of a 65-64 double overtime.

But coach Paul McClelland has dropped in 6-foot-1 Jim Cromer's name to get added speed. He'll revert to 6-foot-6 Schumacher if rebounding becomes needed.

McClelland said his Blue Demons will press at half and full court out of their basic 1-3-1 zone against both Maine North and Deerfield.

doesn't mean there will be a repeat," he said. "I guess that probably answers some questions."

This is not the same Maine West ball club that felt so humbly before Maine South. It's a darn sight improved. Also more versatile.

The big change since that nightmarish Dec. 15 evening has been increased playing time for John O'Connor, the wingman in Freeman's center-two forwards-one wing-one guard offense.

O'Connor has started four consecutive games beginning with Maine's loss at Deerfield. Tonight will be his fifth. "The boy is gaining more confidence all the time," Freeman said. "He believes in himself now."

With O'Connor, Prang and Bruce Freeman circulating at wing and guard positions, the Warriors have become more solid defensively.

They put out a tremendous effort in losing 73-63 against Proviso East, then pounced on Niles East last week for a 68-51 win. The Warriors are 3-0 overall; South 13-3.

"We've just got to put a whole ball game together (to win)," Freeman said. "I think we're probably playing our best ball right now."

"We're helping one another on defense. We're doing more talking."

As the Warriors are playing their best ball, so is Maine South. But Brady says there's really "not much difference" between his Hawks now and when they lost against East Leyden and New Trier West weeks ago. "We just had a couple bad games."

Clockwork balance has kept these Hawks an average 12.7 points above all opponents. Four of Brady's kids are among the top 16 Central Suburban League scorers.

Jerry Jones is seventh (17.2), Bob Westman and Bill Harbeck three notches lower at 14.9 apiece and Pete Boesen 16th at 12.2 points per outing.

It's been Westman who's ignited the Hawks of late. The 6-5 senior center has consecutive games of 17, 18, 20 and 20 points in league play. After four games, his average had been only 11.0.

"We don't try to feature Westman,"

HUSTLING HELDT. Harper's Steve Heldt, leaping figures in the locals' win over tough Elgin, 79-65, as Harper received fine balanced scoring in the Tuesday. Heldt, a freshman, contributed 12 points important Skyway game.

Central Suburban basketball preview

by MIKE KLEIN

Last weekend, the Illinois High School Association cracked its doors on South LaSalle in Chi-City just long enough to announce Class A and AA regional basketball pairings.

The ordained alignments caused some mild stirs.

Central Suburban League coaches were wildly ecstatic, blandly approving or absolutely enraged.

Mostly, the loop's dozen basketball generals expressed surprise that byes had been awarded to second-seeded schools. All CSL teams are involved in five school March 6-9 tourneys having one first round bye.

For some coaches like Niles West's Billy Schurr, New Trier West's Mel Sheets and Maine East's Paul McClelland, the pairings are a pleasant surprise.

All should benefit. Niles is virtually assured a title game appearance at its own regional. New Trier needs win only two rather than the expected three.

If nothing else, Maine East should get another win (over Maine North) and possibly reach the Maine West regional title game by beating Notre Dame in second round action.

"I think they're okay. I don't have any criticisms," Niles West's Schurr said of the pairings. His Indians are top-seeded.

The bye went to second-seeded Evanston which could be bye-bye altogether unless parent-coach-player conflicts are calmed at the Suburban League school.

Niles West, currently 12-4, should smash Niles East's Trojans (2-13) in their March 6 game. That would put Schurr's Indians into the March 9 Friday title game against Evanston, Luther North or Niles North.

"Happily" is how New Trier's Sheets viewed his by and second round pairing against the winner of Glenbrook South — Highland Park.

Highland Park should mangle the GBS Titans. And they've already beaten New Trier once by five points. But general consensus is that the Little Giants could fall short against NTW in their remaining March 2 league game and regional date. Both games are at New Trier.

IF SHEETS' Cowboys get past Highland Park, they'll be into the title game, almost certainly against New Trier East.

The two New Triers have always carried an enormous rivalry. West would try to revenge a 69-58 early December loss to NTE.

Maine East's McClelland literally went bananas when he saw the regional alignment. "Isn't that amazing! It's the greatest thing that's ever happened. We love it," he exclaimed.

"We thought we'd be playing (second seeded) Notre Dame right off. Instead, we'll get Maine North right off and Notre Dame the next night."

"I'm glad for two reasons," McClelland continued. "First of all, if we can't beat Maine North, we don't belong there. Secondly, I'll give us a chance to get the nervousness out."

"That first game of a regional is always something like a sudden death. If you screw up, it's all over. It's the last chance for these kids that are seniors."

The IHSA originally awarded this regional to Maine East. It was later switched to West because of a night school conflict at East.

North and East open that regional with a 7 p.m. game on Tuesday, March 6. Top-seeded Maine South meets fourth seeded Maine West in the evening finale.

Notre Dame (currently 13-6) plays the East-North winner at 7:30 p.m. the next evening. No games will occur on Thursday, March 8.

The title will be decided between the South-West survivor and winner of Notre Dame's only game. Finals are at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, March 9.

Schurr, Sheets and McClelland have reason to approach the regionals with enthusiasm. Others, predominantly Glenbrook North's Dan Perry, can't say the same.

"I guess that's just typical of Glenbrook North's luck," Perry stated. "You struggle like hell and then somebody sticks it in your ear at the end."

Perry's bitter, because his Spartans (now 8-8) must face that top-seeded New Trier East bunch in first round action at New Trier West.

He'd hoped Glenbrook North would get sister school South (2-14) or perhaps Highland Park in a first round game. They've already beaten South twice and might be competitive with Highland Park.

Now, however, it seems the Spartans will end their first season under Perry as lopsided losers in first round action.

To a lesser degree, Maine West has been dealt a low blow. Drawing Maine South for openers is never any fun.

The IHSA's decision to bye second-seeded instead of top ranked teams was clarified by L. L. Astroth, assistant executive secretary. He gave three reasons:

—Honest seeding by coaches;
—Provide the No. 1 team with the easiest title path; and —Structure the tourney so no team had to play consecutive nights unless the regional manager so desired.

At Maine West, the winner of East vs. North will play two straight nights, facing Notre Dame. The optional night would have had East playing North on Monday, West against South on Tuesday, Notre Dame against somebody on Wednesday and the title game Friday.)

Keeping the seeds honest has more bearing than one might guess. "They don't want people fagaling for a particular spot," offered New Trier's Sheets.

Lineups for the Maine West and New Trier West regionals are detailed above. At Niles West, the other first round game finds Niles North playing Luther North.

Only Deerfield must play in a regional having no other Central Suburban school. They were winners last year at Wheeling but have been switched to Libertyville, much to Ron O'Connor's dismay.

"I can understand why they switched us from Waukegan a few years back with what all those schools up there," O'Connor said. "But you'd think they'd at least give us a chance to defend the title we won last year."

Deerfield's bye advances it to second round action against Libertyville or Adlai Stevenson. Top-seeded Carmel will face Lake Forest in the other opening game.

So much for regionals.

A critical Saturday night crossover could find New Trier West slipping one game behind the title pace if it loses at Niles West.

There are strong feelings around the league that New Trier could meet its match against Schurr's Indians who bring a 12-4 overall record and 5-3 CSL mark to Friday's action.

Of the other title contenders, Highland Park shouldn't slip on its homecourt in Saturday's crossover with Niles North. Maine South will defeat Glenbrook North.

Highland Park, New Trier and Maine South are 7-1 in Central Suburban play, two games ahead of their closest challengers.

The league's hottest scorers — guards Bob Santini of Highland Park and Ted Govedarica of Glenbrook North — will shoot at the same rims tonight when GBN entertains the Little Giants.

Santini has slipped to 22.5 points per game from his peak 25.5. Govedarica is at 19.0 after hitting only 16.8 a few weeks back.

Since hitting that low point, Govedarica has scored 27 against Maine East and 24 versus Glenbrook South. He had 14 freethrows last Friday in North's win over the GBS Titans.

We clicked on all six picks last weekend, upping the season mark to 25.5. Crossovers have provided one dozen CSL games this weekend.

Here we go:

Tonight: New Trier West 40 over Glenbrook South, Highland Park 10 over Glenbrook North, Maine East 20 over Maine North, Niles West 20 over Deerfield, Maine South 15 over Maine West and Niles North 15 over Niles East; Saturday: Maine West 20 over Glenbrook South, Maine South 30 over Glenbrook North, Highland Park 10 over Niles North, Maine East five over Deerfield, Maine North five over Niles East and Niles West five over New Trier West.

Viator ballplayers open 'Damn Yankees' curtain

Professional baseball celebrities will highlight the opening night performance of "Damn Yankees" in the St. Viator auditorium, 1213 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights.

Scheduled to be on hand are Chicago

White Sox outfielder Rick Reichardt, former Sox hurler Tom Bradley, Moe Drabowski — a pitcher for both the Sox and Cubs, Dick Drott — former Cub standout thrower and Leo Breen, vice president of the Sox.

The play, based on Douglas Wallop's novel "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant" will also be given Feb. 16, 17, 23, 24 and 25 at 8 p.m. and at a special matinee at 2 p.m. Feb. 18.

The production is sponsored by the St. Viator baseball team. Among those participating in the show are Steve Bobowski and Frank Cliggett, both members of the St. Viator varsity.

The two will alternately portray Joe Hardy who sold his soul to the devil to become a great ball player.

Tickets are on sale for $2.50 for evening performances and $1.50 for the matinee and can be reserved by calling the St. Viator office, 382-4050 weekdays between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Arlington Heights Minor Hockey results

TRAVELING TEAM ACTION

Saddle and Cycle Club 9, Arlington 1
This was the first game for Arlington's Mitts. Their only goal was scored by Bill Kuhn.

Arlington 8, Wilmette 3
In their second NHL clash with Wilmette, the Arlington Heights Squirt All-Stars came up with a win of 5-3. Scoring for Arlington were: Larry Cahen, one goal, two assists; Rick Garber, one goal, one assist; Tom More, one goal, one assist; Scott Paulsen, one goal, one assist; and Don Chatten, one goal, one assist. The two winning goals for A.H. came within 48 seconds of each other during the final minute of the game.

Arlington 8, Palatine 3
Palatine was once again beaten in league play by the Squirt All-Stars, this time, 9-3. Making the points for Arlington were: Tim Butler, two goals, one assist; Rick Garber, two goals; Tom More, two goals, one assist; Corey Hermanson, one goal, two assists; Larry Cahen, one goal, three assists; Andy Lund, one goal, one assist; Don Chatten, three assists; Bill Mitchell and Lee Gray each one assist. The Arlington Squirts have won three out of three games against Palatine.

Arlington 4, Saddle & Cycle 1
The Squirts played the Saddle & Cycle Club to a 4-1 win in their second game on Saturday. Rick Garber had one goal, one assist; Tom More, one goal, one assist; Corey Hermanson and Lee Gray each one assist; and Don Chatten each picked up an assist. Goalkeeper Jim Aiello saved 13 out of 18 shots on goal.

Arlington 2, Northbrook 3
Arlington and Northbrook battled to a 3-3 tie. Rick Garber and Larry Cahen did all the scoring, each picking up one goal and one assist. Jim Aiello, Arlington goaltender, saved an amazing 20 out of 23 shots on goal, with a 90% percentage of saves for the game. Arlington is now 5-2-2 in the NHL.

HOUSE LEAGUE SQUIRT
Century Computers 4, Arlington 3
Century Computers, in winning their first game, handed the J's their first defeat of the year. Lee Schmidt scored twice for Computers, while Dave Whittier, Frank Reilly and Eric Wolf each scored twice for Computers. Century Computers seem to have found the way as they came up with their second win in a row. Brian Ward for Computers scored his first hat trick of the year, while Lee Schmidt scored twice, Frank Reilly once, with Davis Whittier assisting once. Ed Cann, Dean Schraeger and Dave Lotter scored once for the J's with Capps picking up the lone assist. Lattot Chevrolet 4, Arlington 3

After the J's opened the scoring with Tim Ditch's unassisted goal, Lattot took over as Bob Anderson scored his third hat trick in three games, all unassisted goals. Larry Smith, with an assist from Mike Aiello scored Lattot's other goal.

Arlington 3, Jaysces 3
In a game much closer than the score suggests, the Jaysces were more effective around their opponents goal. Tim Ditch played a good game for the J's, scoring two goals and assisting on two others. Bill Kuhn scored two goals, as did Jim Gomez. Jim Munderoff scored the other goal unassisted, and assisted on another. Bob Kuzlauskis assisted on two goals, and Bob Hillstrom on one. Ed Cann scored once for the Jaysces with a fine unassisted effort, with Dave Lotter scoring the other tally with an assist from Dean Schraeger. Bob Klemmender in goal for the J's stopped a penalty shot awarded to the Jaysces.

Lattot Chevrolet 4, Century Computers 2
Lattot's Bob Anderson scored a hat trick with Smith scoring the other goal. Anderson assisted on Smith's goal, and Mike Aiello assisted once. Fine defensive play by Bill King helped goalie Whittier handle the aggressive Computer forwards. Computer's goals were scored by Wolf unassisted, with Schmidt, assisted by Wendt completing the score.

Lattot Chevrolet 3, Jaysces 1
Bob Anderson had another good game for Lattot, scoring four goals, one better than a hat trick. Mike Aiello scored Lattot's other goal. Ed Cann scored the lone goal for the Jaysces. All goals were unassisted. Bill Cann played a good game in goal for the Jaysces, making many fine saves as Lattot put in a team effort.

Jaysces 2, Arlington 3
The Jaysces seemed to have found the way to win after a succession of defeats. Dean Schraeger scored both the Jaysces goals with Pete Capps assisting on one. Bob Hillstrom scored the J's goal unassisted. Both goalies played well but for Doug Ryan of the Jaysces made a spectacular debut in goal, stopping nine out of 10 shots on goal.

PEW-WEES
Northbrook 2, Arlington 1
In one of their poorer performances this season, Arlington was easily defeated by Northbrook 2-1.
Palatine 4, Arlington 1
In marked contrast to their previous outing, Arlington came to play and forced a 1-0 lead after two periods. However, they could not contain Palatine in the third period in going down to defeat 4-1. Culpepper scored Arlington's only tally from a meager offense that only produced four shots on goal. Nine penalties were whistled in the exciting contest.

McErmerney Insurance 3, City Welding 2
Kostopoulos and Senten scored for City, with a 2-1-1 from Chatten. Stolzner (2), McErmerney goals, both unassisted were scored by Hollifield and Birkholz. Good goaltending by Byers for McErmerney and Murphy for City helped keep the score down, each stopping 15 shots on goal.

Firefighters 4, Wauconda 2
Concannon scored twice for Firefighters, with Patterson and Mitchell scoring one each. Mitchell also notched up two assists, with O'Neill and Barboro assisting once.

Wauconda 3, Hissel Industries 1
Vandenberg scored all of Wauconda's goals with assists from Quinn and Goosen. Santell, assisted by Lattot answered for Hissel. Fine goal tending by Reed for Hissel kept the score within bounds.

Firefighters 2, City Welding 4
Firefighters started off the scoring when Winkelman scored, assisted by O'Neill and Birkholz, then City took over with goals from Mannik, Kostopoulos, Neuhaus and Senten, with assists from Neuhaus and Chatten (2). O'Neill scored the final Firefighter goal, assisted by Mitchell and Winkelman.

City Welding 5, Hissel 1
Santell and Lattot combined to put the Firefighters ahead in the first period. Then City took over, with two goals from Chatten and solo efforts from Schmidt, Kostopoulos and Berling, with assists from Schmidt and Schraeger.
Firefighters 3, McErmerney Insurance 3
Concannon scored first for Firefighters, unassisted, followed by Gorski with an assist from Finn. Hollifield scored the game winner assisted by Gorski and Price. O'Neill and Birkholz both scored unassisted for Firefighters. McGuire played his usual fine game in the net, stopping 19 shots.

Hissel Industries 4, Firefighters 2
Nolte scored a hat trick for Hissel, with one unassisted goal and two assisted by Lattot and Dabney. The other Hissel goal was scored by J. King, unassisted. O'Neill scored the solo tally for the Firefighters, with an assist from Concannon.
City Welding 5, Firefighters 0
Stolzner scored twice for City Welding, while Chatten also had a good game, scoring one goal and assisting on two others. Smith and Kostopoulos scored the other two goals, with an assist from Berling. Goalender McGuire played a fine game for the Firefighters, turning away 21 shots.
McErmerney Insurance 4, City Welding 4
Tommy Gorski scored a hat trick for McErmerney and assisted on another goal. The other McErmerney goal was scored by Kuhn, with assists going to Price. Chatten scored once for City Welding and assisted on another goal. Other City goals were scored by Neuhaus, Bakas, and More. Stolzner assisting.
McErmerney 3, Wauconda 3
Gorski scored two goals for McErmerney, while Kuhn notched the other tally. Jackson and Price assisting. Vannenburg and Goosen scored for Wauconda. Christanson and Quinn assisting. Menger played a fine game in goal for Wauconda, keeping them in the game.

Six-Game Rampage

Incredibly, Gary Bradds of Ohio State once strung together six consecutive games of 40 points or more in Big Ten basketball competition. Bradds' red-hot streak came between Jan. 25 and Feb. 15, 1964 with a high of 49 points and also a 48-point outburst. Those six straight efforts are a Big Ten record. Next in line are Rick Mount's four straight 40-point games for Purdue in 1969 Big Ten play.

BANTAMS
Arlington 1, Palatine 6
Arlington won by loutest when Palatine failed to appear for the game.
Winfield 5, Arlington 3
The Arlington Bantams played inspired hockey in this state tournament game, breaking on top of a fine Winfield team 3-0 on quick goals by Bob Battis and Jim McGuire. For a time it looked like an upset was in the making, but Winfield rebounded for the win. Arlington's third goal was a fine breakaway effort by Tom McDonald. John Roth made many fine saves.

MIDGETS
Evanston 5, Arlington 9 (NHL)
Elmhurst 6, Arlington 1 (State Tournament)
The Midgets continued their slump, losing to teams they had previously beaten. The loss to Elmhurst eliminated Arlington in state tournament play. Rob Hudock scored Arlington's only goal against Elmhurst, assisted by John Walsh.

Arco 3, Wauconda 4
Only fine goaltending by Jenkins kept Arco in contention as the team picked up seven penalties. Carberry scored twice for Arco, with Herdrick tallying the other, all goals unassisted.

Arco 5, Johnson's Sporting Goods 2
Johnson's started off in fine style with goals from Brewer and Ronel, assisted by Drieling and Williams. About midway through the second period Arco took over, with goals from Donato, Ebel, Herdrick, Carberry and Lumley. Assists went to Herdrick, Ortleib, Wendt and Newton.

Arco 3, Wauconda 1
After a shaky first period when only fine goaltending by Donato kept Arco in the game, the team settled down to a close checking game that took the play away from Wauconda. Herdrick scored one goal and assisted the other two goals, assisted by Lumley and Carberry. A threat mounted by Wauconda in the closing minutes was nullified by fine defensive play by the entire Arco team.
Arlington Soft Water 2, Arco 1
Limp for Soft Water and Donato for Arco put on a fine display of goaltending. Donato excelling in the 2nd period when he saved on nine shots. Soft Water scored the first two goals, the first an unassisted effort by Paul Kula, the second by Dave Moreno assisted by Ron Vallejo. Arco's Newton scored their goal, with assists from Herdrick and Schoengert. Moreno, Kula and Lubbecker put on a fine display of defensive hockey during three minutes when Arco had a two man advantage.

HOUSE LEAGUE JUNIOR
Fine goal tending by Robinson, Pierotte and Ostin as they alternated in stopping a barrage of 43 shots, while the Mundelein goaltender stopped only three for the whole game. The first period ended with the teams even when Kantecki converted a pass from Smethurst into a goal. This was the only shot on goal that Rob Roy mustered during that period. In the 2nd period, Smethurst scored the other Rob Roy goal, with an assist from Duell.

Ray Roy 5, Wauconda 2
Fine goaltending by Robinson won this game for Rob Roy as he turned away 18 shots to his opponent's nine. He had a shutout going until near the end of the third period. Jarocki scored two goals for Rob Roy and assisted on another. Johnson scored once and assisted on another, with Fredian and Schmidt each scoring one goal. Duell picked up two assists as did Olcese.

Snowmobile feature set for weekend in Milwaukee

Area snowmobile racing fans will get a rare chance this weekend to witness a major event in that sport without traveling more than an hour and a half from home.

The occasion is the International Pro-Am Snowmobile Championships this Saturday and Sunday afternoons at State Fair Park in Milwaukee, located south of the city and just east of Highway 94. A crowd of 50,000 fans is expected for Sunday's races with a total purse of $100,000 for all events covering many classes.

And, to answer a foremost question of all fans, there WILL be snow on the track, courtesy of snow-making machines, even if there is none on the ground.

Biggest individual name will be two-time World Champion Mike Trapp, who copped the sport's top prize in 1971 and '72 and finished second this year. He is the only racer to capture the world title in two straight years and has won several other big races this year, earning points towards a possible triple crown.

The two-day meet will be climaxed at 3:30 Sunday with the Bosh 40-40, bringing together the top 40 drivers (according to a point system for other races) for 40 laps. First prize in this one will be $2,500 plus a new automobile.

Cash prizes will vary from $700 to $1,700 for other classes plus other merchandise and prizes — for instance, all-expenses-paid hunting and ski trips. Classes include Stock, Modified and Women's and each is broken down into sub-groups according to sizes of engines. There will be five modified classes and four in the stock races.

The track at State Fair Park is a mile oval, the first time Trapp will be racing on such a layout. He will race in Modified Classes 3 and 5, and possibly 2, plus undoubtedly the major race at 3:30 Sunday.

Competition should last until about 5 p.m., or until dark, both Saturday and Sunday.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Charles Schulz, whose "Peanuts" comic strip characters have become highly popular on television, is one of those lucky people who is doing what he wanted to do as a youngster.

And a conversation with him makes clear the high regard he has for gentleness.

The Schulz characters have two scheduled outings on video this weekend:

• Tonight, as part of the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" series, NBC-TV offers, for 90 minutes, a television production of the New York stage musical "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

• And on Sunday evening, CBS-TV reruns one of the shows in its remarkably successful series of half-hour "Peanuts" cartoons, "Play It Again, Charlie Brown."

WITH CBS-TV's cartoons, NBC-TV's ice shows featuring the zany "Peanuts" canine called Snoopy, and now the Hallmark special, Schulz' creations seem to be on their hottest television streak.

"We're learning about the characters and how to use them," the easygoing cartoonist said in a conversation at NBC studios in nearby Burbank. "It's amazing how they fit into all media."

In addition to newspapers, television and the stage, they have also scored in the motion picture field.

"We try to feel our way along very carefully," said Schulz.

NETWORK PEOPLE often live in their own little world, with their own rules of the game, and Schulz, like many others who have found success in video, approached television with an individual outlook.

He recalls the time "we came around with our first show, 'A Charlie Brown Christmas'. It was gentle and quiet — no quick double takes or things like that."

And from the start, the half-hour "Peanuts" cartoons scored ratings that were consistent and high.

Says Schulz: "I'm trying more and more to get the characters to talk to each other."

Many cartoons, of course, rely on gag lines more than almost anything else.

And, says Schulz, some "are afraid to be emotional and sentimental." As for himself: "I'm not content just grinding out gags."

"Basically I don't do all these things for the money. I want to contribute. And I want to do things that have never been done before in a strip."

ASKED IF HE watches television's Saturday morning cartoons for children, Schulz said he hadn't for a long time because his youngest offspring now is 14. How did he like them when he did watch?

"I was never content," he said. "It angers me when I see people doing things carelessly. Studios are often unwilling to take that one added step that makes the difference."

And gentleness, of course, has not exactly been a standout quality through the years in the Saturday video cartoons for youngsters.

TV showing of 'Much Ado' closes theater production

NEW YORK (UPI) — The television showing of "Much Ado about Nothing," a modern version of Shakespeare's comedy, was so successful that the theater production will have to close, it was announced.

The play won critical acclaim when it was televised nationally last week to an estimated audience of 2 million persons.

However, the television airing was so successful, producer Joseph Papp said, that box office receipts for the theater presentation have plummeted to the point where losses can no longer be absorbed and the show must close.

Papp said "Much Ado About Nothing" would close Sunday after 116 performances at the Winter Garden Theatre.

Papp, producer of the New York Summer Shakespeare Theatre, said ticket sales this week were less than one-fifth what they were before the television presentation Friday. While Papp said that sales might bounce back, the producer said the losses could no longer be carried.

The Shakespeare festival and CBS signed a four-year contract last summer providing for as many as 13 television productions.

Haitian broadcaster to address men's club

Edwin Walker, administrator of radio station "Radio Lumiere" in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, will speak to the North-West Christian Business Men's group Tuesday.

Walker a graduate of Columbia Bible College, Columbia, spent his early life in Tennessee. For some years he taught at the Haiti Bible Institute. Both the radio station and the Bible Institute are under the West Indies Mission, a nondenominational mission dedicated to spreading the Gospel in that part of the world.

The Hollywood Scene

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Bibi Osterwald, the nagging Jewish mother in "Bridget Loves Bernie," is as Semitic as Queen Elizabeth.

Bibi, in fact, is of Norwegian descent. Her family name, going back to the 16th century, was Osterwald. Her family moved in 1912 from Scandinavia to New Jersey.

She is as baffled as anyone why she was cast in the role of Sophie Steinberg in the weekly CBS situation comedy.

The actress was playing an Irish cook and housekeeper in the soap opera, "Where the Heart Is," when she was called to Hollywood to play the Yiddish mama.

IT WAS HER seventh trip to California for a television pilot. When the series was given a green light, Bibi had mixed feelings. She was delighted to move from a daytime soap opera to prime time, but it meant leaving her husband and son in Manhattan.

Bibi rented a furnished, two-bedroom apartment a scant two blocks from Columbia Pictures where she could walk to work — she was afraid of California drivers — spending 12 hours a day on the set.

Bibi has been married to New York bassist Justin Arndt for 23 years. Their son, Christopher, 17, is in his junior year at a private New York high school.

Father and son continue to live in the family's five-room apartment across the street from the Stage Delicatessen. Bibi says the proximity of the famed Jewish-style establishment might have had something to do with her casting, but she doubts it.

IT HAS BEEN necessary for the character actress to play down her accent on the highly rated series to placate objections from viewers.

But she is slightly displeased, as perhaps any female would be, at the wardrobe she is required to wear as Sophie. To compensate, Bibi buys expensive tailored full-length dresses and skirts.

The ill-fitting wig of the early episodes has disappeared, too.

When "Bridget Loves Bernie" goes on its first annual hiatus Bibi will return to New York to keep house for her husband and son. She hopes, too, to make some commercials.

WHEN THE SERIES resumes this summer Bibi will return, hopefully with Justin on tow. Currently he plays in the pit orchestra for "No, No, Nanette" on Broadway. But he wants to go into the boat repair business in Southern California as soon as Christopher graduates from high school.

Until the family resettles permanently on the West Coast, Bibi has many lonely evenings. But she also entertains old friends from New York who have moved to Hollywood.

She finally has steered herself to the local freeways and has rented an automobile, driving to the beach and various other recreation areas.

Bibi Osterwald is a voluble woman who is many years younger than she appears in the series. She likes to chat with neighbors in the apartment house. Her favorite pastime is making Scandinavian cookies.

More than anything else Bibi is anxious to reunite her family and find a real home.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In college play

A Schaumburg resident was among the North Central College students who staged the old-time melodrama, "Love Rides the Rails," as a feature at the Elmhurst Opera House during the Spoon River Fall Festival.

Robert K. Moses, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Moses, 1404 W. Arlington, played the role of a railroad worker in the three-act play. Moses is a junior at the liberal arts college majoring in speech.

New cars will make you 'buckle up'

by EDWARD S. LECHTIZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — "Buckle up for safety" is going to be more than just a slogan on the 1974-model cars. The new cars won't let you cheat on safety.

The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio, Monday upheld a government order that an ignition-seat belt interlock system be installed on all new cars after Aug. 15 — the time the 1974 models start rolling off assembly lines.

The belt system for 1974 is designed to force more people to use their lap and shoulder belts. It's estimated that no more than 40 per cent of car occupants use the lap belts and less than 5 per cent ever untuck the shoulder belt from above their door. That will change with the new models.

THE GOVERNMENT standard requires that a single combined lap-shoulder belt replace the present system. The new lap-shoulder belt will have to be buckled by the occupants of the front seat before the car can be started. If anyone unbuckles once the engine is running, they will be warned by a loud buzzer and a flashing warning light.

Ford Motor Co. had appealed the directive of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration on the grounds that the safety value of the interlock system had not been demonstrated thoroughly by testing. But the government order was upheld by a three-judge panel.

What the government decision means to the new car buyer is that he won't be able to cheat any longer on wearing seat belts. The present buzzer-light system can be fooled easily — either by pulling out the seat belt and tying its ends or by buckling it behind the driver and passenger.

The new interlock systems will require the driver and passenger to follow a set procedure. The sequence starts when you sit down, then buckle up and then start the car. Because the shoulder belt is part of the system, it would become very uncomfortable to buckle up behind you.

Carbon monoxide — look out for it

"Each year about one-third of the nation's auto fatalities are one-car, non-collision crashes. Experts in traffic safety believe carbon monoxide — the odorless, colorless and tasteless gas — may be the culprit in many of these deaths," advises R. A. Hogan, Allstate Motor Club safety director. He also points out, "these same experts believe thousands of non-fatal crashes can be traced to less than lethal doses of carbon monoxide."

Spot checks made by the Vermont State Police of 114 cars on chilly days, when windows were shut and the heaters going full blast, found that carbon monoxide was detectable in 12 per cent of the vehicles. In 4 per cent of the vehicles, the carbon monoxide was at the danger level. In California, a roadcheck of 1,007 vehicles showed that 30 of them were so heavily contaminated as to impair the alertness of the drivers. A detectable amount of carbon monoxide was found in all the vehicles.

ALLSTATE's safety director, R. A.

Hogan, offers these suggestions in combating the silent killer:

- Never drive with all windows closed.
- In slow-moving, closely-spaced traffic, or while traveling through tunnels, keep air-intakes closed to be sure that carbon monoxide from exhaust pipes of cars in front of you will not collect in large amounts in your own car.

- If you become sleepy while driving, the cause can be carbon monoxide. Stop at once, get out of the car, and breathe fresh air. Then drive with the windows open as much as possible.

- Check automobile exhaust systems regularly, especially for blown-out gaskets, loose manifolds, leaking exhaust pipe connections, and holes in mufflers.

- Shut the engine off when sitting in a parked car for more than a few minutes. "Some of these precautions may sound foolish, but remember that carbon monoxide not only is dangerous, it can be fatal," Hogan concluded.

American Motors hits rising production costs

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. said rising production costs are having an adverse effect on profit margins and warrant further increases in 1973 model prices.

AMC board chairman Roy D. Chapin and president William V. Luneburg, reporting the company's sales and earnings for the first fiscal quarter of 1973, said AMC has had to increase production rates several times this model year to meet a rising demand for cars.

"Rising costs are putting pressure on profit margins," they said, "and although high volume and efficiency have softened the impact of these costs, pre-tax profit per sales dollar is about 3 per cent, which is not satisfactory.

"Some further increase in 1973 auto prices by the industry is justifiable and necessary," Chapin and Luneburg said.

AMC AND the other car companies already have implemented increases for 1973-model cars, but the price hikes were limited by pre-Phase III government economic guidelines. The now-defunct Price Commission had used profit margins — the percentage of earnings to sales — as its yardstick in judging whether price increases were justified for the car companies.

Chapin and Luneburg told stockholders AMC's earnings for the first quarter of the 1973 fiscal year amounted to $12.7 million, equal to 41 cents a share, after an extraordinary tax credit of $5.6 million.

Communication via stickers: the L.A. way

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — One of the latest gags about Los Angeles is that its automobile-regimented inhabitants communicate with one another only through bumper stickers.

There is a modicum of truth in that wisecrack.

There are 4.25 million automobiles registered in Los Angeles County and its 7 million citizens spend countless hours tooling along the freeways at 65 mph enclosed in their steel cocoons.

A rough estimate is that about one in 10 cars has some sort of bumper sticker. They range from political slogans to religious exhortations to a battle between the hippies and the Bitchers.

DAN WARNER of the Emblem Manufacturing Co., one of the nation's biggest suppliers of stickers, says the two most popular have been, "Have a Nice Day" and "America — Love It or Leave It." Those two have sold in the hundreds of thousands, Warner says.

"Another very popular one is 'Honk If You Love Jesus,'" he said in an interview. "The other day I saw one and blew the horn and the guy in the car gave me a dirty look."

A slogan about to hit the bumpers is the phrase "Let Me Make One Thing Perfectly Clear." That's all. Take it for what it's worth.

Some have a sort of inside vocabulary such as "Another Mother Against Oil." That refers to the oil spills in the channel off Santa Barbara.

THEN THERE ARE:

"If You Hate Policemen, Next Time You Need Help, Call a Hippie."

"Cancer Cures Smoking."

"Ban the Bra."

"Go Ahead — Do Your Thing."

"America — Change It or Lose It."

"Have a Nice Forever."

"Get Your Heart in America or Get Your picture of a donkey out."

One of the most popular for the back of Volkswagen vans reads:

"Don't laugh — you don't know if your daughter is in the back of this van."

One of the more inscrutable recently appearing in Los Angeles says simply:

"Cowboys Are Great Lovers."

Flooding problems to be discussed

Bill Davey, deputy administrator for watersheds in the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, will discuss local flooding in a meeting Feb. 21 at Harper College in Palatine.

Davey's talk will come at the annual meeting of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District. The speech is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in Rooms 242A and B in Building A.

The local conservation district coordinated municipal and park district units in Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Cook County in preparing the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan, a $25 million project to deter flooding.

The plan is now being reviewed by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service in Washington, prior to its submittal to Congress for funding.

Schaumburg ice hockey highlights

The Schaumburg Kings had a 2-1 record last week. In State Tournament play the Kings played three games, the Woodfield Auto Dealer Squirrels and the Omega Bantams winning, while the King Jidgets lost.

MITEES (ages 7 & 8)
North Valley 6, Schaumburg 2
McArthur Realty Mites were not able to bring home a win over Hockon Rock Valley Mites and were outshot 17-0. Goal scorers for Schaumburg were Scott Dunne assisted by Judy Horn, and Anthony DeVita assisted by Scott Dunne. Goals Joe Zeller made some line saves.

Schaumburg 3, Twin Ice Forum Squirrels 2
Shooting a fine exhibition game, McArthur Realty Mites outshot Twin Ice 13-10. Hard skating, checking and hustling earned the Mites their win in a tight game. King scorers were John Macchonia assisted by Bob Melkeron, Patrick Courty assisted by John Slavin, and David Grabarek assisted by Bob Melkeron. Goals Dunne went to Michael Stevenson.

Zimbardo 2, Schaumburg 1
Zimbardo outshot the McArthur Realty Mites 13-0. The only King goal was scored by David Grabarek assisted by Bob Melkeron.

Schaumburg 4, St. Jude 2
(Western Hockey League)
McArthur Realty Mites skated a busy week, ending the week's play with a fine game. First period goal scorers were Bob Melkeron who scored twice and getting his first goal of the season was Joel Baggett assisted by John Slavin and Melkeron. Patrick Courty scored unassisted. Scott Dunne also scored two goals, one assisted by Michael Grieco and Courty, and the second goal assisted also by Courty. Danny Braglia had an earlier assist. Shots on goal were Schaumburg 24, St. Jude 5.

SQUIRRLS (ages 9 & 10)
Schaumburg 7, Elk Grove 0
Goals Dan Reilly earned the shutout. Leading scorer was Bill Dunne who got a hat trick. Dunne scored twice in the first period, assisted by Dennis Heurten on both goals and Scott McArthur on one. Scoring also in the first period was Scott Rowe, assisted by Mike Rutinski. King scorers for the second period were Scott Atkinson and Tony Barucca with one each. Goals in the third period were by Heurten and Dunne. Other assists in the game were two by Jerry Bjorkdahl, and one each for Kevin Kilmer, John Gould and Dunne. Shots on goal were Schaumburg 25, Elk Grove 2.

SQUIRRLS (ages 9 & 10)
Schaumburg 5, Springfield 1
(Regional State Tournament)
Playing their second state playoff game the Woodfield Auto Dealer Squirrels outshotted, outskated and outshot their Springfield opponents 23-11. Scoring two goals apiece were Bill Dunne, Jon Melkeron and Dennis Heurten. Getting one each were Mike Rutinski, Scott Rowe and Scott Atkinson. Assists went to Heurten, Atkinson, Rutinski, Dunne, Melkeron, Tony Barucca, Steve Chak, and Dan Reilly. The Squirrels will go to Pekin, Ill. Feb. 17 for the semi-finals of the state tourney.

PEE WEES (ages 11 & 12)
Elk Grove 3, Schaumburg 2
King Pee Wees faced Elk Grove and were not able to beat them, but gave them a hard time. King action let down in the last few minutes of the game. Dan Dunne, the Kings' first goal, Elk Grove tied it in the same period. In the third period the Kings went out in front again with Lloyd Archibald scoring. With seven minutes left Elk Grove tied it 2-2. The Kings were pressing again and not caught with one man back and Elk Grove put the puck in for the winning goal. Jeff Rowe played one of his finest games. Shots on goal were Elk Grove 25, Kings 14.

Schaumburg 5, Elk Grove 1
Schaumburg's Omega Bantams took their 18th straight victory. Scott Scholz opened the scoring with a booming slap shot after a quick pass from Bob Payson. The second period produced two Schaumburg goals, one by Joe Ciccia from Scholz and one by Mike Waghorne from Tom Johnson and Steve Murphy. In the third period Craig Landis put one away after a fine play from Bob Payson and from Todd Zarkin. Ciccia got his second goal of the night assisted by Kurt Kilmer. Shots on goal were Schaumburg 22, Elk Grove 14.

Schaumburg 5, Springfield 4
The Omega Bantam team traveled to Springfield for the second round of state tournament competition. The Omega Kings emerged the victors on Scott Scholz' hat trick and single scores by Mike Waghorne and Todd Vanlar. The Kings found the opposing team to be less competition than the ice rink itself. The game was played on an ice surface which was slightly larger than half the regular size of 200 x 45 feet. The Kings outshot Springfield 51-8 which is indicative of the game pressure. The Omega Kings were to play the winner of the Naperville-Elk Grove game and then continue on to the Region playoffs in Pekin, Ill.

MIDWEST (ages 15 & 16)
Elk Grove 11, Schaumburg 1
The King Midgets were overwhelmed by an Elk Grove team that seemed unable to do anything wrong. Five goals in the first period put the game beyond reach of the Kings. Total shots on goal for the game went to Elk Grove, 29-13. The Jones Schaumburg goal was scored in the third period by Dan Calvert on a pass from Dan Weiss. The Kings are now 6-10-3 in Polar Dome league play.

The King Midgets played a team that must be the finest novice team in state tournament play and suffered a 13-0 loss. The Willow Ice Chalet Saints took the Kings from any further tournament play. Schaumburg was outshot 38-13.

JUVENILES (ages 17 & 18)
Schaumburg 1, Elk Grove 1
This was a hard-fought, well-skated game as the Kings outshot Elk Grove 16-10. Brian Massimo did his usual fine job goaltending as he turned back many potential goals.

Schaumburg 3, Park Ridge 1
It was another well-skated game for the Campanelli Inc. Juveniles and their sixth game without a loss. Scoring for the Kings was Gary Zarko, assisted by Tim Tomljanovich and Dan Dub; the winning goal by Denny Pollard assisted by Tom Milhouse, and again by Pollard assisted by Milhouse. The Kings outshot Park Ridge 31-16. Bob Perthie in the nets made some excellent saves.

Side horse talent abundant

The Mid-Suburban League appears especially strong in side horse this year — ironically one of the toughest of the six events. Elk Grove's Bob Slomianowski and Hersey's Bruce Freedman head the stellar horse contingent with identical 8.00 highs for the season. Arlington's duo of John Golbeck and Geoff Rieder have each attained 8.65's while Elaine Dahl from Rolling Meadows hit 8.45, Bob Kornally of Hersey 8.10 and Chris Freas from Arlington 8.00 have also broken the eight-point barrier.

On January 5th, we kicked off the new year with our annual "FIGURE YOUR OWN DEAL" sale. The response was so gratifying, we repeated the sale on January 19th. Even more people took advantage of the tremendous savings. Now, we've decided to extend this fantastic sale one more time . . . today through Monday only!

Here's how to figure your own deal:

1. Select your base car.
2. Add your options.
3. Add 5% Sales Tax and $10.00 Cook County Tax.
4. You've figured your own deal!

Keep America green.

Take stock in America.

'They' are still out to get us, but fight goes on

NEW YORK — Most of us at one time or other become certain that THEY are out to get us.

Maybe THEY are raising taxes again.

Maybe THEY are trying to palm off an inferior product for an inflated price. Maybe THEY are manipulating a government agency for their own personal gain. Maybe THEY are doing something that just isn't right.

Whatever it is, the moment of truth comes when we perceive the act as a personal affront that we have to either accept or do battle with. And more and aplitude of the Eagles, sued the team for a refund on their season tickets. (The case is still pending.)

Common Cause, the 250,000-member, Washington-based "citizens lobby" sued the Committee to Re-elect the President, charging the committee with violations of campaign practices law in failing to file reports on the source of contributions received before April 1972. The suit is successful.

The taxpayers of Fox Lake, Wis., vote 251 to 7 to withhold their property tax payment from an area school district because of a huge increase. They eventually relent but insist they have conveyed their message.

The activist movement seems to be born in most cases of a Boston Tea Party kind of desperation. And the resulting increase in involvement has, for better or worse, posed a sort of revolutionary threat to the twin nemeses, Big Business and Big Government, which often appear to the man on the street to have grown to an aloof and obese power.

"The feeling is virtually universal that the institutions that should be serving us are not serving us," says Common Cause chairman John Gardner. "Citizens at every level and in every walk of life feel increasingly that they are powerless before the vastness and complexity of our society, powerless before the giant institutions that stand astride our national life."

The record of the activist movement and interviews with leaders of crusades on various levels indicate that to turn that desperate feeling into a sustained campaign against an "establishment" institution, one needs:

DETERMINATION — enough concern to make a stand and a belief that it will be effective.

AGGRESSIVENESS — ability to battle past bureaucratic naysayers and keep adversaries on the defensive.

ENDURANCE — the patience to accept the inevitable frustrations and occasional defeats without giving up.

LEGAL HELP — the aid of a lawyer, preferably a volunteer, is necessary in almost any substantial action.

PUBLICITY — gathering the most embarrassing and vivid evidence possible against an adversary and presenting that evidence to news media in an organized and clear way is a powerful weapon.

MONEY — needed in the biggest projects but not a major factor in many local actions, where contributions of time are more important.

NUMBERS — important in something like a letterwriting campaign to a congressman. But in many cases — e.g., Nader against the auto makers — persistence and ingenuity pay off without hordes of formal supporters.

The fact that you do not always need a mass of supporters to make a movement work, at least at the outset, is crucial.

Director Robert Fellmeth of Nader's Congress Project, designed to inform voters about the less-than-textbook way in which Congress actually performs, says:

"The key is that you don't need 95 per cent of the population getting that deeply involved. What I'm concerned about is getting that extra one-tenth of one per cent involved, getting that 15 or 20 people in Grand Rapids. Those people will get other people involved. More people will be writing knowledgeable letters to their congressmen. And during campaigns, the questions, rallies and debates will improve. Even the heckling will get better."

How do you motivate those 15 or 20 Grand Rapidsites?

ASK NICHOLAS Johnson, the Federal Communications Commission member who is Washington's resident curmudgeon (at least until his term expires in July).

"It's clear that there is a tremendous sense of apathy, frustration and boredom in our society," he says. "But there are a lot of things you can do to overcome them. In my case, I started just by giving up coffee. And more and more I've been throwing the whole damned syndrome off."

"Now, of course, that doesn't mean everybody should stop drinking coffee. But everybody can find something that works for him. I can accept that a specific tactic won't work but I won't accept that there isn't anything you can do."

Johnson's message borders on passive resistance. In his book, "Test Pattern for Living," he writes: "Start by searching your house or apartment for things you can throw away. Ask yourself, 'If I were living in the woods, would I spend a day going to town to buy this aerosol can?' Look for simple substitutes."

But his insistence on not accepting what appears to be ordained by one THEM or another is not too far from the advice of another more-or-less mainstream politician, Sen. William Proxmire, (D-Wis.), who has made political capital of an activist campaign to cut government spending.

(Proxmire's book, "Uncle Sam: Last of the Big Time Spenders," is virtually a catalogue of his charges of extravagance, along with proposals for change.)

"I know a lot of people feel helpless and hopeless," he says. "But the members of Congress are far more sensitive to what their constituents want than people believe. People who want to generate an effective protest should write to their congressmen, tell them they feel strongly about the problem and specify what they think should be done. Just a few letters can do a lot, as the defeat of the original SST proposal showed." (Most students of Congress say that senators and representatives do pay attention to their constituent mail — especially mail that is not the kind of form letter generated by some interest groups.)

Nader's Congress Project is also concerned with citizen influence. It has produced a paperback, "Who Runs Congress?" which is a valuable organizing outline for activist groups taking on Grand Rapids as well as those ready to face Washington.

And the book also includes a quote from the early 19th-century French student of America, Alexis de Tocqueville, that may stand as inspiration from the past to the would-be crusaders among us today:

"As soon as several of the inhabitants of the United States have taken up an opinion or a feeling which they wish to promote in the world, they look out for mutual assistance; and as soon as they have found each other out, they combine; from that moment they are not from afar, whose actions serve for no longer isolated men, but a power seen example, and whose language is listened to."

more people seem to be opting to do battle.

Inspired perhaps by the examples of the black civil rights movement and Ralph Nader's auto safety crusade, individuals and groups all over the country have been attacking what they consider unresponsive and unjust businesses and government agencies.

The scope, seriousness and motives of the protest actions vary widely.

A Vietnam veteran in Ridgefield, N.J., holds up a handprinted sign saying, "Radar Ahead" to warn motorists of a speed trap and a local judge dismisses a disorderly conduct charge against him.

'You don't have to be a revolutionary to complain'

NEW YORK — Grassroots citizen action comes in all shapes and sizes.

As an indication of who is doing what and how successfully they are doing it, here are brief accounts of several randomly selected crusades:

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Milton Machlin, editor of Argosy magazine, was riding a commuter train on the Penn Central Railroad one day last summer when he got fed up. The train was, as usual, overcrowded, not air conditioned and lacking toilet facilities and Machlin decided he would not pay the fare.

"The railroad had always been more than indifferent — it was plain hostile," he said. "I suddenly thought that if you shipped animals under these conditions, you would unquestionably be arrested."

Machlin was thrown off the train at White Plains and arrested for "theft of service" for not paying the $1.85 fare from Grand Central Station in New York to that point. He fought, however, and in November he was acquitted by a jury in White Plains.

Today he has become a minor celebrity among his fellow commuters and is convinced he has accomplished something: "The facilities on the trains haven't really improved very much but there has been improvement in the courtesy of railroad personnel. I also feel we've established a legal precedent that a passenger has some kind of rights; the railroad will hesitate before treating people so cavalierly again. And the whole thing did a lot for the morale of the passengers. It all shows you don't have to be a revolutionary to complain about rotten service."

FOX LAKE, WIS. — Upset by property taxes that had increased up to 40 per cent in one year, a group of taxpayers voted to withhold $312,235 in levies for a local school district in 1972. The group eventually relented and paid the taxes.

But Don Christian, a farmer who led

John Gardner

the protest after his own taxes were increased by $1,000, feels the taxpayers made their point: "It's done a lot of good because they'll think twice before they do that to us again. They thought we were bluffing last time but now they know we'd do it again."

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Last September, Common Cause, the 250,000-member "citizens lobby" supported by individual members dues, sued the Committee to Re-elect the President. Common Cause charged the Committee with failing to file reports on campaign contributions required by the Corrupt Practices Act of 1925.

In November, the Committee reached a settlement with Common Cause, agreeing to release the names of contributors of $100 or more from Jan. 1, 1971 through March 9, 1972. Litigation concerning the release of other contributors' names (who donated money before April 7, 1972, when stringent new disclosure laws went into effect) is still pending.

Common Cause described the agreement as "a significant victory for the principle of pre-election disclosure. Before going to the polls the public would know the names of most financial backers of each of the major party's presidential candidates and the extent of their contributions."

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — A group of Philadelphia Eagle season ticket holders, after watching their insipid hometown team win only one of its first seven games in 1972, sued to get refunds on their tickets for the remaining home games.

The Eagles ended up winning only three of 14 games — including a mortifying 22-10 loss to the New York Giants — and thousands of season ticket holders left empty seats at Veterans Stadium when they stayed home rather than suffer through the Eagles' final home games. But the suit is still pending.

Attorney Alexander N. Rubin Jr., one of the fans who instigated the suit, is determined to follow it through, hoping to establish a precedent for an arrangement that would allow season ticket holders to sell their seats back to the team at midseason.

"Why should I pay $12.50 a ticket to see a team that has deteriorated to the point where it's just going through the motions?" Rubin says. "In baseball or basketball, a fan can just go to a game once in awhile if he wants but in football he is trapped. He has to buy his tickets in the spring before he knows what kind of team he'll be watching and the owner is able to thumb his nose at the fan. I think pro football fans should have the option to respond to the situation."

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Grassroots Action, Inc., a consumer group formed by former New York Congressman Richard Ottinger, sued the New York Telephone Co. in 1971, challenging a rate increase and the telephone company's rules in such areas as liability for disrupted service and cutting off of service for unpaid bills.

The company agreed to rectify what Grassroots executive director John O'Sullivan calls "the most outrageous" complaints but Grassroots filed with the state Public Service Commission for a rehearing last July and is still waiting for a response.

"The company hasn't admitted any guilt but they have made changes," O'Sullivan says. "What we're trying to do is concentrate on patterns of abuse by monopolies rather than simple mistakes. And we're trying to provide someone to talk to for people who are having trouble with these big monoliths and think maybe they're the ones who are going out of their heads."

"If nothing else, our own phone service has improved tremendously. The harder you hit them, the better you get treated."

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Ralph Nader's Congress Project last October published detailed profiles of all the nation's senators and congressmen who were running for re-election, giving their voting record, outside interests and biographies. The profiles, intended to heighten voter awareness and participation, were available for $1 apiece (cheaper in bulk) and are still being sold.

Congress Project director Robert Fellmeth says 120,000 profiles have been sold thus far — about half to groups and libraries, half to individuals — and he is encouraged. "What I'm concerned about," he says, "is getting that extra one-tenth of one per cent of the people involved."

"Those people will get others involved and that's going to make an impact."

MANCHESTER, N.H. — A southern New Hampshire environmental action group, Citizens for Cleaner Environment, Inc., helped bring to court a packing company that was illegally discharging wastes into a sewer that empties in the Merrimack River.

When the company was fined $1,500 in U.S. District Court in December, the group was awarded $750 by the court for its role in prosecuting the polluter. Laurence Kelley, the group's lawyer, said the money would be shared with a high school class that had gathered evidence against the packing company.

HILLSIDE, N.J. — Groundbreaking ceremonies were held last Nov. 30 for a $200 million, 750-acre sports complex in the Hackensack Meadows, a vast marsh just six miles from the center of New York City. The complex is destined to house a 75,000-seat sports stadium and a race track, among other things, but it has generated vigorous protests from many individuals, groups and towns in the surrounding area.

Barbara Eisler of Hillside, the president of New Jersey Citizens for Clean Air Inc., has been a leader of the Save the Meadowland Coalition, which combines 16 environmentally-concerned groups, including a local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She and Frederick Mezzy, an attorney friend of her husband's whom she enlisted in her cause, have led a thusfar futile and frustrating battle through state agencies and the courts but they haven't given up.

"I'm not against the idea of a stadium, but it's an insane thing to build it in a marsh, in the most congested area of New Jersey and without facilities for mass transit," Mrs. Eisler says. "They're going to tie everybody up in traffic and raise air pollution to astronomical proportions."

Some Philadelphia Eagle season ticket holders, after seeing their team win only one of seven games, sued to get refunds on remaining tickets.

"I realize what we're up against, with the governor and a lot of other people with money and power pushing this thing, including the press. And I'm not altruistic. It's just that I don't like having things shoved at us this way."

How a minus on your paycheck can be a plus in your future.

Sound confusing? It isn't, really. When you join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, an amount you designate will be set aside automatically from each paycheck. That's the "minus."

That amount will then be invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. That's where the "plus" comes in. Because you're automatically saving for your future, each year the value of your investment grows.

And, by deducting a little at a time from each paycheck, you don't feel the pinch financially. Before you know it, you'll have quite a tidy sum tucked away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds — for E Bonds, 3 1/2% when held to maturity.

Try it 5 years, 10 months (10% the first year). That extra 3 1/2% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Put a little "plus" in your future. Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

School board member won't seek new term

A second incumbent on the Dist. 21 School Board has decided not to seek reelection this year.

Rev. L. James Wylie said yesterday that he will not seek a second term on the board because of personal reasons.

His announcement comes at the same time that Dist. 21 General Caucus officials are indicating that there seems to be subdued interest in the school board elections this year.

With three positions to fill, and the possibility the caucus could endorse four candidates, only four or five nominees appeared for screening by the caucus last weekend.

RONALD COLE is the other board member who announced last week that he would not seek a third term. With Cole and Wylie out of contention, Ed Smith will be the only incumbent seeking reelection.

Rev. Wylie will be one of those seeking caucus support.

Time is running out for persons seeking caucus support, but the caucus will allow nominations from the floor at its delegates' meeting Wednesday. At that meeting, 27 delegates will vote for the candidates they want to endorse.

The meeting will be at the board room of the Dist. 21 administrative offices, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Each candidate must have a written statement at least 500 words long explaining why he or she wishes to serve on the board. Nominees will be questioned by delegates at Wednesday's meeting before the voting takes place.

Officials of the caucus said they are very disappointed so far with the turnout of prospective school board candidates.

SPEAKING YESTERDAY about his decision not to run, Wylie said personal reasons and the amount of time required to serve on the board were his major considerations. He said he feels the job of a board member should be a primary concern of those involved. "I just don't think I can make that commitment for another three years," he said.

He added, "I am proud and pleased with this school board. It is one of the best in the state, and I am happy I could have served on it."

A Prospect Heights resident, Wylie said he hopes he can continue working with the district and that his services will always be available.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said yesterday he was very disappointed to see Wylie leave the board. "He is going to be missed by the administration and board. In his three years he has been a real credit and had made a great input."

Persons other than incumbents and residents seeking support of the caucus may run independently in the board election by getting petitions from the Dist. 21 administrative office any weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Each petition must be signed by 50 registered voter residents of the district, and must be turned in to the Dist. 21 office between Feb. 28 and March 23. All three openings on the board will be for three-year terms.

Strong Street case ruling today

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert Downing is scheduled to rule this morning on the W. Strong Street zoning case.

The judge's ruling will determine if Wheeling village officials were reasonable in their decision last year to rezone 47 lots in the area for six-flat apartment buildings.

Strong Street residents brought suit to stop construction of the apartments, contending the project would have an adverse effect on single-family homes now in the area. The plaintiffs also said there were irregularities in the zoning hearings at the time.

Testimony in the trial began Jan. 23 and ran for more than a week. Both sides called witnesses to testify on their behalf, including land planners, real estate experts, engineers and village residents.

If the judge rules the rezoning was reasonable, developer Victor Smigel will be able to proceed with construction of the project. If the judge rules for the plaintiffs, work on the apartments will be stopped.

Just a peaceful afternoon stroll out on a limb — it's the getting down that's tough.

Master plan put to first use

Planners deny realty office request

by JILL BETTNER

The recently approved Buffalo Grove village master plan passed its first test Wednesday. The plan commission denied a request to allow a real estate office in an area designated residential on the master plan land use map.

Local real estate salesman Stan Lieberman had requested rezoning to construct a small combined office and shopping center on about one acre of land just west of Golfview Terrace on the north side of Dundee Road.

Phone calls were necessary to obtain a quorum of commissioners to act on the matter. The vote was three to one, with Commissioner Larry Gamm abstaining. Gamm's wife works for Lieberman.

The consensus of those voting to recommend that the village board deny Lieberman's request was that the plan commission should not set a precedent for future commercial development along Dundee Road.

IN PASSING the master plan, the village board emphasized a desire to prevent the type of strip commercial zoning on Dundee Road that exists in Wheeling.

Lieberman was among several residents, including Village Trustee Randall Rathjen and the 50 members of the Chamber of Commerce, who voiced strong objections to limiting commercial development on Dundee Road.

The group argued that putting a check on future business in that area was unrealistic and it is unlikely that the proposed village commercial center at the intersection of Rte. 63 and Buffalo Grove will be developed as planned.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the commission tabled a request from the Wheeling Fire Protection District for annexation and zoning of land on Dundee Road for a local fire station.

Action on the request was deferred in answer to a request from Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter, who is representing the fire district in the real estate transaction. Winter said he wanted more time to discuss the matter with the fire district board of trustees.

Plan Commission Chairman Carl Gerich said the request will be considered at the commission's Feb. 21 meeting.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department plans to build a second fire station on about two acres of the 6½ acre site directly west of the Kingswood Methodist Church. The department hopes to recover the cost by selling the remaining 4½ acres.

The fire district is asking for special use business zoning for the fire station, and low density residential zoning (usually for single-family homes) on the rest of the property.

Two members of the plan commission, Burt Harris and Larry Gamm, have said they think there could be pressure on the plan commission later to change the low-density zoning on the excess land to allow commercial use. They feel it is likely that anyone buying the property would ask for rezoning.

Secret school board meeting denied

The school board president and superintendent in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Wednesday night vehemently denied rumors that the board has been holding illegal, secret meetings.

The two men were answering a resident asking about secret meetings. She said she "had heard rumors of meetings on Saturday mornings." The board's meetings are regularly scheduled for Wednesday nights.

"We do not talk secretly behind closed doors because it is illegal, it isn't right," said Melvin Laco, board president. Laco said he has never even called board members on the telephone to discuss board business. He also stressed that when he first ran for the board, he made it clear he opposed secret meetings.

"In the five years I have been in the district, I have never been to a secret meeting," said Supt. Edward Grodsky.

Grodsky did point to one Saturday meeting, on Nov. 18, called for mediation of a contract dispute between the board and teachers. Negotiations is a legal subject for a closed meeting according to the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

"I HAVE HEARD rumors, I have not seen the secret meetings with my own eyes," said Jo Ellen Clawes, 203 N. Parkway. "But if it is happening, I want to see it slipped in the bud."

MRS. CLAWES also told board members they were "wrong in holding a closed meeting" Jan. 24 to discuss drainage problems behind the Dist. 23 three-school campus site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. Those who attended the meeting were Grodsky, Jim Hendran, Dist. 23 business manager, John Stull, Dist. 23 board member, a High School Dist. 214 board member, business manager and superintendent; an employee of Arlington Heights, manager of a department store and two representatives of area sanitary districts.

The group decided that Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Sanitary District urge Dist. 214 to hire an engineer to develop a plan to control flooding in the area. Dist. 23 officials say that runoff from the Memo Discount Store in Arlington Heights is being channeled into a drainage ditch at Hersey High School, which in turn, drains onto the property behind MacArthur Jr. High School. Dist. 23 has an exclusive contract with Dist. 214 allowing water from Hersey to drain on Dist. 23 land.

According to an attorney for the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI), the meeting was not illegal. "It would have been if a board was sitting as an entire group or if a sub-group appointed by the board to fact-find had been involved," he said.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squelches "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

British army troops fought a two-hour battle with gunmen in a village across the border — in the Irish republic — yesterday, while other troops fought back rioters throughout Belfast.

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Malaysia Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak have concluded talks on Southeast Asia policy.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

The war

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong are hoping to meet a Monday deadline for release of the first POWs. Secretary of State William Rogers said the first POWs would come out "in the next few days." In Washington, it was reported the cease-fire agreement appears to be holding up reasonably well.

NW Center seeks $3,487 from city council

The Northwest Opportunity Center today will request $3,487.98 from Des Plaines to continue its service to city residents.

The center, in Rolling Meadows, is faced with a projected $130,000 budget next year and loss of $62,000 in federal funds through President Richard Nixon's budget cutbacks. About $32,000 from 14 area municipalities will be requested.

Center officials Jan. 10 requested an appearance before a city council committee to explain the funding. On Jan. 23, Mayor Herbert Behrel asked for the center's budget and statistics supporting the fund request.

"We expect to submit the formal request to the mayor," said director Bruce Newton. "We expect that he will set up an appearance date—probably before the finance committee."

Newton said the center served 183 Des Plaines families last year.

Opportunity Center programs include "a wide variety," he said, listing—food stamps, Operation Nutrition, housing assistance, counseling, legal aid referrals and employment aid.

THE CENTER receives federal funds through the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity. The programs were 90 per cent federally funded when started in 1967 but recent federal funding has totaled about 40 per cent.

The U.S. office of Economic Opportunity was eliminated in Nixon's 1973 budget request. The administration has said some programs may be transferred to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The federal fiscal year ends June 30. The Opportunity Center is funded through September, Nelson said.

"We don't know if the funds will be impounded. OEO has always known it is living on borrowed time. We're not really sure what's going to happen," he said.

If all federal funds are cut back, the center may seek township aid in the form of federal revenue sharing money, Nelson said.

The Des Plaines total is third largest of the 14.

Center officials will appear before the Palatine Village Board Feb. 20 to detail the largest, $5,222, total. Arlington Heights' finance committee recently approved the $4,600 grant requested by the center, according to Nelson.

Other requests, Nelson said, are: Mount Prospect, $2,001; Wheeling, $2,011; Rolling Meadows, $2,458; Hoffman Estates, $1,257; and Prospect Heights, $266.

Schaumburg, which was asked for $476, and Barrington, $686, denied center officials appearances before village board committees.

RICHARD GEIST, 9, of 2041 Eastview Dr. in Des Plaines, right, displays first place trophy he won in the Pinewood Derby, a highlight of annual scoutweek. Richard will race his derby-winning car in Scout-o-rama April 7 and 8 at Arlington Park racetrack. To Richard's left are Brian Chamberlin, 9, of 693 Walnut Ct., and Randy Trost, 10, of 1120 Van Buren St., runners up in the derby. The trophy display was set up last Saturday by Cub Pack 14 at Leighton Insurance Agency, 685 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Youth center shut down by directors

Place for People youth center, which served hundreds of Des Plaines teenagers for more than three years, was officially closed Wednesday night at a meeting of the center's board of directors and trustees.

The decision to close the center, financially troubled for most of its life, was unanimous as board members and trustees agreed it would be virtually impossible to continue operation. They met late Wednesday at the First United Methodist Church.

The center, 1415 Ellinwood St., currently owes some $340 in rent plus another $2,000 to Forest Hospital in Des Plaines for the services of John Dronsfield, the center's director from last September through December.

Rev. David Russell, founder and later center director, restated his belief at the meeting that a major reason for the center's decline was a lack of community support.

"But for a place that received much of its financial help from the kids themselves," he said, "the center lasted as long as could be expected."

Rev. Russell said there is still a need for a community youth center in Des Plaines but it may be a while before another attempt is made to establish something similar to Place for People.

Paul Burchard, 595 Weblord Ave., a sophomore at Maine West High School and a regular patron of the center said many of the youths actually left when Dronsfield became director.

Dronsfield was named center director Sept. 1 last year in an arrangement with Forest that kept him on the hospital payroll, with Place for People paying Forest for his services. He resigned recently and moved to Colorado.

When asked after the meeting what he and the other teens who frequented the center would do now that it is closed, Burchard said, "It's just up to the individual kids to find different things to do now. We'll have to find other things and places that interest us. It's really a shame to see the place close down."

The center's annual Green and White Ball, which raised over $2,000 in the last two years and had been scheduled for next month, was called off Wednesday by center officials. Instead, a proposal was made to approach Forest Hospital officials to ask for relief from the center's current debt.

Center officials said they would try and arrange a meeting with Forest Hospital representatives but could not say when.

Place for People officials have scheduled a meeting Feb. 23 of trustees and directors to resolve some remaining smaller financial obligations.

City seeks to shut day care center

Closing of Baby Town nursery raises protests

A suit by Des Plaines to close Angel Town's A Baby Town nursery school has caused mailing of more than 80 protest petitions to city hall from throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Des Plaines is seeking a court injunction closing the day care center, at 2329 Birch St., because of alleged zoning violation.

Circuit court Judge James Mejda, Tuesday continued the case to March 1 on request of the city's attorney, Don Rose.

At Monday's city council meeting,

Mayor Herbert Behrel waved a stack of "dozens" of individual letters" objecting to the city suit at aldermen. The letters were referred to the council's judiciary committee for "reconsideration."

Most petitions, addressed to Behrel, are a form letter. Signers frequently did not include a home address.

"WE ARE SEEKING approval of the city council of Des Plaines for a favorable decision in the case. . . We as parents and interested citizens recognize the need for this facility for working mothers and fathers."

The letters call Angel Town a "well-run center in a suburban area with competent people taking care of our children.

"Please don't take Baby Town away from us," the petitions end in capital letters.

The letters come from Rolling Meadows, Rosemont, Glenview, Chicago, Elk Grove and Mount Prospect. Signers include Ricky S. Fulle, of 1429 Willow Rd., Des Plaines, son of County Commissioner Floyd Fulle.

Individual letters are signed by the Angel Town staff, an official of Borg Warner Corp., a grandmother and a number of area residents.

"I wish it was available years ago," the grandmother wrote.

"WE FEEL WE are taking very good care of our babies," the eight staff members claim. "Tender loving care is the most important thing you can give an infant."

The staff letter refers to closing of St. Vincent's Infant Home by the Chicago Department of Children and Family Services because the center was in a commercial building and lacked a "home atmosphere."

"I place all my confidence in this nursery," said Mrs. Nancy A. DeVore of Rolling Meadows, mother of a three-month-old daughter.

Mrs. C. Bork, of 7807 W. Glendale, Chicago, said Maple School, located across the street from the nursery school, a nearby factory and a shopping center "do not interfere with the residences in the vicinity, nor does baby town."

The city council authorized the suit in May 1972 after City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi said the center is a commercial business located in an area zoned for residential use. DiLeonardi, whose wife is a Northwest Suburban Day Care Center board member, asked that another attorney handle the case.

"I just can't see why they're pushing this," said attorney Leo McLennon, who represents the nursery owner, Lorraine Angell. "There's a great need for nursery centers. No one, other than the city, is protesting it."

"The city's only protest is that it's not a business area. You don't put a school in a business area. You wouldn't put a school at River (Road) and Miner Street," he said.

Park District spring schedule readied

The Des Plaines Park District will announce its spring schedule of activities for 1973 in a brochure delivered to local homes between Feb. 12 and Feb. 23. Residents who have not received it by Feb. 24 should call the park district office at 296-6106 or come to the office at 748 Pearson St. The spring offering of programs is the largest ever, featuring special events and many new classes for adults and children, park officials said. Registration for all programs begins immediately upon receipt of your brochure.

Mini-bike stolen

A mini-bike worth $125 was stolen when burglars entered the garage of Robert Lisowski, 236 Westmore Rd., late Wednesday through an unlocked door, according to Des Plaines police.

Bingo proceeds to finance bandshell

Bingo to finance the bandshell.

That's the newest fund-raising tactic of the Des Plaines Commemorative Memorial Committee which plans a war memorial bandshell at Lake Park on the city's south side.

Bingo to finance the $35,000 project is expected to begin from 2 to 4 p.m. Feb. 18 at Casa Royale, 783 Lee St.

The memorial committee, representatives of 26 local veterans' organizations, recently applied for a state bingo license. "We expect to receive it within a week,"

Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) said.

The bingo will be a regular Sunday event, he said.

The proposed project began on July 4, 1968 when Mayor Herbert Behrel dedicated a plot at Lake Park as a war memorial site. Original plans called for a pavilion that would include names of Des Plaines men and women who died in wars this century.

On Oct. 4, 1971, the committee received city council endorsement of a plan to construct a bandshell on the site.

Furnace motor fire startles shoppers

A fire in an overheated furnace motor startled shoppers yesterday afternoon and caused $50 damage at Spiegler's department store, 1467 Ellinwood St.

No one was injured in the basement fire which had burned itself out when Des Plaines firemen arrived.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squelches "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

British army troops fought a two-hour battle with gunmen in a village across the border—in the Irish republic—yesterday, while other troops fought back rioters throughout Belfast.

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Malaysia Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak have concluded talks on Southeast Asia policy.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

The war

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong are hoping to meet a Monday deadline for release of the first POWs. Secretary of State William Rogers said the first POWs would come out "in the next few days." In Washington, it was reported the cease-fire agreement appears to be holding up reasonably well.

PTA notes

The Maple School PTA will honor past presidents in their Founders Day meeting Feb. 15 at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Katherine Sciesz will speak, "On the PTA."

Robert Curley, resident supervisor of the Jewel Food Stores, will speak on "Consumer Affairs at Jewel." Babysitters will be provided.

Maple PTA is urging parents to help in the Community Four Per Cent Blood Plan. One unit of blood will assure blood for donors and their families for one year. If we can come up with 200 units of blood, it will cover the City of Des Plaines for the first quarter of the year.

Maple School is joining forces with South and Orchard Place schools. A blood mobile unit is scheduled for March 10 at Iroquois Junior High School, 1336 Touhy Ave.

Holy Family lay advisory officers named

John J. Angus, manager of Singer Business Machines, has been re-elected president of the Holy Family Hospital lay advisory board for 1973.

Chester J. Gulliani, president of the UOP Process Division of Universal Oil Products Co. was re-elected vice president. William J. Palley, president of Memory Gardens Cemetery was re-elected secretary and Arthur W. Pipenhagen, president of Smith-Pipenhagen Inc., Realtors, won another term as treasurer.

Angus became Chicago area manager for the Singer Company in 1958. Gulliani has been director of corporate planning, marketing plans vice president for all divisions of Universal Oil Products and vice president and president of the Process Division.

Active in community service work, Palley has served on the Board of Directors of the Des Plaines YMCA and was chairman of the United Fund Drive in Arlington Heights. He is president of the Chicago District Golf Association, a director of the Western Golf Association and the Evans Scholarship Foundation.

Pipenhagen is president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, member of the board of governors of the Illinois Realtors Institute, National Association of Real Estate Boards, Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards and the Society of Industrial Realtors. He was named "Realtor of the Year" in 1968.

Variety Club names third chaplain

Rabbi Jay Karzen, of the Maine Township Jewish Congregation of Des Plaines, has been appointed chaplain of the Variety Club by Chief Barker Bene Stein. The addition of Rabbi Karzen along with the Rev. John Banahan, and the Rev. Preston Bradley, completes the roster of three permanent chaplains for the Variety Club.

Rabbi Karzen currently serves as chairman of the broadcasting commission-radio and television of the Chicago Board of Rabbis. He also serves as chaplain at Lutheran General Hospital and the Niles Manor Nursing Home.

He is active in community and civic organizations and inter-faith activities in the Des Plaines area. He and his wife, Ruby, have two children.

First midyear graduation at Maine West

The first annual midyear graduation was held at Maine West High School. Thirty-eight graduates were awarded diplomas.

Members of the first mid-year graduating class are Linda Antolec, Cathy Aulert, Pamela Aylward, Sharon Banger, Erna Beerheide, Collin Carrell, Christine Cline, Lynette Colby, Matthew Courtols, Robert Fitzgerald, Jeannette Garnaica, Linda Grant, Terry Grooms, and John Heil Jr.

Other graduates include Jo Ann Kaminski, Marie Kanavoutis, Beth King, Nola Kanakaris, Maureen McKenna, Paul Mertes Jr., Debra Michalik, Martin Monnat, Paula Nelson, Kathleen Oman, Robin Opler, William O'Schaughnessy, Debra Parrotte, and Jame Poulos.

Also, Mary Lou Romano, Susan Schaefer, Loraine Smith, Sam Sparacino Jr., Sharon Scallits, John Teruggi, Carol Trombatore, Kathy Tylor, Wendy Wright, and Suzette Zabinski.

The graduates marched into the commencement to Roberts' "Pomp and Circumstance" with James C. Thunders Jr. as the organist. The invocation was offered by Rev. Mark G. Bergman of Trinity Lutheran Church in Des Plaines.

Herman L. Rider, principal of Maine West, gave the welcoming address and Richard R. Short, superintendent of Maine Township High School Dist. 207, made the presentation of the graduates. Michael W. Bartos, a member of the board of education, made the acceptance of the class.

As the graduates' names were announced by James L. Coburn, assistant principal of Maine West, the diplomas were presented by Robert C. Claus, a board of education member.

Girls at Maine West High go big time—in athletics

Girls at Maine West High School have kept up with the trend toward increased interscholastic competition by girls' athletic teams.

This is the first year for interscholastic fencing, and the first year girl fencers have represented Maine West. This is also the first year that the Central Suburban League has recognized a league champion in girls' volleyball, the first year the league has recognized a champion for girls' gymnastics, and the first year girls have represented Maine West in Illinois high school athletic interscholastic gymnastic competition.

Eight girls, coached by Karen Kenyon, competed on the girls' fencing team in the Mid-Suburban League. Maine West fencers are Kathy Dueball, Karen Neetz, Pam Nehring, Debbie Maday, and Lynn Rosner.

PROMISING newcomers to this year's team are Mary Rossi, Sue Permoda, Kathy Pellinski, Cindy Bergstrom, Barb Breider, Cheryl Schlage, Gayle Brenscher and Betty Dolch, Maine West's foreign exchange student this year.

The fencing team finished its season Jan. 25 in a triangular meet at Schaumburg. The team had previously beaten Schaumburg, tied one meet and lost one meet to Arlington, and had placed second in two triangular meets.

The girls' volleyball team is undefeated with wins against Niles East, Deerfield, Niles West, Maine South and Niles North.

Members of the "A" volleyball team, coached by Royleen Tipton, are Denise Bell, Maureen Brock, Cindy Brodie, Monica Polacek, Bonnie Serone, Kathy Shuttleworth, Kim Tuttle, Cheryl VanPutte and Kathy Zyrkowski.

Members of the also undefeated girls' "B" volleyball team, coached by Connie Bauman, are Karen Batey, Carol Gustafson, Tammy Hurst, Jane Krauser, Evelyn Johnson, Pam Linke, Liz Makuch, Kathy Saks, and Marcia Strykowski.

THE GIRLS' gymnastic team, coached by Mrs. Judy Beck, scored wins against Niles North and Niles East, and has one loss to Deerfield. In a Maine quad meet Jan. 6, Maine West placed second behind Maine East with Maine South third and Maine North in fourth place. In the league playoff which was held at Maine North Jan. 26, Maine West placed third in its division and ended sixth out of twelve teams.

Members of the girls' gymnastic "A" team are Noreen Barry, Bernadette Binder, Linda Blume, Carol Cahill, Cathy Clausen, Joan DeLaet, Val Epperson, Nancy Franklin, Dottie Gallucci, Sue Hartman, Sue Jobst, Gail Kaechle, June McKenna, Linda Miskovets, Audrey Nyberg, Kim Thompson, and Ellen Vanna. Members of the "B" team are Joann Cabell, Jill Carynski, Diane Hawks, Toni Jung, Nancy Lueburg, Cindy Nolan, Carol Szymanski, and Karl Taylor.

Other Maine West girls also competed in fall interscholastic competition, although this was not the first time for these events.

The girls' golf team, coached by Royleen Tipton, had a limited schedule with two meets against Maine North. In the first meet Maine West took two wins and one tie; in the second meet West golfers had two wins and one loss. A meet had been planned with Glenbrook North, but was canceled due to the weather. Maine West golfers are Jean Anderson, Pam Nehring, Chris Testorud and Carol Gustafson.

MAINE WEST girls who competed on the swim team, coached by Terry Milam, placed fourth in the Central Suburban League with 158 points.

Swimmers for Maine West are Pat Sipple, who placed second in 200 freestyle, second in 100 freestyle, and fourth in 50 freestyle; Sue Levand, who placed seventh in 100 individual medley and fifth in 100 backstroke; Denise Bell, who placed eighth in 50' backstroke and fifth in 100 freestyle; Sue Bowersox, who placed third in 50 backstroke and fourth in 100 breaststroke; and Betty Lou Evans, who placed fifth in 100 butterfly and 50 butterfly. The 200 freestyle relay team, consisting of Pat Sipple, Denise Bell, Sue Levand, and Betty Lou Evans placed third.

Maine West divers are Shiela McNulty, who placed eighth, and Kathy Mainbach, who placed seventeenth.

The girls' tennis team, coached by Barbara Jones, also had a busy fall season, in meets against Maine South, Niles East, Deerfield, Niles North, and Niles West in the Central Suburban League interscholastic competition.

MEMBERS OF the Maine West girls' tennis team are Kim Tuttle, Kathy Zyrkowski, Karen Neetz, Monica Polacek, Barb Schwarz, Maureen Brock, and Martha Clement.

In the state tournament Kim Tuttle lost her matches 6-4 and 6-2 to United High School; Kathy Zyrkowski lost her matches 7-5 and 7-5 to Tinley Park High School; and Karen Neetz and Monica Polacek lost their doubles matches 6-2 and 6-3 to the eventual doubles tournament champions from Rock Island High School.

The Maine West sophomore doubles team of Barb Schwartz and Maureen Brock won their matches against Lockport Central High School 6-0 and 6-1, and against Bishop-Magnamara High School 6-4 and 6-4. They were defeated, however, in their third match against Arlington High School 6-3 and 6-2. Maine West finished the state tennis tournament in eighth place.

Karen Kenyon, girls' sports coordinator at Maine West, said, "Maine West has implemented a good total interscholastic program. Girls are finally able to represent their school in competition with other schools."

Maine East choruses sing at junior highs

Members of Maine East High School's concert choir, boys' chorus and both girls' choruses entertained students at Gemini and Emerson Junior High Schools recently.

Students participating included: David Antczak, Lita Barron, Sandra Bartolucci, Margie Berrosheim, Susan Burton, Randi Buslik, Cathy Cacciatore, Lori Carey, Josephine Cavalyani, Richard Childs, Lynn Cichon, Sherree Cleveland, Joyce Coleman, Randy Crutchfield, Margaret Daffe, Roas D'Allesandro, Jo Ann Delterra, Rebecca Diener, Susan Dossy, Kathleen Domenella, Debra Garlike, Irene Gedweg, Steve Glynn, Charlene Golbach, Glenn Graff, Gail Hansen, Tom Hansen, Toby Hilbalk, Melanie Hirsch, and Martha Holst.

Additional participants in the program of music included: Martha Holst, Holly Hoyt, Jeri Jancks, Tim Jacobs, Jody Juhert, Julia Jurica, Donna Kalchin, Dyane Karp, Stephen Kilp, Cynthia Korn, Susan Larson, Debbie Laurie, Judith Larzar, Cathy Leitner, Nora Levine, John Llanos, Dawn Lucchese, Cynthia Luczak, Karen Mancil, Zarah Mardolan, Kathy Maroney, Jill Meyer, Donna Meyers, Pat McEvilly, Tom Miller, Sharon Mistic, Randi Morrison, Kim Panuce, Valerie Pearce, and Teresa Plach.

Also entertaining junior high students were: Robin Riemer, Kathy Ronick, Linda Rosenberg, Judy Rosenberg, Denise Rubin, April Santore, Raymond Savestio, Marta Selbergren, Jan Short, Karin Sorbie, Patricia Stilton, Cathy Surman, Kevin Tucker, Dan Twardowski, Ruth Vaparis, Heide Walker, Sandy Williams, Alan Welch, Barbara Zaehler, and Deborah Zelmet. Piano accompanist for the group was Randy Waldman.

Coin-machine thefts suspect caught

A Deerfield man believed to have been stealing from coin machines throughout Cook and Lake counties for some time was arrested Tuesday by Mount Prospect police for possession of burglary tools.

Also on Tuesday, Lake County police secured a search warrant for the apartment of the man, George Kristovich, 47. They found numerous laundry machine coin boxes, keys, code books (to tell which key goes to which machine and where the machine is located), wax key dies and cutters and a key-making machine.

Among the items found were two $20 double eagle gold coins, which the FBI says links Kristovich to a June, 1970, theft at the United Air Lines O'Hare Airport terminal.

ACCORDING TO police, the Lake County Sheriff's office was tipped off about Kristovich Jan. 4. At that time, he was linked to the series of vending machine thefts and the O'Hare theft, police said. The FBI is continuing investigations.

Apparently, the procedure used by Kristovich, police said, was to first make a wax impression of a key, then copy and code the key at his Deerfield address. The code books apparently were used to keep track of the machine to which each key belonged.

The United Air Lines theft took place on June 4, 1970. Stolen was $2,000 worth of silver coins and a number of double eagle gold coins. The coins were being shipped from Nunemaker Coin Shop in Nappanee, Ind., to Mansfield Services Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Mount Prospect police charged Kristovich after they responded to a call of a burglary in progress at 1340 S. Elmhurst Rd., one of the buildings in the Huntington Commons Apartments. When police arrived, they saw a maintenance man with a wooden plank chasing Kristovich through the development.

POLICE APPREHENDED the two men as they were struggling near the entrance to St. John Lutheran Church, 1200 Linneman Rd. This was about 10:30 a.m.

The maintenance man told police he had observed Kristovich breaking into the side door of one of the apartment buildings. He followed him in, they argued and Kristovich allegedly ran.

Police arrested Kristovich and in his car, which was parked nearby, they found 103 coin box keys, jiggler type keys, lock picks, lock tumbler, screwdrivers, various channel lock pliers and coins.

Kristovich is being held in Cook County jail on $10,000 bond and will appear today in Mount Prospect court. Lake County Sheriff's Police said they have no plans to arrest Kristovich.

From the library

Library patrons in Des Plaines and the entire Chicago metropolitan area can now obtain information and library materials not available in their own school, public, special or academic libraries.

An "Information Passport" (Infopass) is a new kind of library card which can be issued by over 140 libraries to patrons who need to gain information not available in their own libraries.

The Infopass Program, in effect since Jan. 10, is an extension of existing library services offered to patrons of the school, special, public and academic libraries who are members of the Illinois Regional Library Council.

AN INFOPASS will be issued for one-time use at the library where the patron is likely to satisfy his special need for use of materials, information help, in some cases even for loan of books. The librarian at the user's library will make referrals with the help of the Infopass Directory which contains detailed information about each library belonging to the Illinois Regional Library Council.

The directory covers everything from the libraries' open hours to descriptions of their collections as well as the kind of assistance each of these libraries is willing to give outsiders. The Des Plaines Public Library is a member of the council and is ready to improve its services with this new system.

The metropolitan area of Chicago is

City hall to close for coming holidays

Des Plaines city hall will be closed for two Mondays, Feb. 12 and Feb. 19, because of state and national holidays.

Feb. 12 is the state holiday for Lincoln's Birthday. Feb. 19 is a federal holiday to celebrate Washington's Birthday. City garbage will not be picked up. Both Monday pickups will be rescheduled Tuesday.

Lincoln's Birthday forced a switch in filing deadline for city offices. City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach extended the deadline one day, to Feb. 13.

The city councils' scheduled Feb. 19 meeting also was moved — to Feb. 20. Voter registration for city and township elections closes March 5.

The Des Plaines post office will be open Feb. 12, but no delivery and window service is planned Feb. 19.

rich in library collections and information resources, and the Infopass Program will serve to make all of us more aware of their existence and availability. For further information on the Infopass Program, call Kenneth Frank, Infopass Contact Librarian at the Des Plaines Public Library.

'Firm contract' expected this week

Trailer park ambulance, fire protection pact near

An agreement is expected to be reached by Tuesday between Elk Grove Mobile Home Park in unincorporated Elk Grove Township and Elk Grove Village for fire and ambulance service to the trailer park. Village Mgr. Charles Willis said this week.

Willis told the trustees Tuesday, "I feel we (the village and the park owners) will be able to reach a mutual accord with a firm contract by this time next week."

Fire and ambulance protection from the village was suspended Jan. 3-29 after the trailer park owners failed to reach agreement with the village on a protection contract for the trailer park. The fire services were restored when negotiations on a contract resumed Jan. 29.

The 170 trailers in mobile home park at 941 W. Higgins have been protected in the past under an agreement between the village and the late owner, Lewis Gauger. The protection was provided by the village in exchange for the use of a mobile home trailer. The trailer was first used as a temporary fire station and then for the Community Service hotline, a telephone crisis intervention center.

THE NEW OWNERS of the park were not able to reach an agreement with the village for fire protection, and the village returned the trailer to the park.

At the Jan. 23 village board meeting, trustees gave Willis and Village Pres. Charles Zetsek authority to negotiate the cost of fire protection and to restore fire services to the park as soon as talks resumed. At the same meeting the trustees reduced the cost of village fire protection to homes in unincorporated areas from $84 to $42.

Only 2 1/2 hours before village fire protection was discontinued to the trailer park on Jan. 3, a blaze gutted a trailer causing $5,000 damage. Two occupants of the trailer escaped the fire uninjured.

During the four weeks the trailer park was without fire protection from the village, the fire department was authorized to perform only emergency services at the trailer escaped the fire uninjured, burning buildings. However, there were no emergency calls at the location during this period.

Only five have paid reduced service fee

Only five residents of unincorporated subdivisions surrounding Elk Grove Village have paid the fee for village fire and ambulance services since the cost was reduced from $84 to $42 two weeks ago.

Last year a total of 252 homeowners in the area were offered fire protection by the village for $84 for the period from Nov. 1, 1972 to Oct. 31, 1973. Some 120 residents paid the fee before it was reduced on Jan. 23 after many protests that the charge was exorbitant.

Persons who paid the $84 fee will have their fire protection contracts automatically extended one year to Oct. 31, 1974.

For homes without fire protection contracts, the village fire department will perform only emergency evacuation services to rescue people from burning buildings.

U.S. Salt Creek agreement reviews late

Three federal agencies are late in submitting their reviews of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Agreement to the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said reviews from the Army Corps of Engineers, Department of Interior and Department of Health, Education and Welfare are now being readied for signature. The reviews were to have been sent to SCS in late January.

Reviews were received by seven other federal and state agencies at the January deadline.

According to Davey, the only agency to submit negative comments on the agreement was the Environmental Protection Agency. He said the EPA had questions about the quality of water that would be stored in the flood retention basin.

DAVEY SAID he did not believe "there were any serious problems with the EPA's comments."

Thomas Hamilton, chairman of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, said he thought the EPA did not have a full understanding of the purpose for the retention basin when the comments were submitted.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for the construction of a series of flood controls across the creek. The largest of these controls would create a large lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The lake would serve as a water retention site during times of flooding.

When reviews of the agreement are received from all necessary agencies, the SCS will include the program in its budget for the next fiscal year. After the SCS budget is reviewed by the federal Bureau of the Budget, the work plan will be sent to the Congressional Public Works Committee for approval of federal funding.

Federal funds for approximately half of the $26.5 million cost of the program are being sought. Once the public works committee approves the program, the SCS could draw money from its watershed works improvement fund.

CONSTRUCTION WORK on the Salt Creek Plan could be delayed by the fact the SCS watershed improvement fund has been reduced by several million dollars in the wake of recent federal cutbacks in domestic programs.

Davey said the fund is a lump sum to be used for construction of watersheds throughout the nation. He said the SCS funds watershed programs in the order the programs become ready to start construction.

Davey said if other watershed programs can begin before work on Salt Creek can start, there may not be enough money to do the Salt Creek work.

The state has already begun work on engineering drawings for the flood control structures. The drawings for the Ned

Brown Forest Preserve retention basin are to be ready by June 30.

If federal funds are authorized, the money would be available in fiscal 1974, which starts July 1, 1973.

THE STATE'S work is being done under a program started by former Gov. Richard Ogilvie. After severe flooding occurred in the Northwest and West suburbs last summer, Ogilvie announced that the state would not wait for federal funding, but would expand the program and begin work immediately.

The state does not have sufficient funds to complete the Salt Creek program on its own, but the SCS has assured the state that work done now will not jeopardize the possibility of federal funding later.

A series of meetings regarding flood control have been held among federal, state and local officials since Ogilvie made his announcement in September. Another meeting was scheduled for today at the Elk Grove Village Hall, but the state department of waterways management could not have certain material prepared in time. The meeting was rescheduled for March 9.

She's the 'Kimbies baby'

'I'm a dad—have a diaper'

by NANCY COWGER

Army Sgt. Herman Roth of Hoffman Estates keeps a box of disposable diapers on his desk in recruiting offices at Ft. Sheridan.

The diapers, in handy view and reach, are not for green recruits still wet behind the ears. Roth simply wants to be like the rest of the proud papas he knows, and display his baby's picture where he can see it every day at work.

And Roth's baby's face is on that diaper box.

Sharon Roth, aged 2 1/2 years, is the "Kimbies baby," a brown-haired child with a sweet smile and a security blanket—the same blanket she sat on as she modeled for the diaper package.

Mr. and Mrs. Roth moved into their home at 596 Chippendale Place when Sharon was three months old. The family settled into the community quickly, with Sharon's older brothers, Maurice, then 9 and Sol, then 8, enrolled in MacArthur School.

MRS. ROTH ALSO settled herself into local organizations, starting out with La Leche League. It was through that particular group that Sharon's one-shot mod-

Mosquitos may take a swat at us

The summer of 1973 could be one of the worst for lounging in the backyard if conditions are right to hatch the millions of mosquito eggs laid during last year's heavy rains, according to Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District.

Mitchell told Elk Grove Village trustees Wednesday that in the village industrial park alone there were 45 miles of weed and cattail-choked ditches that were excellent breeding spots for mosquitos.

Village trustees invited mosquito abatement district officials to the meeting to find out what the district has done in the past for the village and what its plans are. The trustees also asked about steps the village or its residents could take to alleviate the mosquito problem.

"OUR ONE HOPE is if the breeding ponds are full of water in April and May, the possibility of the eggs hatching is low," Mitchell said. He said if the ponds are low and the eggs are close to the surface, the eggs will hatch.

Mitchell said the egg count in the 245 square miles of the district was 20 times what it was last year in some places.

"One of our key ponds in Barrington showed 200 eggs per square foot a year ago, and this fall, after the rains, there were 4,000 eggs per square foot ready to hatch this year."

Mitchell said it was almost impossible to destroy the mosquito eggs and it was necessary to wait until they hatched into larvae to kill them.

Richard David, district vice president, said the present situation was caused by the abundance of rain that fell in the area last year which kept the ground constantly damp and increased the number of breeding areas.

MITCHELL SAID normally an inch of rain will trigger the larva cycle, but last summer, because of the great amount of rain, it took only a half-inch rain to hatch the eggs. He said 85 to 95 per cent of the district's work was killing the larva, or larviciding.

Spraying is the only efficient way to kill adult mosquitos, and this method is 75 to 90 per cent effective for 24 hours at best, Mitchell said.

Mitchell said even if all the mosquitos in the district could be killed, more mosquitos would fly in from other areas. He said the district's crews cannot enter DuPage County or the forest preserves to combat mosquitos. There also are limitations on the insecticides the district can use.

Part of Elk Grove Village's mosquito problems come from the nearby Ned Brown Forest Preserve, he said. Mitchell added that the Salt Creek Watershed to be built in the forest preserve will form a series of flood water retention sites that may become mosquito breeding places.

WHEN ASKED what Elk Grove Village could do to help the abatement district, David said the village could let the district know about all new construction sites and retention ponds so crews could spray them at the right time. Mitchell said creeks could be widened, rechanneled and cleaned when necessary to keep the water flowing, and when a builder disrupts drainage, a way should be devised to reroute the runoff.

Mitchell agreed to speak to the directors of the Village Association of Industry and Commerce to tell them the importance of keeping retention ponds

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squelches "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Malaysia Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak have concluded talks on Southeast Asia policy.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

The war

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong are hoping to meet a Monday deadline for release of the first POWs. Secretary of State William Rogers said the first POWs would come out "in the next few days." In Washington, it was reported the ceasefire agreement appears to be holding up reasonably well.

eling career began. Container Corp. called league officials and asked for potential models, saying they would make a donation to the league treasury for each baby that came to their Glen Ellyn office for a "screen test" of sample pictures. Mrs. Roth and another member went.

When they arrived, Mrs. Roth and her friend were mildly disconcerted — no one would tell them what product was involved, and the two-room Container Corp. offices somehow had a temporary look. But they were out on a lark, and to help raise funds for the league. Mrs. Roth had no idea Sharon would be chosen. She had number 13, and much as she loves Sharon, she really didn't think of her baby as a model.

"I have seen some awfully beautiful children. I have a lovely little girl — just like everybody else," she said.

THE FOLLOWING DAY, Container Corp. called and asked if the firm could send a representative to the Roth home to take more pictures. Sharon was being considered as their choice, they said, still not identifying the product. Mrs. Roth agreed, and an appointment was made for later that week.

As she thought of the impending photography session, Mrs. Roth felt even more anxious, knowing little about who was coming to her home and why. She called the firm and verified the name of the photographer, and decided to go ahead. Mr. and Mrs. Roth now are glad they did.

Sharon was posed in the Roth's living room. The family had lived there such a short time, they had not fully furnished the house, and the living room was empty except for the card table on which Sharon sat. Mrs. Roth is glad school was closed that afternoon, and her two sons were home.

"Nobody, from that day to this, can evoke the smiles from her that her two brothers can," she said.

ALL THIS TOOK place in February, 1971. While Kimbies, made by Kimberly Clark Corp., were test marketed in other parts of the country, they were not available in the Chicago area until last fall, and Mr. and Mrs. Roth were not able to see their daughter on the diaper box until last summer.

Mrs. Roth's sister, wife of Dr. Morton Friedman of Palatine was in the Black Hills this summer with her family on vacation, and came upon Sharon's Kimbies in a grocery store. They came back with armloads of diapers, said Mrs. Roth. And when Kimbies appeared in Chicago area markets, relatives on both sides of the family purchased abundant supplies, even though Sharon is the only child in the family of an age to use them. Sharon is on the package of daytime diapers for babies weighing 12 pounds or more. She may also be on the package of overnight diapers — her parents are not sure, because that baby's face not show.

While Sharon's picture has attained a measure of household word status, it has not been associated with her as a baby. She just doesn't look like a seven-month-old baby anymore.

Sharon's father has enjoyed the recognition of his baby girl, even though the public has not connected her with the diaper box. On his request, Container Corp. sent him enough unused panels for diaper boxes to wallpaper Sharon's room — but Mrs. Roth put her foot down at that point.

And Sharon's brothers are proud too. They know "it's special. But she doesn't know she's on the box that much," they said, "except when she sees the box in the store."

Suspect apprehended in coin-machine thefts

A Deerfield man believed to have been stealing from coin machines throughout Cook and Lake counties for some time was arrested Tuesday by Mount Prospect police for possession of burglary tools.

Also on Tuesday, Lake County police secured a search warrant for the apartment of the man, George Kristovich, 47. They found numerous laundry machine coin boxes, keys, code books (to tell which key goes to which machine and where the machine is located), wax key dies and cutters and a key-making machine.

Among the items found were two $20 double eagle gold coins, which the FBI says links Kristovich to a June, 1970, theft at the United Air Lines O'Hare Airport terminal.

ACCORDING TO police, the Lake County Sheriff's office was tipped off about Kristovich Jan. 4. At that time, he was linked to the series of vending machine thefts and the O'Hare theft, police said. The FBI is continuing investigations.

Apparently, the procedure used by Kristovich, police said, was to first make a wax impression of a key, then copy and code the key at his Deerfield address. The code books apparently were used to keep track of the machine to which each key belonged.

The United Air Lines theft took place on June 4, 1970. Stolen was $2,000 worth of silver coins and a number of double eagle gold coins. The coins were being shipped from Numemaker Coin Shop in Nappanee, Ind. to Mansfield Services

Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Mount Prospect police charged Kristovich after they responded to a call of a burglary in progress at 1340 S. Elmhurst Rd., one of the buildings in the Huntington Commons Apartments. When police arrived, they saw a maintenance man with a wooden plank chasing Kristovich through the development.

POLICE APPREHENDED the two men as they were struggling near the entrance to St. John Lutheran Church, 1200 Linneman Rd. This was about 10:30 a.m.

The maintenance man told police he had observed Kristovich breaking into the side door of one of the apartment buildings. He followed him in, they argued and Kristovich allegedly ran.

Kristovich is being held in Cook County Jail on $10,000 bond and will appear today in Mount Prospect court. Lake County Sheriff's Police said they have no plans to arrest Kristovich.

Political posters on utility poles OK

Candidates in the April Elk Grove Village elections will be allowed to post temporary campaign signs on village utility poles. The village board of trustees said Tuesday that the posters could be attached to the poles as long as the signs were removed "within a reasonable time after the election."

EVERYTIME MRS. Herman Roth changes her baby's diaper, she sees her daughter Sharon at two ages — the current one and at 7 months, Sharon's age when her picture was taken for the Kimbies disposable diaper package.

Chicagoan charged on marijuana count

Gregory Kramar, 21, Chicago, was charged with possession of marijuana Wednesday after he was stopped by Elk Grove Village police at Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Boulevard for driving a car with no taillights. Bond was set at $1,000, and Kramar was scheduled to appear in court March 21.

Village election campaign will get 'hot' soon

by MARCIA KRAMER
A News Analyst

They're lying low now, making plans, plotting strategy, lining up speaking engagements. But it won't be long before the Palatine Village Board candidates emerge from their cocoons and hit the campaign trail in earnest.

Very little overt campaigning has taken place since the Republican candidates were slated by the party in December and the Village Independent Party candidates were picked by the GOP splinter group in January.

That'll all change come the first of March, when candidates from both parties will begin making the rounds on the coffee circuit, attempting to drum up support. The stumping won't ease up until ballots are cast April 17.

SINCE ITS selection, the GOP slate has surfaced three times for "Listen-In" sessions to get resident input in the party's platform, and will hold another, for business and industry, next week.

The "Listen-In" probably have done more for the Republican candidates in terms of public relations, however, than in actually informing them of what Palatine residents consider to be the major local problems.

Surely the Republicans already knew that flooding would top the list of local concerns. And they couldn't have been surprised to see traffic congestion, planning for future growth, communications and intergovernmental cooperation mentioned prominently.

The VIPs also know these are the issues.

But, though starting from the same point, the two parties can be expected to arrive at widely differing "solutions" to the problems.

The VIP's, with presidential candidate Clayton W. Brown and three of the four trustee candidates all presently on the village board, will be largely on the defensive.

Brown doesn't consider that a handicap. "We'll run on our record," he says. "We're not ashamed of it."

THE REPUBLICANS, with only presidential candidate Wendell E. Jones currently on the board, will take the usual challenger's approach of denouncing the actions — and inactions — of the incumbent trustees.

Jones told Republican Party leaders that his opponents are "independents: independent from you, independent from me, and worse yet, independent and above the people."

The political overtones likely will continue throughout the campaign, and may in fact overshadow the real issues.

Jones says that rather than power flowing from the government, "in Palatine, power flows from a few Very Interesting People in a Very Interesting Party, who want to run what will become a Very Interesting Palatine."

The VIP's Brown retorts that Jones is running "a classic political campaign." "For political expediency, some people would do anything. That's the thing I resent most about Wendell Jones. He would tear the village apart to win the election."

THEY'RE JUST warming up. The accusations will begin to fly fast and furious come the first of March.

Both parties are lining up coffees, where the candidates will be on friendly turf to outline their programs. They're also accepting invitations to address homeowners and civic groups, where the candidates will meet head-on.

Other campaign tactics for getting the message across will include bumper stickers, buttons, mass mailings, door-to-door canvassing and, apparently, free hamburgers.

VIP strategists for the campaign are Roger Bjorvik and Tom Kearns. Behind-the-scenes organizers for the Republicans are Phil Stern, Phil Chouinard and Dennis Collins.

The election will be the first actual test for Jones before the voters (he was unopposed in his earlier village board bid), but he's well known and has the well-oiled Republican machinery behind him. Brown's vote-getting ability has been proven on two occasions, and the VIPs proved themselves a viable local party when they took two of three seats in their first campaign two years ago.

As to the outcome this time? Neither would venture a guess.

GOOD LISTENING habits are thought to play a major role in a student's ability to learn. Kindergartners learn to be good listeners Blow down on your lower lip and blow out, the voice on the tape recorder instructs a small group of kindergarten students. The result is a bunch of muffled "f" sounds.

The exercise is the first for the lesson on the "f" sound and similar to exercises in other lessons in the Central Auditory Abilities Training Program.

The program is being piloted with kindergarten students at Pleasant Hill and Lake Louise schools in Palatine and Jonas Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

The purpose of the program is to develop good listeners.

The next exercise is learning how to use the sound, first at the beginning and then at the end of a word like fall and leaf.

Then comes the real listening part of the lesson. As the voice on the tape recorder goes through a list of words, the students are instructed to clap everytime they hear the "f" sound. Occasionally a student is caught daydreaming and a broken clap on the word "Tom" can be detected but not too often.

Next two words come over the tape recorder and the students are asked if the words are the same or different. Rhyming words like "Freddie" and

"ready" are thrown in to make sure the students are listening.

This lesson took about 15 minutes but other lessons can take up to half an hour.

THE PROGRAM is strictly auditory but some teachers piloting the program have used it to lead into other subjects.

Donna Slattery, a kindergarten teacher

at Pleasant Hill School, reinforces the lessons by having students learn how to write the letter.

As the year progresses the students will complete the consonant sound lessons and move on to harder lessons with blends, rhyming and memory work. Some lessons will have background noises such as sirens, animals, and even a story, and the students will be asked to concentrate their attention on the lesson rather than the noises.

The students are pretested when they enter kindergarten on their listening abilities and then placed in groups.

Miss Slattery confesses she didn't do too well the first time she took the test. The first part of the test went all right but during the second part she found the background story about a teddy bear more interesting than the lesson. As a result she missed nearly half of the questions.

When she asked a student coming out of the test what she thought of the story, the student was quick to admonish her by saying "you weren't suppose to listen to the story."

MISS SLATTERY said it is easier to develop listening skills at an early age and once a person reaches his teens his listening patterns are established and difficult to alter.

Early development of listening ability influences subsequent ability to learn in school, according to educators.

The objectives of the Central Auditory Abilities Training Program are:

• To contribute to the overall development of a well integrated total language function;

• To improve the overall level of listening ability.

• To improve the overall state of school readiness with specific reference to reading readiness;

• To enhance over-all academic achievement;

• To enhance the child's self-image and self-concept to do work in school.

THE AUDITORY stimuli used in the program falls into three categories: Basic auditory perceptual skills, skills requiring selective listening ability and prephonetic skills.

The program is used every day and runs for 20 to 23 weeks. At the end of the program the students will be post-tested to see if their listening ability improved. Last year when the program was first piloted the students advanced an average of three levels. The students with the poorest listening ability displayed the most improvement, according to Miss Slattery.

At the end of this year the kindergarten teachers piloting the program will evaluate it and a decision will be made on whether it should be expanded and used at other schools.

A woman who is accused of forging checks in Palatine had her case continued to Feb. 16 yesterday when she requested a public defender in the hearing in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Alice Cano, 21, of Chicago, was arrested Jan. 30 for allegedly cashing forged checks at the First Bank and Trust, 35 N. Brockway St. The checks, issued to a Franklin Park company called Fox Plastics Products, were recognized by a bank teller and police were notified, leading to her arrest.

Earlier in the month, Mrs. Cano's brother, Richard Hernandez, 22, of 228 Rand Rd., Palatine, was arrested and charged with theft and forgery using the same company's checks. He was bound over to the grand jury by the circuit court and is being held in county jail awaiting a hearing.

According to Franklin Park police, 75 checks were stolen from Fox Plastics Products in December. When Mrs. Cano was arrested, she reportedly led police to the location of 38 more stolen checks. Palatine police said 20 of the checks are still outstanding.

Hernandez told police he had bought the checks, but refused to give further details.

In both cases, a teller at the bank was credited with recognizing the stolen checks and alerting police.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squelches "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Malaysia Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak have concluded talks on Southeast Asia policy.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

The war

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong are hoping to meet a Monday deadline for release of the first POWs. Secretary of State William Rogers said the first POWs would come out "in the next few days." In Washington, it was reported the cease-fire agreement appears to be holding up reasonably well.

U.S. reviews on Salt Creek late

Three federal agencies are late in submitting their reviews of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Agreement to the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said reviews from the Army Corps of Engineers, Department of Interior and Department of Health, Education and Welfare are now being readied for signature. The reviews were to have been sent to SCS in late January.

Reviews were received by seven other federal and state agencies at the January deadline.

According to Davey, the only agency to submit negative comments on the agreement was the Environmental Protection Agency. He said the EPA had questions about the quality of water that would be stored in the flood retention basin.

DAVEY SAID he did not believe "there were any serious problems with the EPA's comments."

Thomas Hamilton, chairman of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, said he thought the EPA did not have a full understanding of the purpose for the retention basin when the comments were submitted.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for the construction of a series of flood controls across the creek. The largest of these controls would create a large lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The lake would serve as a water retention site during times of flooding.

When reviews of the agreement are received from all necessary agencies, the SCS will include the program in its budget for the next fiscal year. After the SCS budget is reviewed by the federal Bureau of the Budget, the work plan will be sent to the Congressional Public Work Committee for approval of federal funding.

Federal funds for approximately half of the $26.5 million cost of the program are being sought. Once the public works committee approves the program, the SCS could draw money from its watershed works improvement fund.

CONSTRUCTION WORK on the Salt Creek Plan could be delayed by the fact the SCS watershed improvement fund has been reduced by several million dollars in the wake of recent federal cutbacks in domestic programs.

Davey said the fund is a lump sum to be used for construction of watersheds throughout the nation. He said the SCS funds watershed programs in the order the programs become ready to start construction.

Davey said if other watershed programs can begin before work on Salt Creek can start, there may not be enough money to do the Salt Creek work.

The state has already begun work on engineering drawings for the flood control structures. The drawings for the Ned Brown Forest Preserve retention basin are to be ready by June 30.

If federal funds are authorized, the money would be available in fiscal 1974, which starts July 1, 1973.

THE STATE'S work is being done under a program started by former Gov. Richard Ogilvie. After severe flooding

A series of meetings regarding flood control have been held among federal, state and local officials since Ogilvie made his announcement in September. Another meeting was scheduled for today at the Elk Grove Village Hall, but the state department of waterways management could not have certain material prepared in time. The meeting was rescheduled for March 9.

Halt expected on medals

The president of the Hamilton Mint Corp. in Arlington Heights said yesterday he expects to appeal a U.S. District Court order prohibiting him from selling 1973 inaugural medals bearing the images of President Nixon and Vice President Agnew.

The firm's president, Mike Cooper, said he was "very surprised" at District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr's ruling which upheld a suit filed by the Franklin Mint Corp., of Franklin Center, Pa., the company officially designated by the Presidential Inauguration Committee to produce the medals.

The judge also directed the Hamilton Mint to inform the 376 buyers of the "unofficial" commemorative that their medals are not sanctioned by the inauguration committee.

Cooper said that the Arlington Heights mint, which opened less than a year ago, has sold 359 medals at $100 apiece and 17 medals at $1,250 each.

COOPER SAID the Franklin Mint is the giant of the minting profession, doing $80 million annually.

"We don't do even a million dollars a year and we're not looking to become a giant company," he said. "We consider ourselves more of a fine arts rather than a mass production operation."

A court order Jan. 31 stopped the Arlington Heights mint from selling any more of the presidential commemorative medals which carry the profiles of the president and vice president and the presidential seal.

"We were very surprised at the reaction of the Franklin mint since no one has been able to really compete with them in direct mail sales," Cooper said.

He added that the judge had ordered the company to write to its medal buyers no later than Feb. 16, but said notification could be held up pending the appeal.

Area may get regional crime lab

A regional police crime laboratory for the Northwest suburbs may be headquartered in Rolling Meadows if support for the proposed lab is found among suburban police chiefs.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case said yesterday he has proposed using facilities in the city for the proposed crime lab. Case said Harvey N. Johnson, director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, has consulted with him on using the facilities on the third floor of the city hall for the lab.

The vacant third-floor facilities had recently been considered by Circuit Court officials for a 2nd District courtroom site, but Chief Judge John Boyle ruled instead to place the courtroom in Hoffman Estates.

Case said if the crime lab were located in the city it would have access to the city's extensive police photography lab.

PLANS TO ESTABLISH a crime lab have not yet been formally established. However, the Northwest Police Academy and Harper College are jointly conducting a survey of police chiefs in the area to determine the need for such a facility.

Currently the only lab facilities available to local police are one in Chicago, one in Joliet, and FBI lab in Washington and the Northern Illinois Police Crime Laboratory in Highland Park.

The Harper survey will include questions seeking information from departments on the number of specialists assigned to photography, detective work and traffic analysis. Interest in establishing a regional crime lab will also be determined.

POLICE OFFICIALS will also be asked how many times a local crime lab facility or mobile unit would have been used if it had been available in the area. The extent to which crime lab facilities were actually used during the past year by local departments will be included in the survey as well as the cost incurred for the use.

If a need for the lab is found, Case said Rolling Meadows would be a good location for the facility. "We are centrally located and could serve all the suburbs here adequately," Case said. He said since the Illinois Law Enforcement Department is already headquartered on Algonquin Road in Rolling Meadows, the crime lab facility could logically be placed in the city as well.

Case said the lab facility would also include mobile units to be headquartered in the city. According to the Harper survey, other services the lab could provide include centralized evidence storage, training programs for crime investigation and mobile crime vehicles manned jointly by local police and the state.

Suspect apprehended in coin-machine thefts

A Deerfield man believed to have been stealing from coin machines throughout Cook and Lake counties for some time was arrested Tuesday by Mount Prospect police for possession of burglary tools.

Also on Tuesday, Lake County police secured a search warrant for the apartment of the man, George Kristovich, 47. They found numerous laundry machine coin boxes, keys, code books (to tell which key goes to which machine and where the machine is located), wax key dies and cutters and a key-making machine.

Among the items found were two $20 double eagle gold coins, which the FBI says links Kristovich to a June, 1970, theft at the United Air Lines O'Hare Airport terminal.

ACCORDING TO police, the Lake County Sheriff's office was tipped off about Kristovich Jan. 4. At that time, he was linked to the series of vending machine thefts and the O'Hare theft, police said. The FBI is continuing investigations.

Apparently, the procedure used by Kristovich, police said, was to first make a wax impression of a key, then copy and code the key at his Deerfield address. The code books apparently were used to keep track of the machine to which each key belonged.

The United Air Lines theft took place on June 4, 1970. Stolen was $2,000 worth of silver coins and a number of double eagle gold coins. The coins were being shipped from Numemaker Coin Shop in Nappanee, Ind. to Mansfield Services

Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Mount Prospect police charged Kristovich after they responded to a call of a burglary in progress at 1340 S. Elmhurst Rd., one of the buildings in the Huntington Commons Apartments. When police arrived, they saw a maintenance man with a wooden plank chasing Kristovich through the development.

POLICE APPREHENDED the two men as they were struggling near the entrance to St. John Lutheran Church, 1200 Linneman Rd. This was about 10:30 a.m.

The maintenance man told police he had observed Kristovich breaking into the side door of one of the apartment buildings. He followed him in, they argued and Kristovich allegedly ran.

Police arrested Kristovich and in his car, which was parked nearby, they found 103 coin box keys, jiggler type keys, lock picks, lock tumbler, screwdrivers, various channel lock pliers and coins.

Library 'Friends' book sale Monday

Friends of the Palatine Library will sponsor a book sale Monday in the basement of the library, 149 N. Brockway St., from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Technical, nonfiction and fiction books will be included in the sale, according to Friends Pres. Geraldine Cosby.

The Friends are a layman's group of Palatine residents who are active supporters of the library. An outdoor book sale last summer enabled the Friends to purchase $800 worth of sculptures which can be circulated to library patrons on a monthly rotation basis.

Started in 1950, the Friends of the Palatine Library now number approximately 23 families, Miss Cosby said. The group will be drumming up support in coming months as the library starts its planning for a new facility on Benton Street south of Northwest Highway. Eventually, Miss Cosby said, they hope to have 100 families active in the Friends.

POLICE OFFICIALS will also be asked how many times a local crime lab facility or mobile unit would have been used if it had been available in the area. The extent to which crime lab facilities were actually used during the past year by local departments will be included in the survey as well as the cost incurred for the use.

If a need for the lab is found, Case said Rolling Meadows would be a good location for the facility. "We are centrally located and could serve all the suburbs here adequately," Case said. He said since the Illinois Law Enforcement Department is already headquartered on Algonquin Road in Rolling Meadows, the crime lab facility could logically be placed in the city as well.

Case said the lab facility would also include mobile units to be headquartered in the city. According to the Harper survey, other services the lab could provide include centralized evidence storage, training programs for crime investigation and mobile crime vehicles manned jointly by local police and the state.

GOOD LISTENING habits are thought to play a major role in a student's ability to learn. A new program being piloted in three Dist. 15 schools attempts to develop kindergarten students into good listeners. Above, Donna Slattery's kindergarten class at Pleasant Hill School works on a Central Auditory Abilities training program lesson.

Drug charge after chase

A Schaumburg man who led Rolling Meadows Police on a high-speed chase through three suburbs yesterday has been charged on five counts, including possession of narcotics.

Police chased Guy D. Coffey, 20, of 34 Pleasant Dr., at speeds of up to 75 miles per hour before apprehending him in Hoffman Estates. The chase began when Officers Terry Severin and John Drexler attempted to stop Coffey on Golf and Algonquin roads for speeding.

Coffey was arraigned in court yesterday and charged with possession of narcotics. Police found the narcotics in Coffey's car. Value and specific nature of the drugs has not yet been determined.

Four other charges were returned in the arraignment, including drunk driving, reckless driving, driving with a revoked license, and resisting arrest. A cash bond of $5,000 was set. In lieu of bond, police said Coffey is being held in Cook County Jail awaiting a Feb. 13 court appearance.

Police said Coffey fled when officers attempted to stop him. Two Rolling Meadows squad cars and one from Hoffman Estates chased Coffey before his vehicle ran off the road in Hoffman Estates. In attempting to elude police after his vehicle was blocked from the road, Coffey backed into two Rolling Meadows squad cars, causing an estimated $500 damage, police said.

Kindergartners learn to be good listeners

by JOAN VAN WYE

Blite down on your lower lip and blow out, the voice on the tape recorder instructs a small group of kindergarten students. The result is a bunch of muffled "f" sounds.

The exercise is the first for the lesson on the "f" sound and similar to exercises in other lessons in the Central Auditory Abilities Training Program.

The program is being piloted with kindergarten students at Pleasant Hill and Lake Louise schools in Palatine and Jonas Salk School in Rolling Meadows.

The purpose of the program is to develop good listeners.

The next exercise is learning how to use the sound, first at the beginning and then at the end of a word like fall and leaf.

Then comes the real listening part of the lesson. As the voice on the tape recorder goes through a list of words, the students are instructed to clap everytime they hear the "f" sound. Occasionally a student is caught daydreaming and a broken clap on the word "Tom" can be detected but not too often.

Next two words come over the tape recorder and the students are asked if the words are the same or different. Rhyming words like "Freddy" and

"ready" are thrown in to make sure the students are listening.

This lesson took about 15 minutes but other lessons can take up to half an hour.

THE PROGRAM is strictly auditory but some teachers piloting the program have used it to lead into other subjects.

Donna Slattery, a kindergarten teacher

at Pleasant Hill School, reinforces the lessons by having students learn how to write the letter.

As the year progresses the students will complete the consonant sound lessons and move on to harder lessons with blends, rhyming and memory work. Some lessons will have background noises such as sirens, animals, and even a story, and the students will be asked to concentrate their attention on the lesson rather than the noises.

The students are pretested when they enter kindergarten on their listening abilities and then placed in groups.

Miss Slattery confesses she didn't do too well the first time she took the test. The first part of the test went all right but during the second part she found the background story about a teddy bear more interesting than the lesson. As a result she missed nearly half of the questions.

When she asked a student coming out of the test what she thought of the story, the student was quick to admonish her by saying "you weren't suppose to listen to the story."

MISS SLATTERY said it is easier to develop listening skills at an early age and once a person reaches his teens his listening patterns are established and difficult to alter.

Early development of listening ability influences subsequent ability to learn in school, according to educators.

The objectives of the Central Auditory Abilities Training Program are:

- To contribute to the overall development of a well integrated total language function;

- To improve the overall level of listening ability.

- To improve the overall state of school readiness with specific reference to reading readiness;

- To enhance over-all academic achievement;

- To enhance the child's self-image and self-concept to do work in school.

THE AUDITORY stimuli used in the program falls into three categories: Basic auditory perceptual skills, skills requiring selective listening ability and prephonemic skills.

The program is used every day and runs for 20 to 23 weeks. At the end of the program the students will be post-tested to see if their listening ability improved. Last year when the program was first piloted the students advanced an average of three levels. The students with the poorest listening ability displayed the most improvement, according to Miss Slattery.

At the end of this year the kindergarten teachers piloting the program will evaluate it and a decision will be made on whether it should be expanded and used at other schools.

Ecologists seeking PTA help

The Rolling Meadows Recycling, Ecological and Beautification committee is asking parents of grade school children to help earn money for local PTAs.

The money will come from papers, glass, and cans to be recycled next month during the committee's monthly drive.

Mrs. Dorothy Lundahl, publicity chairman for the REB committee, said letters have been sent to parents of Rolling Meadows school children advising them of the program. A coupon is attached to each letter and when recyclable material is brought to the drive next month, the school with the highest total of redeemed coupons will be awarded a cash prize for its PTA.

Each month different organizations compete in the drive to encourage contributions. The organization which generates the most contributors each month is awarded the cash prize from money earned in the recycling drive, Mrs. Lundahl said.

Last month 33,540,000 pounds of paper, 10,710,000 pounds of glass, and 4,780,000 pounds of cans were collected. The organization receives as much as $20 per ton for recycled material, she said.

Money collected from the drives is donated to youth groups in the city as well as to winners of the collection contests. Excess profit from the drives is used to purchase trees for the city, Mrs. Lundahl said.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squeezes "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Malaysia Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak have concluded talks on Southeast Asia policy.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by midsession, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

The war

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong are hoping to meet a Monday deadline for release of the first POWs. Secretary of State William Rogers said the first POWs would come out "in the next few days." In Washington, it was reported the ceasefire agreement appears to be holding up reasonably well.

DENNIS MILLER removes mud from a drill used to take soil samples in Ned Brown Forest Preserve. Sampling must be done before work can start on engineering drawings for flood control structures on Salt Creek.

U.S. reviews on Salt Creek late

Three federal agencies are late in submitting their reviews of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Agreement to the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said reviews from the Army Corps of Engineers, Department of Interior and Department of Health, Education and Welfare are now being readied for signature. The reviews were to have been sent to SCS in late January.

Reviews were received by seven other federal and state agencies at the January deadline.

According to Davey, the only agency to submit negative comments on the agreement was the Environmental Protection Agency. He said the EPA had questions about the quality of water that would be stored in the flood retention basin.

DAVEY SAID he did not believe "there were any serious problems with the EPA's comments."

Thomas Hamilton, chairman of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, said he thought the EPA did not have a full understanding of the purpose for the retention basin when the comments were submitted.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for the construction of a series of flood controls across the creek. The largest of these controls would create a large lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The lake would serve as a water retention site during times of flooding.

When reviews of the agreement are received from all necessary agencies, the SCS will include the program in its budget for the next fiscal year. After the SCS budget is reviewed by the federal Bureau of the Budget, the work plan will be sent to the Congressional Public Work Committee for approval of federal funding.

Federal funds for approximately half of the $26.5 million cost of the program are being sought. Once the public works committee approves the program, the SCS could draw money from its watershed works improvement fund.

CONSTRUCTION WORK on the Salt Creek Plan could be delayed by the fact the SCS watershed improvement fund has been reduced by several million dollars in the wake of recent federal cutbacks in domestic programs.

Davey said the fund is a lump sum to be used for construction of watersheds throughout the nation. He said the SCS funds watershed programs in the order the programs become ready to start construction.

Davey said if other watershed programs can begin before work on Salt Creek can start, there may not be enough money to do the Salt Creek work.

The state has already begun work on engineering drawings for the flood control structures. The drawings for the Ned Brown Forest Preserve retention basin are to be ready by June 30.

If federal funds are authorized, the money would be available in fiscal 1974, which starts July 1, 1973.

THE STATE'S work is being done under a program started by former Gov. Richard Ogilvie. After severe flooding occurred in the Northwest and West suburbs last summer, Ogilvie announced that the state would not wait for federal funding, but would expand the program and begin work immediately.

The state does not have sufficient funds to complete the Salt Creek program on its own, but the SCS has assured the state that work done now will not jeopardize the possibility of federal funding later.

A series of meetings regarding flood control have been held among federal, state and local officials since Ogilvie made his announcement in September. Another meeting was scheduled for today at the Elk Grove Village Hall, but the state department of waterways management could not have certain material prepared in time. The meeting was rescheduled for March 9.

Halt expected on medals

The president of the Hamilton Mint Corp. in Arlington Heights said yesterday he expects to appeal a U.S. District Court order prohibiting him from selling 1973 inaugural medals bearing the images of President Nixon and Vice President Agnew.

The firm's president, Mike Cooper, said he was "very surprised" at District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr's ruling which upheld a suit filed by the Franklin Mint Corp., of Franklin Center, Pa., the company officially designated by the Presidential Inauguration Committee to produce the medals.

The judge also directed the Hamilton Mint to inform the 376 buyers of the "unofficial" commemorative that their medals are not sanctioned by the inauguration committee.

Cooper said that the Arlington Heights mint, which opened less than a year ago, has sold 359 medals at $100 apiece and 17 medals at $125 each.

COOPER SAID the Franklin Mint is the giant of the minting profession, doing $80 million annually.

"We don't do even a million dollars a year and we're not looking to become a giant (company)," he said. "We consider ourselves more of a fine arts rather than a mass production operation."

A court order Jan. 31 stopped the Arlington Heights mint from selling any more of the presidential commemorative medals which carry the profiles of the president and vice president and the presidential seal.

"We were very surprised at the reaction of the Franklin mint since no one has been able to really compete with them in direct mail sales," Cooper said.

He added that the judge had ordered the company to write to its medal buyers no later than Feb. 16, but said notification could be held up pending the appeal.

Candidates may file on Lincoln Birthday

The Rolling Meadows city hall will be closed for regular business Monday in observance of Lincoln's Birthday. However, candidates for alderman may file nominating petitions Monday at city hall from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Petitions may be filed with Deputy City Clerk Elizabeth Houldsworth.

Monday is the final day candidates may file petitions. City officials ruled city hall would remain open to accept petitions Monday after realizing that the holiday coincided with the last day for filing.

Nominating petitions may still be obtained at city hall. To be eligible to run in the election, persons must be registered voters and reside in the ward which they seek to represent on the city council.

Aldermanic positions will be decided in each of the city's five wards.

She seeks to fight smut, sex films

A Rolling Meadows woman has asked city officials for help in starting a chapter of Citizens for Decent Literature, a national anti-smut organization.

Mrs. John Mahoney appeared before the city's license, police and health committee this week with the request. Although city officials have said they cannot officially take part in promoting the group, they have given their blessing to the plan.

IN EXPLAINING her purpose to police officials and several aldermen, she said she is opposed to the x-rated films shown periodically at the Meadows Theatre. "I don't think people would object to (an x-rated film) now and then, but this is a constant thing," she said.

She has received literature from the national organization advising what steps may be taken to curtail the showing of x-rated movies, including the address of a St. Louis legal counseling agency that assists the organization.

ALTHOUGH SHE contacted the agency to send literature to Police Chief Lewis Case, Case said the literature was sent to Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey. Case said he would be willing to cooperate with Mrs. Mahoney's efforts but said he could not legally confiscate films being shown at the theatre or order that it be closed.

ALD. WILLIAM AHRENS (2nd), chairman of the committee, said while he agreed with Mrs. Mahoney's desire to do something about the quality of movies shown, he was "totally opposed" to closing the theater.

"I feel if people want to spend their money to see that, it's their business," Ahrens said.

Ahrens said the management at the theater contends the only way it has been able to operate at a profit is by showing the restricted films. When a family film is shown, Ahrens said, people do not attend. He added he thinks the majority of persons who attend the x-rated films are not residents of the city since most cars parked at the theater during such showings do not have city vehicle stickers.

Mrs. Mahoney said she has contacted local clergy on the matter but they have told her "their hands are tied." She said she will seek support to form a Citizens for Decent Literature chapter in the city in an attempt to pressure the theatre into changing its movie format.

Case told her that his department would cooperate with her in her efforts.

Suspect apprehended in coin-machine thefts

A Deerfield man believed to have been stealing from coin machines throughout Cook and Lake counties for some time was arrested Tuesday by Mount Prospect police for possession of burglary tools.

Also on Tuesday, lake County police secured a search warrant for the apartment of the man, George Kristovich, 47. They found numerous laundry machine coin boxes, keys, code books (to tell which key goes to which machine and where the machine is located), wax key dies and cutters and a key-making machine.

Among the items found were two $20 double eagle gold coins, which the FBI says links Kristovich to a June, 1970, theft at the United Air Lines O'Hare Airport terminal.

ACCORDING TO police, the Lake County Sheriff's office was tipped off about Kristovich Jan. 4. At that time, he was linked to the series of vending machine thefts and the O'Hare theft, police said. The FBI is continuing investigations.

Apparently, the procedure used by Kristovich, police said, was to first make a wax impression of a key, then copy and code the key at his Deerfield address. The code books apparently were used to keep track of the machine to which each key belonged.

The United Air Lines theft took place on June 4, 1970. Stolen was $2,000 worth of silver coins and a number of double eagle gold coins. The coins were being shipped from Numemaker Coin Shop in Nappanee, Ind. to Mansfield Services

Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Mount Prospect police charged Kristovich after they responded to a call of a burglary in progress at 1340 S. Elmhurst Rd., one of the buildings in the Huntington Commons Apartments. When police arrived, they saw a maintenance man with a wooden plank chasing Kristovich through the development.

POLICE APPREHENDED the two men as they were struggling near the entrance to St. John Lutheran Church, 1200 Llaneman Rd. This was about 10:30 a.m.

The maintenance man told police he had observed Kristovich breaking into the side door of one of the apartment buildings. He followed him in, they argued and Kristovich allegedly ran.

Police arrested Kristovich and in his car, which was parked nearby, they found 103 coin box keys, jiggler type keys, lock picks, lock tumbler, screwdrivers, various channel lock pliers and coins.

Library 'Friends' book sale Monday

Friends of the Palatine Library will sponsor a book sale Monday in the basement of the library, 149 N. Brockway St., from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Technical, nonfiction and fiction books will be included in the sale, according to Friends Pres. Gerakline Cosby.

The Friends are a layman's group of Palatine residents who are active supporters of the library. An outdoor book sale last summer enabled the Friends to purchase $800 worth of sculptures which can be circulated to library patrons on a monthly rotation basis.

Started in 1950, the Friends of the Palatine Library now number approximately 25 families, Miss Cosby said. The group will be drumming up support in coming months as the library starts its planning for a new facility on Benton Street south of Northwest Highway. Eventually, Miss Cosby said, they hope to have 100 families active in the Friends.

She'll team with Helen Jackson

Sue Popp announces plans to run for village trustee

Sue Popp of the Weathersfield subdivision yesterday announced plans to run for village trustee in Schaumburg and Carol Johnson of the Timbercrest subdivision is also considering seeking a trustee's seat.

Mrs. Popp, expected to file Monday, is teaming with Helen F. Jackson, who plans to seek a four-year term on the village board.

"My best qualification is sincere interest. I don't have a fantastic education but I do have common sense which I believe is an important asset," Mrs. Popp said. She said she had been employed as a dental assistant before her marriage but has not worked since the birth of her two children.

In a reversal, Jane Murphy and Bonnie Meltesen have both decided not to run for trustee posts after announcing they would seek the positions. Mrs. Murphy yesterday explained that she and Mrs. Meltesen have changed their mind.

Mrs. Murphy, instead, will join an independent citizens' group supporting Mrs. Popp and Mrs. Jackson. Others in the group include Schaumburg Township Supervisor Vern Laubenstein; Township Auditor Walter P. Wing; Willard Meyer of Timbercrest and John J. Carsello of the Sheffield Park subdivision.

LAUBENSTEIN and Wing are prominent members of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township, but said they are acting independently from the party in their support of Mrs. Popp and Mrs. Jackson.

Carsello, whose son Vincent is Schaumburg United Party campaign manager, expressed enthusiasm about the two women and Mrs. Johnson too. He is supporting and encouraging their candidacy because he objects to the current village policy of "uncontrolled growth" and inability to provide adequate services, he said.

SUP candidates for four-year terms are incumbent trustees Denis Lodgwood and Herbert Aigner and Ray LeBeau, chairman of the village's airport study committee. Ray McArthur, plan commission chairman, is on SUP's ticket for a two-year unexpired trustee's term.

George Daugherty has filed for a four-year trustee position and will run as an independent.

Hospital opponent weighs race

Carol Johnson, noted opponent of the proposed Schaumburg Road hospital site, said yesterday she'll decide by the close of filing Monday if she'll seek a trustee's seat in Schaumburg.

If she files, she would join with Mrs. Helen Jackson and Mrs. Sue Popp only "for convenience in scheduling and speaking," she said yesterday.

"If I decide to run it will be as a truly independent candidate. I wouldn't speak for these ladies and wouldn't ask them to speak for me," she added. She told, however, of attending a meeting this week of the independent group supporting Mrs. Popp and Mrs. Jackson and called the session "exciting."

Petitions taken out this week by Mrs. Jane Murphy and Bonnie Meltesen

"were not for me," she said, adding, "If I decide to run I'll take out my own petitions."

Mrs. Johnson is opposed to building a branch of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center on a 20-acre site along the north side of Schaumburg Road, just east of Blackhawk School. She claims the site is too small, there's not enough buildable land to allow expansion, and it will present a flooding threat to neighboring areas.

She traveled to Springfield last month on behalf of the Timbercrest Homeowner's Association to testify against the proposal before the state's hospital licensing authority.

Her husband, David, is a candidate for the Schaumburg Park District.

Drug charge after chase

A Schaumburg man who led Rolling Meadows Police on a high-speed chase through three suburbs yesterday has been charged on five counts, including possession of narcotics.

Police chased Guy D. Coffey, 20, of 34 Pleasant Dr., at speeds of up to 75 miles per hour before apprehending him in Hoffman Estates. The chase began when Officers Terry Severin and John Drezen attempted to stop Coffey on Golf and Algonquin roads for speeding.

Coffey was arraigned in court yesterday and charged with possession of narcotics. Police found the narcotics in Coffey's car. Value and specific nature of the drugs has not yet been determined.

Four other charges were returned in the arraignment, including drunk driving, reckless driving, driving with a revoked license, and resisting arrest. A cash bond of $5,000 was set. In lieu of bond, police said Coffey is being held in Cook County jail awaiting a Feb. 13 court appearance.

Police said Coffey fled when officers attempted to stop him. Two Rolling Meadows squad cars and one from Hoffman Estates chased Coffey before his vehicle ran off the road in Hoffman Estates. In attempting to elude police after his vehicle was blocked from the road, Coffey backed into two Rolling Meadows squad cars, causing an estimated $500 damage, police said.

Coffey's auto has been impounded as a result of the narcotics charge, police said.

Library will hold 'funny film festival'

Since the Schaumburg Township Schools will be closed Monday the Schaumburg Township Library has arranged a special day long "funny films festival" for school children.

Admission to the movies is free, however the films are for school-aged children and pre-schoolers must be accompanied by an adult.

Showings are scheduled from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., 1 to 2 p.m. and 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

EVERYTIME MRS. Herman Roth changes her baby's diaper, she sees her daughter Sharon at two ages — the current one and at 7 months, Sharon's age when her picture was taken for the Kimbies disposable diaper package.

Unit study to be aired again

Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 will take a new look at a unit district study report it received several months ago. This does not mean the district is considering going to a unit district, said board member Sherwood Spatz.

Spatz, who chairs the education committee, said the unification subcommittee has been reactivated and placed under the chairmanship of board member Donnie Ridd.

After its study several months ago the committee said there would be no significant financial or educational benefits to Dist. 54 if the district decided to become a unit district.

Spatz agreed the district's action could be interpreted as a counter action against the Schaumburg United Party's plan to conduct a study on advantages of a separate unit school district for the Village of Schaumburg.

"We want to bring more attention to a study we feel was done by experts," said Spatz.

"The ten-member unification committee had representation from High School Dist. 211, surrounding elementary school districts and board, administrators, and teachers from this and surrounding districts as well as members of the community," said Spatz.

The same members will be asked to serve on the unification committee again, he added.

"We believe the study was thorough but perhaps we did not as thoroughly share the results of the study with everyone," he added.

"This time we will," he added.

Diapers are (little) girl's best friend

by NANCY COWGER

Army Sgt. Herman Roth of Hoffman Estates keeps a box of disposable diapers on his desk in recruiting offices at Ft. Sheridan.

The diapers, in handy view and reach, are not for green recruits still wet behind the ears. Roth simply wants to be like the rest of the proud papas he knows, and display his baby's picture where he can see it every day at work.

And Roth's baby's face is on that diaper box.

Sharon Roth, aged 2½ years, is the "Kimbies baby," a brown-haired child with a sweet smile and a security blanket — the same blanket she sat on as she modeled for the diaper package.

Mr. and Mrs. Roth moved into their home at 596 Chippendale Place when Sharon was three months old. The family settled into the community quickly, with Sharon's older brothers, Maurice, then 9 and Sol, then 8, enrolled in MacArthur School.

MRS. ROTH ALSO settled herself into local organizations, starting out with La Leche League. It was through that particular group that Sharon's one-shot modeling career began.

Containor Corp. called league officials and asked for potential models, saying they would make a donation to the league treasury for each baby that came to their Glen Ellyn office for a "screen test" of sample pictures. Mrs. Roth and another member went.

When they arrived, Mrs. Roth and her friend were mildly disconcerted — no one would tell them what product was involved, and the two-room Containor Corp. offices somehow had a temporary look. But they were out on a lark, and to help raise funds for the league. Mrs. Roth had no idea Sharon would be chosen. She had number 13, and much as she loves Sharon, she really didn't think of her baby as a model.

"I have seen some awfully beautiful children. I have a lovely little girl — just like everybody else," she said.

THE FOLLOWING DAY, Containor Corp. called and asked if the firm could send a representative to the Roth home to take more pictures. Sharon was being considered as their choice, they said, still not identifying the product. Mrs. Roth agreed, and an appointment was made for later that week.

As she thought of the impending photography session, Mrs. Roth felt even more anxious, knowing little about who was coming to her home and why. She called the firm and verified the name of the photographer, and decided to go ahead. Mr. and Mrs. Roth now are glad they did.

Sharon was posed in the Roth's living room. The family had lived there such a short time, they had not fully furnished the house, and the living room was empty except for the card table on which Sharon sat. Mrs. Roth is glad school was closed that afternoon, and her two sons were home.

"Nobody, from that day to this, can evoke the smiles from her that her two brothers can," she said.

U.S. Salt Creek reviews late

Three federal agencies are late in submitting their reviews of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Agreement to the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said reviews from the Army Corps of Engineers, Department of Interior and Department of Health, Education and Welfare are now being readied for signature. The reviews were to have been sent to SCS in late January.

Reviews were received by seven other federal and state agencies at the January deadline.

According to Davey, the only agency to submit negative comments on the agreement was the Environmental Protection Agency. He said the EPA had questions about the quality of water that would be stored in the flood retention basin.

DAVEY SAID he did not believe "there were any serious problems with the EPA's comments."

Thomas Hamilton, chairman of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, said he thought the EPA did not have a full understanding of the purpose for the retention basin when the comments were submitted.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for the construction of a series of flood controls across the creek. The largest of these controls would create a large lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The lake would serve as a water retention site during times of flooding.

When reviews of the agreement are received from all necessary agencies, the SCS will include the program in its budget for the next fiscal year. After the SCS budget is reviewed by the federal Bureau (Continued on page 3)

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squeezes "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

Vice President Spiro Agnew and Malaysia Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak have concluded talks on Southeast Asia policy.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 20 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

Monday deadline to file petitions

Monday is the filing deadline for independent candidates for public office in the villages of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates, and for candidates on a party slate for Schaumburg Township.

In Hoffman Estates, Deputy Village Clerk Helen Wozniak will accept candidate petitions from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and Monday, and from 9 a.m. to noon tomorrow in the municipal building at 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

In the Village of Schaumburg, Clerk Sandy Carsello will accept petitions from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and Monday; and from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday in the village hall at 217 S. Civic Dr.

Petitions may be filed for party slates in the township election from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. today and Monday; and 9 a.m. to noon tomorrow. They are to be filed in township offices in The Buttery, 103 S. Roselle Rd. Filing is closed for independents running in the township election.

Budget hearing set Saturday morning

A preliminary budget hearing will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Schaumburg Township Offices at The Buttery, 103 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

Schaumburg Township Clerk Kathleen Wojcik said the hearing previously called for Feb. 14 has been rescheduled to tomorrow.

Provisional LWV finance head resigns

The resignation of Mrs. Carol Johnson as finance chairman of the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Provisional League of Women Voters was announced yesterday by Pres. Pat Caldwell.

Mrs. Johnson has decided to become politically active, said Mrs. Caldwell, and the league has a nonpartisan policy toward politics.

PTA Council plans Valentine dance

A Valentine's Day dance is being planned for next Wednesday by the Schaumburg Area Council of PTAs at the Lancer Restaurant.

Funds raised from the dance, which costs $5 per couple, will be used to improve and develop a nature center behind the Robert Frost Junior High School. The area will be used by Elementary Dist. 54 as an outdoor classroom.

Dance music by the Ray Boughen Combo will begin at 8:30 p.m. Snacks and refreshments will be available.

Tickets for the dance may be obtained by calling any local PTA officer or from Mrs. Esther Karras, council president, at 529-4462.

'Robin Hood' movie scheduled tomorrow

"The Story of Robin Hood" will be shown at 2 p.m. tomorrow by the Hoffman Estates Park District as part of its continuing children's film festival series.

The film will be shown at the Vogelbe Recreation Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates. Admission will be 50 cents.

The film is a Walt Disney Production and was filmed in England's Sherwood Forest. Refreshments will be available.

Paintings on exhibit at Conant High School

An exhibit of 20th century painting reproductions is being exhibited at the Conant High School library and media center. Works of artists Grant Wood, Winslow Homer, Andrew Wyeth, Wassily Kandinsky, Paul Klee, Salvador Dali and Ben Shahn are included in the showing.

The reproductions will be on exhibit through Feb. 15.

Daria Moore, chairman of the art department, has arranged the showing through the division of university extension visual arts at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana.

Hanover Park, Pleasant Hills areas in question

Residents to present boundary alternatives

Representatives of Hanover Park residents will present the High School Dist. 211 Board with alternatives for attendance boundaries for high schools in Schaumburg Township on Feb. 22.

Residents of that area won agreement from the Dist. 211 board to hear their proposals at a meeting last night. In addition the board agreed to consider the plea of residents in the Pleasant Hills subdivision in unincorporated Schaumburg Township at the same time.

The Hanover Park residents and residents of Pleasant Hills have been protesting new school attendance boundaries set last month by the Dist. 211 board.

According to the new boundaries, students in Hanover Park north of Irving Park Road will be transferred next year from Schaumburg High School to Hoffman Estates High School and students of that village south of Irving Park Road along with students of the Pleasant Hills subdivision will be transferred from Schaumburg High School to Conant High School.

WILLIAM V. JOHNSON, an attorney hired by the Hanover Park residents, told the board that he and residents of that area had discussed the reasons for the boundary changes with district administrators.

He said the boundary plan does mean that enrollments will be balanced between the three high schools in Schaumburg Township but added, "the people who are paying the price for these balanced enrollments are the people in Hanover Park."

District administrators have explained they have tried to draw boundaries for the three high schools so that Schaumburg High School will not be overcrowded.

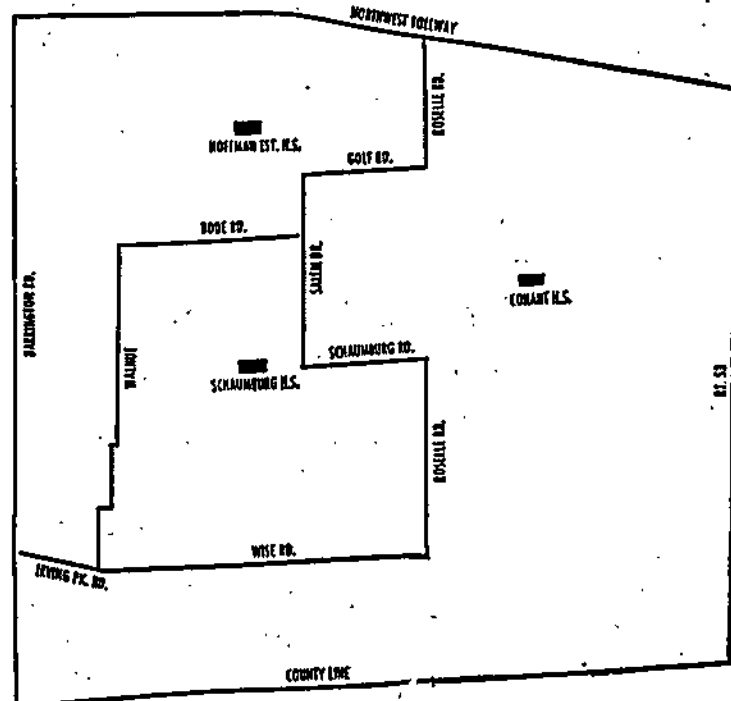

Board Pres. Robert Creek explained the capacity of Schaumburg High School is approximately 2,100 even though original plans called for it to accommodate 2,500 students.

JOHNSON TOLD the board that he and his clients would be able to draw up several alternative boundary plans in time for the board's meeting Feb. 22.

He specifically pointed to the Timbercrest subdivision in Schaumburg as an area that could be transferred to Conant High School so that students in Hanover Park could attend Schaumburg High School. He said, "We're going to come in with a plan that is better for us, but we'll try not to hurt anyone else in another area."

Board Member Robert Seger told Johnson and his 40 assembled supporters that he recognized that Hanover Park may be treated inequitably in the present boundary plan but added, "I haven't seen a better plan that doesn't cause the same problem somewhere else."

Residents of the Pleasant Hills subdivision south of Wise Road explained they are asking to be included in the Schaumburg attendance area and hope their plea will be considered separately from that of Hanover Park residents. A resident of that area said they are interested in making sure students from their subdivision attend high school with the same group of students with whom they attend elementary school.

THESE ATTENDANCE boundaries are the ones set last month for the schools in Schaumburg Township by the High School Dist. 211 Board. Residents from Hanover Park, north and south of Irving Park Road, and of the Pleasant Hills subdivision, just south of Wise Road, have been protesting the busing of their children past Schaumburg High School. If unchanged the boundaries would take effect in September, 1973 and would affect freshmen and sophomores for the first year.

Suspect apprehended in coin-machine thefts

A Deerfield man believed to have been stealing from coin machines throughout Cook and Lake counties for some time was arrested Tuesday by Mount Prospect police for possession of burglary tools.

Also on Tuesday, Lake County police secured a search warrant for the apartment of the man, George Kristovich, 47. They found numerous laundry machine coin boxes, keys, code books (to tell which key goes to which machine and where the machine is located), wax key dies and cutters and a key-making machine.

Among the items found were two $20 double eagle gold coins, which the FBI says links Kristovich to a June, 1970, theft at the United Air Lines O'Hare Airport terminal.

ACCORDING TO police, the Lake County Sheriff's office was tipped off about Kristovich Jan. 4. At that time, he was linked to the series of vending machine thefts and the O'Hare theft, police said. The FBI is continuing investigations.

Apparently, the procedure used by Kristovich, police said, was to first make a wax impression of a key, then copy and code the key at his Deerfield address. The code books apparently were used to keep track of the machine to which each key belonged.

The United Air Lines theft took place on June 4, 1970. Stolen was $2,000 worth of silver coins and a number of double eagle gold coins. The coins were being shipped from Numemaker Coin Shop in Nappanee, Ind. to Mansfield Services Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Mount Prospect police charged Kristovich after they responded to a call of a burglary in progress at 1340 S. Elmhurst Rd., one of the buildings in the Huntington Commons Apartments. When police arrived, they saw a maintenance man with a wooden plank chasing Kristovich through the development.

POLICE APPREHENDED the two men as they were struggling near the entrance to St. John Lutheran Church, 1200 Linneman Rd. This was about 10:30 a.m.

The maintenance man told police he had observed Kristovich breaking into the side door of one of the apartment buildings. He followed him in, they argued and Kristovich allegedly ran.

Police arrested Kristovich and in his car, which was parked nearby, they found 103 coin box keys, jiggler type keys, lock picks, lock tumbler, screwdrivers, various channel lock pliers and coins.

U.S. reviews on Salt Creek late

(Continued from page 1) of the Budget, the work plan will be sent to the Congressional Public Works Committee for approval of federal funding.

Federal funds for approximately half of the $20.5 million cost of the program are being sought. Once the public works committee approves the program, the SCS could draw money from its watershed works improvement fund.

CONSTRUCTION WORK on the Salt Creek Plan could be delayed by the fact the SCS watershed improvement fund has been reduced by several million dollars in the wake of recent federal cutbacks in domestic programs.

Davey said the fund is a lump sum to be used for construction of watersheds throughout the nation. He said the SCS funds watershed programs in the order the programs become ready to start construction.

Davey said if other watershed programs can begin before work on Salt Creek can start, there may not be enough money to do the Salt Creek work.

The state has already begun work on engineering drawings for the flood control structures. The drawings for the Ned

Brown Forest Preserve retention basin are to be ready by June 30.

If federal funds are authorized, the money would be available in fiscal 1974, which starts July 1, 1973.

THE STATE'S work is being done under a program started by former Gov. Richard Ogilvie. After severe flooding occurred in the Northwest and West suburbs last summer, Ogilvie announced that the state would not wait for federal funding, but would expand the program and begin work immediately.

The state does not have sufficient funds to complete the Salt Creek program on its own, but the SCS has assured the state that work done now will not jeopardize the possibility of federal funding later.

A series of meetings regarding flood control have been held among federal, state and local officials since Ogilvie made his announcement in September. Another meeting was scheduled for today at the Elk Grove Village Hall, but the state department of waterways management could not have certain material prepared in time. The meeting was rescheduled for March 9.

Schaumburg Township race

3 independents call for fiscal integrity

Three independent candidates for Schaumburg Township public office called for fiscal responsibility this week in releasing their platform. They said they want to play a key role in managing the $750,000 the township will receive this year.

Independents Charles R. (Dick) English, 1916 Cloverdale Ct., Timothy O'Brien, 1401 Elmhurst Ln., and Frank Domenico, 230 Salem Dr., all of Schaumburg, emphasized they are an independent slate.

At a press conference kicking off their campaign, English said he and his running mates are not against the Republican slate of nine that is seeking the election in April.

Stressing what he called "a positive campaign," he said, "We are running for office and are not against anyone. In fact we are all three registered Republicans," English said. "But we don't expect any help from the GOP party," he added.

"But that doesn't mean we think we can win the election ourselves," he said.

Admitting he and O'Brien are members of the Schaumburg United Party, English said the slate would not turn down support from SUP or any other interested party in the township.

"IN FACT I went to Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher, a fellow SUP member, for advice when I wanted to run for office. It was just an amateur asking the expert for advice and my efforts as a candidate are as an independent," said English.

"Our campaign will be funded by the three of us and we worked alone to put together a platform based on sound financial management and local action to achieve desirable results."

The five-point election platform is based on these planks:

Financial management that calls for a reduction of the tax rate as the tax base increases, a reduction of township administrative costs and preparation and publication of semi-annual reports.

Mosquito control by developing a township wide mosquito control program in cooperation with and as a supplement to other governmental programs.

A youth committee that includes teenage leaders and representative of all youth oriented organizations in the township. The committee and officials will work together to channel township funds directly to these organizations.

CONTINUED SUPPORT of the township library's educational and recreational services.

And, continued support in a businesslike manner, of "traditional township programs such as mental health and welfare and roads."

Elaborating on the planks, English said the slate, if elected, will look closely at office costs.

"What do they really do?" asked English. He said his slate is not charging negligence, "but just wants to make sure all the present employees are needed."

The independents said they conducted a study that shows the township will receive $750,000 from taxes and federal revenue sharing this year.

"That money should be used to pay for programs that residents would normally pay for out of their own pockets."

"We will find out if we can legally give funds to the Boy Scouts, YMCA or other youth groups."

"Instead of putting the money into township offices or staff expenses, it will go for such programs," said English.

Domenico, who is active in youth work through the Schaumburg Jaycees, said he "wants to see a redefinition of youth programs stressing positive ideas."

"I've been meeting with young people and they say they want to be in what's happening. They should be active members of the youth committee," he added.

Domenico would organize a committee to work with local organizations to centralize youth programs and projects.

A working relationship with park and school boards to set up personal development courses where girls could learn to cook or learn habits of good grooming, is one of Domenico's goals.

HE ALSO wants the township to give youngsters notice where open parks exist so they can use them when organized activities are not going on. The youth committee plank also calls for an exchange of ideas between communities, and working with school and park districts to help the drop-outs develop skills.

All three candidates say their campaign will start by making the public aware that township government exists and can affect their lives in a positive way.

Any group that wants to hear the three explain their campaign pledges can contact any candidate to arrange a coffee or talk session, said English.

English, 32, is married and has two children. He works as a corporate auditor for the Arvey Corp. and holds a degree in finance. A Sheffield Park homeowner for the past three years, he is a member of SUP, the Schaumburg Jaycees, the Sheffield Park Homeowners Association, and is sustaining membership chairman for the Boy Scouts of America.

O'Brien, 33, is married and has two children. A Sheffield Park homeowner for the past 15 months, he also is a member of the homeowners association. He is employed as manager of programming for Allied Mills of Chicago, and is a member of SUP and the St. Hubert's West, Church Board. O'Brien has a degree in mathematics and business administration.

Domenico and his wife, Barbara, have lived in Schaumburg for four years. He is an active member of the Jaycees and chairs the drug abuse, youth, and walk-for-mankind committees. He organized a Cub Scout pack. Domenico is employed at Baxter Laboratories in Deerfield.

She's the 'Kimbies baby'

'I'm a dad—have a diaper'

Mrs. Roth's sister, wife of Dr. Morton

Friedman of Palatine was in the Black Hills this summer with her family on vacation, and came upon Sharon's Kimbies in a grocery store. They came back with armloads of diapers, said Mrs. Roth. And when Kimbies appeared in Chicago area markets, relatives on both sides of the family purchased abundant supplies, even though Sharon is the only child in the family of an age to use them. Sharon is on the package of daytime diapers for babies weighing 12 pounds or more. She may also be on the package of overnight diapers — her parents are not sure, because that baby's face not show.

While Sharon's picture has attained a measure of household word status, it has not been associated with her as a baby. She just doesn't look like a seven-month-old baby anymore.

Sharon's father has enjoyed the recognition of his baby girl, even though the public has not connected her with the diaper box. On his request, Container Corp. sent him enough unused panels for diaper boxes to wallpaper Sharon's room — but Mrs. Roth put her foot down at that point.

And Sharon's brothers are proud too. They know "it's special. But she doesn't know she's on the box that much," they said, "except when she sees the box in the store."

Crossing guard asked for Dooley school

The Schaumburg Police have announced that they are seeking applicants for the position of crossing guard at the Dooley School.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said a new crossing guard is immediately needed for the intersection of Norwood and Lowell Drives.

He said the guards work for three hours each school day and are paid $3 per hour.

Persons interested in applying for the position should contact Conroy at 894-3149 daily.

Student trained to teach handicapped

A Hoffman Estates college student recently completed a month-long program in preparation for teaching mentally retarded children.

Cheris Marek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Marek, 122 Kingman Ln., is a senior at MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Ill., majoring in special education.

She was one of eleven students who participated in a residential practice teaching program at Lincoln State School, Lincoln, Ill., where she gained experience in working with handicapped children.

Lincoln, an institution for retarded children, provided the students with experience in working directly with professional and para-professional staff members, and observing programs firsthand.

Two members of the Schaumburg Park District's fencing club recently won first and third place trophies in the U.S. Olympic Junior Fencing Tournament.

Twin brothers, Mike and Ken Turgeon, sons of fencing club coach Leo Turgeon, competed in the tournaments at Notre Dame High School in Niles and New Trier West High School in Northbrook.

Mike won the first place trophy at Notre Dame and a third place cup at New Trier. His brother, Ken, finished third and fourth respectively in the two tournaments.

The brothers now rank second and fifth respectively in state junior Olympic standings. They are both eligible to compete in state divisional tournaments in April. Mike also has qualified for the National Junior Olympic Tournament to be held later this month in Los Angeles.

The park district's fencing club is open to area residents. The group presently has 22 members.

Basic fencing equipment is provided by the park district. Practice sessions are held each Friday at the Aldrin School from 7 until 9 p.m.

More information about the program can be obtained by calling the park district at 894-4660.

Mayor aspirants ready to hold open debates

All three announced candidates in the Mount Prospect mayoral race have indicated a willingness to meet head-on in open debates.

Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce officials have said they will hold two or three debates in either March or early April. The election is April 17.

Mayor Robert D. Telchert, who is seeking reelection, is naturally in favor of the Chamber debates. About a year ago Telchert proposed the plan for debates throughout the village.

A debate-type forum in each precinct was Telchert's original plan, but he says the number the Chamber has chosen is "fine." "There are other groups who may also sponsor other debates," he said. "I will accept all that I have time for."

ANOTHER candidate, Michael Minton, said he too will participate in the Chamber debates. "I think it is better to have two or three very well publicized debates," he said, "than one poorly attended one in each precinct."

Minton said he felt the debates should be held as close to election day as possible. This way, he said, people would be more interested in attending.

The electorate's interest also is of concern to the third candidate, Albert Motsch said he hopes many people will attend the debates.

"I'm trying to wake up the apathy of the voters more than anything," Motsch said. "That ambition of mine is greater than being mayor."

He said two or three debates are plenty. "We should have one good one on the north and one on the south. If people won't come to those, they won't come to any."

ALL THREE candidates said they are unconcerned with the format of the debates as long as an adequate time is given for discussion of issues. Motsch said he thinks five to 10 minutes would be adequate for each candidate. One plan of the Chamber is to have each candidate speak for five minutes and then each have five minutes more for rebuttal.

With only one of the three candidates having actually filed with the village clerk's office, no significant issues have emerged yet.

Other candidates will be asked to speak at the debates; however, so far all the other offices are unopposed. Trustee candidates are Richard Hendricks and incumbents Donald B. Furst, Patrick J. Link and Bud Richardson. Donald Goodman is seeking reelection as village clerk.

For the public library board, only Jack Anderson has announced, although two seats are up for election. Anderson was appointed to the library board last month. Filing deadline for all offices is next Monday.

Suspect apprehended in coin-machine thefts

A Deerfield man believed to have been stealing from coin machines throughout Cook and Lake counties for some time was arrested Tuesday by Mount Prospect police for possession of burglary tools.

Also on Tuesday, Lake County police secured a search warrant for the apartment of the man, George Kristovich, 47. They found numerous laundry machine coin boxes, keys, code books (to tell which key goes to which machine and where the machine is located), wax key dies and cutters and a key-making machine.

Among the items found were two $20 double eagle gold coins, which the FBI says links Kristovich to a June, 1970, theft at the United Air Lines O'Hare Airport terminal.

ACCORDING TO police, the Lake County Sheriff's office was tipped off about Kristovich Jan. 4. At that time, he was linked to the series of vending machine thefts and the O'Hare theft, police said. The FBI is continuing investigations.

Apparently, the procedure used by Kristovich, police said, was to first make a wax impression of a key, then copy and code the key at his Deerfield address. The code books apparently were used to keep track of the machine to which each key belonged.

The United Air Lines theft took place on June 4, 1970. Stolen was $2,000 worth of silver coins and a number of double eagle gold coins. The coins were being shipped from Numemaker Coin Shop in Nappanee, Ind., to Mansfield Services Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz.

Mount Prospect police charged Kristovich after they responded to a call of a burglary in progress at 1340 S. Elmhurst Rd., one of the buildings in the Huntington Commons Apartments. When police arrived, they saw a maintenance man with a wooden plank chasing Kristovich through the development.

POLICE APPREHENDED the two men as they were struggling near the entrance to St. John Lutheran Church, 1200 Lineman Rd. This was about 10:30 a.m.

The maintenance man told police he had observed Kristovich breaking into the side door of one of the apartment buildings. He followed him in, they argued and Kristovich allegedly ran.

Police arrested Kristovich and in his car, which was parked nearby, they found 103 coin box keys, jiggler type keys, lock picks, lock tumbler, screwdrivers, various channel lock pliers and coins.

Outstanding Educator works with handicapped

To pupils, she's more than a teacher

by MARY HOULIHAN

Nine students call Cynthia Schwartz "teacher." In a way, Mrs. Schwartz, who recently won the Mount Prospect Jaycees' Outstanding Young Educator Award, is more than just a teacher to her nine students however.

All the children Mrs. Schwartz teaches are mentally handicapped. And, as such, they have some special problems: difficulties with social behavior, coordination and perception. Because of these problems, it would seem that Mrs. Schwartz would need more time to prepare for each individual child's needs than the regular classroom teacher. It would also seem that she would need more than an ample amount of patience.

But Mrs. Schwartz, who has been teaching mentally handicapped youngsters for 24 years, disagrees. "We have planning time and usually I can get things done in this time... Generally, I'm able to get it worked into my day. I don't think it takes any more patience" (either), she said. "I mean there are 'times,' she said, throwing up her hands, "but there are 'times' for everybody."

MRS. SCHWARTZ, a dark-haired, soft-spoken young woman, first got interested in teaching special education while at college. "Once we got into our education courses, we were encouraged to tutor at different schools and this kind of got me interested in it," she said. She is happy now that she decided to choose special education as a career.

"I enjoy it more working with these kids. Why is kind of hard to answer. I think that it's working with a smaller group. Probably what makes it so interesting is the individual attention and the needs the children require."

Her own philosophy of teaching mentally handicapped youngsters is a simple one: "I would say that it is to make them as well-rounded as possible, working on their social behavior and motor coordination as well as academics."

When Mrs. Schwartz went to the Jaycees' dinner in January, she said she was "extremely surprised" when her name was called to receive the Outstanding Young Educator award. Asked why, since she knew her principal had nominated her, she replied, "Well, because I really felt I hadn't won it. It really made me feel kind of proud. I just felt really proud and honored."

How did her students react when they found out about the award? "I explained what had happened and they really got quite excited."

Last Saturday to buy stickers, licenses

Tomorrow will be the last Saturday that Mount Prospect residents will be able to buy their village vehicle stickers and dog licenses this year.

The village's finance office, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., will be open from 9 a.m. to noon tomorrow. Deadlines for vehicle sticker display is midnight Feb. 15. Dog licenses should already have been purchased Jan. 31 was the deadline.

A car sticker costs $10 with a discount for senior citizens. Dog licenses now cost $5 each.

Speedskating Sunday—again

With luck and continued cold weather, the Prospect area Jaycees will hold their first annual speedskating tournament Sunday.

John Stull of the Jaycees said yesterday ice is being made for the tournament to be held at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street in Prospect Heights. The tournament, which had to be canceled last year because of warm weather, had to be postponed last Sunday for the same reason.

The tournament will consist of 20 races for boys and girls up to 15 years old. Winners will receive trophies and go on to compete in a Jaycee regional contest with a chance for state competition. All participants will receive patches.

The tournament is scheduled for 1 to 4 p.m. Jaycees expect 200 to 300 youngsters to compete.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that squelches "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

The war

The United States, North and South Vietnam, and the Viet Cong are hoping to meet a Monday deadline for release of the first POWs. Secretary of State William Rogers said the first POWs would come out "in the next few days." In Washington, it was reported the ceasefire agreement appears to be holding up reasonably well.

Board member won't run again

A second incumbent on the Dist. 21 School Board has decided not to seek reelection this year.

Rev. L. James Wylie said yesterday that he will not seek a second term on the board because of personal reasons.

His announcement comes at the same time that Dist. 21 General Caucus officials are indicating that there seems to be subdued interest in the school board elections this year.

With three positions to fill, and the possibility the caucus could endorse four candidates, only four or five nominees appeared for screening by the caucus last weekend.

RONALD COLE is the other board member who announced last week that he would not seek a third term. With Cole and Wylie out of contention, Ed Smith will be the only incumbent seeking reelection.

Rev. Wylie will be one of those seeking caucus support.

Time is running out for persons seeking caucus support, but the caucus will allow nominations from the floor at its delegates' meeting Wednesday. At that meeting, 27 delegates will vote for the candidates they want to endorse.

The meeting will be at the board room of the Dist. 21 administrative offices, 699 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Each candidate must have a written statement at least 500 words long explaining why he or she wishes to serve on the board. Nominees will be questioned by delegates at Wednesday's meeting before the voting takes place.

Officials of the caucus said they are very disappointed so far with the turnout of prospective school board candidates.

SPEAKING YESTERDAY about his decision not to run, Wylie said personal reasons and the amount of time required to serve on the board were his major considerations. He said he feels the job of a board member should be a primary concern of those involved. "I just don't think I can make that commitment for another three years," he said.

He added, "I am proud and pleased with this school board. It is one of the best in the state, and I am happy I could have served on it."

A Prospect Heights resident, Wylie said he hopes he can continue working with the district and that his services will always be available.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said yesterday he was very disappointed to see Wylie leave the board. "He is going to be missed by the administration and board. In his three years he has been a real credit and had made a great input."

Persons other than incumbents and residents seeking support of the caucus may run independently in the board election by getting petitions from the Dist. 21 administrative office any weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Each petition must be signed by 50 registered voter residents of the district, and must be turned in to the Dist. 21 office between Feb. 28 and March 23. All three openings on the board will be for three-year terms.

GOP slates four incumbents, 5 newcomers for April race

Wheeling Township Republicans have slated four incumbents and five newcomers to run for township office in April.

Slated at Tuesday night's caucus were: incumbent Ethel Kolerus for supervisor; incumbent Marshall Theroux for assessor; incumbent Dorothy Hauff for clerk; Art Olsen for highway commissioner, and Helmut Meyer for tax collector.

The slate for the four-man board of auditors includes Merle Willis and Jack Gilligan, Ray DeMaestralero and Bill Reid. Willis is an incumbent.

The Republican slate of nine candidates will most likely be elected April 3 because the Wheeling Township Democrats have decided not to put anyone up for election and no independents filed. The last day for filing was Jan. 29.

THE REPUBLICAN caucus was one of the shortest in Wheeling Township history.

"One man attempted to nominate Lawrence Carrozza for highway commissioner (the job Carrozza now holds), but since Carrozza wasn't at the meeting the nomination couldn't be made," said Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township Committeeman. "Besides, Carrozza had sent us a letter stating he did not want to be reslated."

No other nominations were made from the floor.

Four years ago the Republican caucus met for several hours and over 500 people showed up to support their candidates, especially for the hotly contested office of assessor. On Tuesday about 150 people attended the caucus.

"We didn't have a contest even similar to the magnitude of the contest we had four years ago," said Cowen.

Each candidate made brief remarks and the slate was approved in about 40 minutes.

Mayor commends two youths

Mayoral commendations were presented this week to two Mount Prospect youths credited with extinguishing a house fire.

Robert Pellican, 14, of 20 S. George St., and Mike LaTurno, 14, of 21 S. Edward St., received the commendations from Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert at Tuesday's village board meeting.

The youths are credited with saving four members of the Ronald C. Peters family when they acted quickly Jan. 19 to put out a Christmas tree fire.

Mrs. Peters, who is an invalid, and three small children were home when the fire broke out. Pellican and LaTurno were walking by the 214 S. George St. home when they saw the fire. One boy called the fire department while the other poured water on the fire. It was out by the time firemen arrived.

Teichert called the boys "outstanding citizens" and Peters thanked them, saying, "They are a credit to all of us, for my family in all probability owes their lives to them."

Marilyn Hallman

While TV-weary wives are rejoicing over the end of this year's football season, new officers of the Mount Prospect Midget Football Assn. are already planning for 1973-74.

Recently elected officers include Dennis Kennedy, president; Tony Falduto, vice-president; Dick Miller, secretary; Connie Kondrati, treasurer; Connie Maestranzi, commissioner; and Bill Reinert, head referee.

SPEAKING OF midget sports, a second sign-up day will be held Saturday by the Mount Prospect Baseball Association for Boys. Boys may register for the program between 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Country Club.

To be eligible, a boy must have been born on or after Aug. 1, 1958, and before Dec. 1, 1964. A third registration day will be held Saturday, Feb. 17 — same time and place. Registration fees range from $10 to $17, depending on the boy's age, with special family rates.

KEN ZSCHACH of the Mount Prospect Police Dept. is one of 23 police officers from 18 departments who recently completed a two-week Youth Officers Training Course. It was conducted on the Urbana-Champaign campus by the Police Training Institute of the University of Illinois Division of University Extension.

FROZEN PIPES can become a fire hazard during the winter months, warns the Mount Prospect Fire Dept.

Actually, the danger lies in home remedies that people may use to thaw pipes. Fire officials recommend that homeowners call in an expert to help with this job. This will reduce the possibility of accidental fires and also help homeowners learn to avoid the same problem in the future.

Fire department officials specifically warn against the use of torches, bottled gas, or rolled-up newspapers with one end aflame. A better solution is to thaw pipes by placing hot water near them.

Dirty heaters are another cause of winter fires, according to the fire department. It recommends checking and cleaning central heating units regularly.

Portable heaters should be placed where they cannot be accidentally overturned. They should also have adequate clearance from walls and all combustible objects.

A final suggestion from fire officials is that homeowners check to make sure home wiring can adequately carry the extra load put on it by portable electric heaters.

ON CAMPUS . . . Kathleen Mokate, a senior at Rockford (Ill.) College, will appear in the new edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." An honors-at-entrance scholar, she is planning to complete her college work in three years.

Kathleen, who graduated from Sacred Heart of Mary School, is majoring in psychology. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Michael Mokate, 209 N. Elmhurst Ave.

David Wickline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Wickline of 810 Meyer Rd., recently received a presidential scholarship for academic excellence at Concordia Teachers College in River Forest. A psychology major, David is preparing to teach in a Lutheran school.

Heather Francek, daughter of Mrs. Charles Francek of 505 S. Owen St., has qualified for the dean's honor roll for the first semester. She is a junior majoring in special education at the University of Tulsa, Okla.

Jane Denno will receive her B.A. degree from Augustana College, Rock Island, at the close of the winter quarter this month. A geology and geography major, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denno, 22 S. Louis St.

A DENTIST is a fellow who always looks down in the mouth.

Blood unit here Sunday

The Cook County Blood Mobile Unit will be at South Church-Community Baptist in Mount Prospect all day Sunday to receive blood from donors.

The program is being sponsored by the Woman's Guild of South Church. "We feel each one of our efforts is needed," said Mrs. Eldon Ray, stressing that the Guild is not attempting to compete with the Village of Mount Prospect for blood donors.

Mount Prospect has joined the four per cent blood program which provides that if 4 per cent of the village population donates blood then the blood needs of all residents in the village are covered free for a year. Village officials have set Feb. 21 as the first day for donating blood.

According to Max Reed, director of the Cook County Hospital Blood Bank, there are 540 patients in the area awaiting kidney transplants but due to a blood shortage the operations have been delayed.

Donors can register for the South

Church's program by calling the church office at 253-0501 or Mrs. Ray at 437-3932. They can also register when they come to donate blood at the church parking lot, 501 S. Emerson St.

Rev. Wesley Baker

Mission Program chief to visit

The Rev. Wesley Baker, chairman of Mission Program Information for the United Presbyterian Church, will meet with church leaders and the congregation at Community Presbyterian Church this weekend.

Rev. Baker will be at the Mount Prospect church as part of its "Mission Weekend" project that carries the theme, "Expanding Our Horizons."

The purpose of the visit by Rev. Baker "is to motivate people about church mission work," according to the Rev. Amos Wilkie, pastor. The United Presbyterian Church conducts a worldwide mission program that includes 600 overseas missionaries.

Rev. Baker will meet with church leaders Saturday afternoon and with the senior high school youth Saturday night. Sunday he will preach at the morning services and meet with two church-school classes. A luncheon for Rev. Baker will be held following the 11:15 a.m. worship service.

5 juveniles arrested on marijuana charge

Five juveniles, three boys from Chicago and two girls from Wheeling, were arrested Wednesday by Mount Prospect police for possession of marijuana.

The youths were picked up about 4 p.m. after police stopped their car because the mother of a 15-year-old Mount Prospect girl had called to say her daughter was kidnapped by the group at knifepoint.

The knife turned out to be a letter opener and the kidnapping a hoax. The Mount Prospect girl was not charged with possession of marijuana.

$190 home burglary reported in village

A tape set and tapes valued at $190 were stolen during Wednesday from a bedroom at the Michael Coyne home, 1768 Camp McDonald Rd., Mount Prospect.

Police said that Coyne's son, Raul Sanchez, had lost a key to the house recently and it may have been used to enter the home, as no indications of forced entry could be found. Five dollars in cash was also taken from the bedroom.

A neighbor told police they heard a car with a loud muffler in the Coyne's driveway about 3 p.m.

Teachers, board meeting set

Teacher and school board bargaining teams in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will meet Feb. 15 to exchange ground rules proposals, the first step towards 1973-74 contract negotiations.

The two teams will meet again on Feb. 22 to decide on the ground rules, including whether or not bargaining will be open to the public. Dist. 23 negotiations were open for the first time last year.

The first two meetings will both be open, to the public, according to Henry Valley, attorney for the district. The Feb. 15 meeting will be held sometime during the school day "since all we have to do is hand over proposals," according to Supt. Edward Grodzky. The Feb. 22 meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the district administrative offices, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

CHAIRMEN FOR the two teams both said their teams had made a decision on the open-bargaining question, but would not reveal their recommendations until the Feb. 15 meeting. Dist. 21, the only other Northwest suburban school district to hold open bargaining last year, decided to close its 1973-74 contract meetings.

Unlike last year, Larry Halter of the Illinois Education Association, will not negotiate for the Prospect Heights Education Association this year. Dave Kessler, chairman of the teacher's team, said "it was a joint decision between Larry and us to have us do our own negotiating this year. We thought we should start doing our own."

Last year, the two sides agreed to seek mediation because they could not reach agreement after 13 sessions. After four hours of mediation, the teams agreed to a contract including a 2.6 per cent cost of living raise for all returning teachers and $21,825 in merit pay funds.

Area may get regional crime lab

A regional police crime laboratory for the Northwest suburbs may be headquartered in Rolling Meadows if support for the proposed lab is found among suburban police chiefs.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case said yesterday he has proposed using facilities in the city for the proposed crime lab. Case said Harvey N. Johnson, director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, has consulted with him on using the facilities on the third floor of the city hall for the lab.

The vacant third-floor facilities had recently been considered by Circuit Court officials for a 2nd District courtroom site, but Chief Judge John Boyle ruled instead to place the courtroom in Hoffman Estates.

Case said if the crime lab were located in the city it would have access to the city's extensive police photography lab.

PLANS TO ESTABLISH a crime lab have not yet been formally established. However, the Northwest Police Academy and Harper College are jointly conducting a survey of police chiefs in the area to determine the need for such a facility.

Currently the only lab facilities available to local police are one in Chicago, one in Joliet, and FBI lab in Washington and the Northern Illinois Police Crime Laboratory in Highland Park.

The Harper survey will include questions seeking information from departments on the number of specialists assigned to photography, detective work and traffic analysis. Interest in establishing a regional crime lab will also be determined.

POLICE OFFICIALS will also be asked how many times a local crime lab facility or mobile unit would have been used if it had been available in the area. The extent to which crime lab facilities were actually used during the past year by local departments will be included in the survey as well as the cost incurred for the use.

If a need for the lab is found, Case said Rolling Meadows would be a good location for the facility. "We are centrally located and could serve all the suburbs here adequately," Case said. He said since the Illinois Law Enforcement Department is already headquartered in Algonquin Road in Rolling Meadows, the crime lab facility could logically be placed in the city as well.

Case said the lab facility would also include mobile units to be headquartered in the city. According to the Harper survey, other services the lab could provide include centralized evidence storage, training programs for crime investigation and mobile crime vehicles manned jointly by local police and the state.

Halt expected on medals

The president of the Hamilton Mint Corp. in Arlington Heights said yesterday he expects to appeal a U.S. District Court order prohibiting him from selling 1973 inaugural medals bearing the images of President Nixon and Vice President Agnew.

The firm's president, Mike Cooper, said he was "very surprised" at District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr's ruling which upheld a suit filed by the Franklin Mint Corp., of Franklin Center, Pa., the company officially designated by the Presidential Inauguration Committee to produce the medals.

The judge also directed the Hamilton Mint to inform the 376 buyers of the "unofficial" commemorative that their medals are not sanctioned by the inauguration committee.

Cooper said that the Arlington Heights mint, which opened less than a year ago, has sold 359 medals at $100 apiece and 17 medals at $1,250 each.

COOPER SAID the Franklin Mint is the giant of the minting profession, doing $80 million annually.

"We don't do even a million dollars a year and we're not looking to become a giant (company)," he said. "We consider ourselves more of a fine arts rather than a mass production operation."

A court order Jan. 31 stopped the Arlington Heights mint from selling any more of the presidential commemorative medals which carry the profiles of the president and vice president and the presidential seal.

"We were very surprised at the reaction of the Franklin mint since no one has been able to really compete with them in direct mail sales," Cooper said.

He added that the judge had ordered the company to write to its medal buyers no later than Feb. 16, but said notification could be held up pending the appeal.

Other compensation sought in the Franklin Mint suit, such as requiring the Arlington Heights firm to take out equal advertising disclaiming any authenticity to the medals, was not upheld by the judge, Cooper said.

Door-to-door Scriptures campaign set

Laymen from 12 churches will begin going door-to-door Sunday to leave copies of the Luke-Acts Scriptures in all homes in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights.

The visitation is part of Key '73, a nationwide effort to bring all churches together and increase interest in the Gospel. Key '73 involves 140 Christian denominations across the country and is sponsored locally by the Prospect Ministerial Alliance.

Visitations will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday and continue through February. Volunteers will also leave notices of neighborhood Bible study groups and a list of churches in the area.

The visitors also will take a poll on church interest and "give a personal word of enthusiasm and encouragement for Christ and the Christian Church," according to members of the Key '73 committee.

The 12 churches who are financially supporting Key '73 and will send laymen door-to-door are South Community Baptist, Northwest Covenant, Prospect Christian, St. John's Episcopal, Martha and Mary Lutheran, St. Mark's Lutheran, Grace Evangelical Lutheran, St. Paul Lutheran, St. Raymond Catholic, Trinity United Methodist, Community Presbyterian and Peace Reformed.

Screening committee to meet Saturday

Caucus choices reluctant to take teachers' backing

The three School Dist. 25 caucus-endorsed candidates for the school board have said they are hesitant to accept Arlington Teacher Association endorsement.

"I'll go before the ATA just as I would go before any other group which asked me to express my views," said Edith Jolly, one of the caucus-endorsed candidates. "But I'm not really seeking an endorsement."

This is the first year the ATA plans to endorse and many potential candidates for endorsement aren't quite sure what the whole thing is about. Richard Schlott and William Beck, both incumbent school board members, says they want to hear more about the ATA screening committee before they go before it.

The ATA screening committee will meet Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Thomas Junior High School, 303 E. Thomas. The meeting is open to the public.

"WE AREN'T TRYING to beat the caucus or compete with them," said Ed Keller, a member of the ATA screening committee. "We just want to know how the candidates feel about education."

Keller said he would like to see more independent thinking on the part of board members and would like the board to be more available to teachers and parents.

"One of the questions we'll ask candidates is if they would vote against the rest of the board on issues they consider very important," said Keller. "I've noticed that the board's decisions are almost always unanimous."

The only people who have said they will go before the Saturday screening committee so far are Mrs. Jolly, J. Patrick O'Brien and Robert J. Speros. O'Brien went before the Dist. 25 caucus but threw his hat in the ring too late to be screened by the caucus appraisal committee. He was not slated. Speros, a resident of the district for over six years, did not seek caucus endorsement because he also was too late. He says he will run if endorsed by the ATA.

PEOPLE WHO SAID they may go before the screening committee are Beck, Schlott, James DeVuono, Bruce Chelberg and Joseph Rizzo. DeVuono is an independent candidate who lost in a bid for a school board seat in last year's election. Chelberg and Rizzo were unsuccessful in their bid for a caucus endorsement.

Of the eight candidates who originally sought caucus endorsement, three will not, under any circumstances, run as independents.

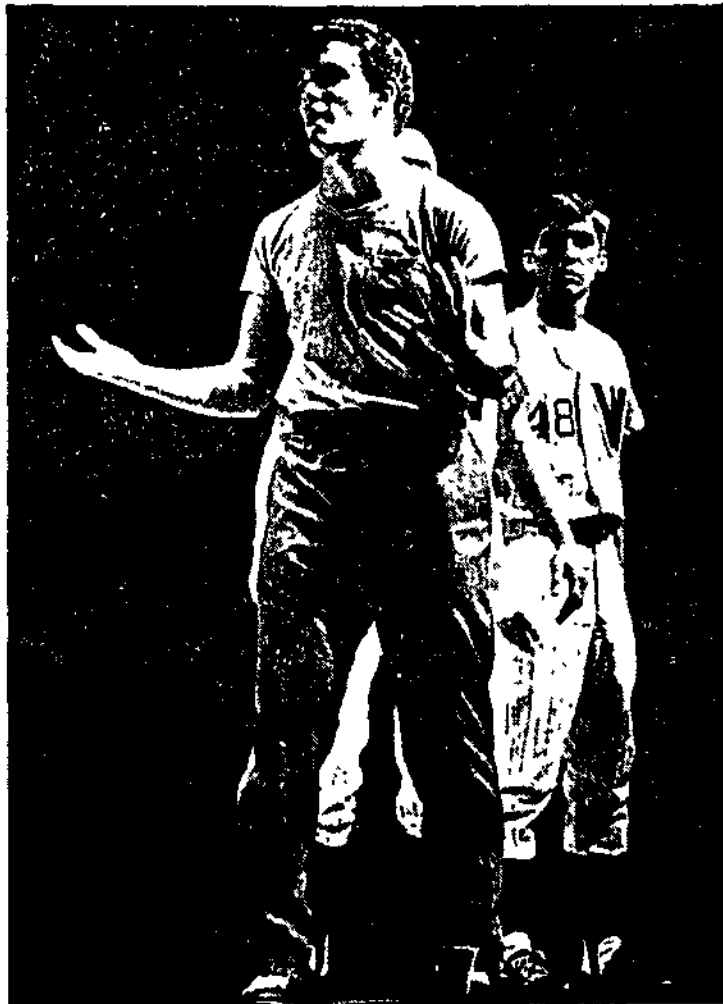

"There is too much campaigning involved and I'm pleased with the candidates who were slated by the caucus," said Eloise Canfield who typified the attitude of Murad Aganlian and Wesley Neave, all of whom were unsuccessful in their bid for caucus endorsement.

Chelberg and Rizzo say it is unlikely they will run.

"I wanted to work through the caucus if at all, I don't think I'd run as an independent," said Rizzo.

"I don't think the school board election should be a knock down, drag out fight. It just wouldn't be productive. I think the caucus system works very well in the school board election," said Chelberg.

Besides the three caucus supported candidates, DeVuono and O'Brien play to run for the school board on April 14.

"DAMN YANKEES" opens tonight at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights. The musical features Frank Cliggett, center, as Joe Hardy, the man who sells his soul to the devil in order to become a star hitter for his favorite baseball team, the Washington Senators. Joe's coach, right, is played by Pat Schneider. "Damn Yankees" will run tonight and tomorrow night and the nights of Feb. 23, 24 and 25 at 8 p.m. A 2 p.m. matinee has been scheduled for Feb. 18.

Planners recommend condo OK

The Arlington Heights plan commission has recommended approval of a 432-unit condominium project near the Surrey Ridge West subdivision, provided the developer makes a cash contribution that is acceptable to School Dist. 15.

The proposed development, which is an amendment to an earlier plan known as the Surrey Park apartments, includes four six-story buildings of 50 units each and 29 two-story buildings of eight units each.

The plans also call for development of a retention lake with a capacity of 7.3 acre feet, the storage requirement recommended in the recent Peterson flood control report.

THE PROJECT would be located along Algonquin Road, between New and Old Wilke roads in Arlington Heights. The site is just over 30 acres.

The six-story buildings, located in the northeast corner of the property, include a first floor level of parking and then five stories of condominium apartments.

The smaller eight-unit or "octominium" buildings are scattered around the centrally located retention lake.

All of the units in the development, which is being presented by Charles G. Matthies, Inc., are two-bedroom models. Prices would range from about $35,000 for a condominium in the two-story buildings to $40,000 and above for a unit in one of the six-story structures.

THE DEVELOPER is also being requested to install curbs and sidewalks along the east side of Old Wilke Road to see that all landscaping in the project is approved by the village planner.

The property was originally owned by Miller Builders, Inc., the developer of Surrey Ridge West, and zoned for several large four-story buildings. The project was originally planned for rental apartments.

The project has since been converted to an all-condominium development.

The village board must now act on the recommendation.

Scout troop plans spaghetti dinner

A spaghetti dinner sponsored by Scout Troop 364 of St. Edna's Roman Catholic Church, will be held Saturday, Feb. 17 from 4 to 8 p.m.

The dinner will be held in the parish hall, 2525 N. Arlington Heights Rd. The annual affair provides funds for equipment and helps to defray a part of the expense of the annual two week scout summer camp. The donation will be $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for children or 50¢ per family.

Board expansion ruling today

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing will rule this morning on a lawsuit challenging the addition of two more trustees to the Arlington Heights Village Board and changing the position of village clerk from an elected to an appointed office.

The court challenge to the proposed board expansion has been filed by John Clarke, an Arlington Heights attorney and a member of Eugene F. Schlickman's law firm.

The village is proposing to make the changes as an exercise of its home-rule powers and in response to voter approval of both measures in a referendum Dec. 16.

David Griffin, 309 N. Windsor Dr., and Graeme George, 903 W. Hintz Rd., have been slated by the village Caucus for the two new board positions. All six Caucus candidates are running unopposed for village office.

U.S. reviews on Salt Creek are late

Three federal agencies are late in submitting their reviews of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Agreement to the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

William Davey, SCS deputy administrator for watersheds, said reviews from the Army Corps of Engineers, Department of Interior and Department of Health, Education and Welfare are now being readied for signature. The reviews were to have been sent to SCS in late January.

Reviews were received by seven other federal and state agencies at the January deadline.

According to Davey, the only agency to submit negative comments on the agreement was the Environmental Protection Agency. He said the EPA had questions about the quality of water that would be stored in the flood retention basin.

DAVEY SAID he did not believe "there were any serious problems with the EPA's comments."

Thomas Hamilton, chairman of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, said he thought the EPA did not have a full understanding of the purpose for the retention basin when the comments were submitted.

The Upper Salt Creek Watershed work plan calls for the construction of a series of flood controls across the creek. The largest of these controls would create a large lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The lake would serve as a water retention site during times of flooding.

When reviews of the agreement are received from all necessary agencies, the SCS will include the program in its budget for the next fiscal year. After the SCS budget is reviewed by the federal Bureau of the Budget, the work plan will be sent to the Congressional Public Works Committee for approval of federal funding.

Federal funds for approximately half of the $28.5 million cost of the program are being sought. Once the public works committee approves the program, the SCS could draw money from its watershed works improvement fund.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Rescue workers pulled seven charred bodies from the Tahoe Apartments, flattened when a crippled Navy jet fighter plunged through it. It was estimated 20 to 25 more bodies remained in the rubble.

Congress agreed yesterday to order a 90-day halt to a strike that shut down the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and left about 200,000 commuters in the East looking for other ways to get to work.

The Senate has confirmed the nominations of Daniel P. Moynihan to be ambassador to India, and Richard Helms as ambassador to Iran.

Sen. John C. Stennis was moved from the surgical unit to a private room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, but was still in serious condition from gunshot wounds. A medical report said Stennis "has shown a continuing gradual improvement."

President Nixon has vowed to break out the "very big stick" of government intervention if the administration fails to get full Phase III cooperation.

The state

Gov. Daniel Walker issued an executive order that quashes "even the asking" of state employees for political work or contributions. The order is limited to employees under direct supervision of the governor.

Michael Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said his budget request for the next fiscal year will be lower than this year's appropriation.

Mayor Richard Daley said he was confident the state legislature would increase its share in a proposed plan to help the Chicago Transit Authority.

Gov. Daniel Walker has named Joel Edelman, executive vice president and 11-year veteran of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, as acting director of the Public Aid Department.

The world

The ailing U.S. dollar came under severe attack in the world's money markets yesterday, forcing West Germany to buy a record $1.7 billion to avert collapse of the official exchange rate.

The market

A bouncing stock market was headed higher at the close on the New York Stock Exchange although final prices generally were lower. Trading was active throughout the day as investor sentiment shifted with breaking news developments. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrial stocks closed 1.13 lower at 967.19. Down more than nine points in the first hour of trading, it had recovered to a fractional gain by mid-session, only to fade again to an afternoon loss of more than six points and finally turn upward again.

Teachers, school board to meet on ground rules

The school board president and superintendent in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Wednesday night vehemently denied rumors that the board has been holding illegal, secret meetings.

The two men were answering a resident asking about secret meetings. She said she "had heard rumors of meetings on Saturday mornings." The board's meetings are regularly scheduled for Wednesday nights.

"We do not talk secretly behind closed doors because it is illegal, it isn't right," said Melvin Laco, board president. Laco said he has never even called board members on the telephone to discuss board business. He also stressed that when he first ran for the board, he made it clear he opposed secret meetings.

"In the five years I have been in the district, I have never been to a secret meeting," said Supt. Edward Grodsky. Grodsky did point to one Saturday meeting, on Nov. 18, called for mediation of a contract dispute between the board and teachers. Negotiations is a legal subject for a closed meeting according to the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

"I HAVE HEARD rumors, I have not seen the secret meetings with my own eyes," said Jo Ellen Clawes, 203 N. Parkway. "But if it is happening, I want to see it nipped in the bud."

MRS. CLAWES also told board members they were "wrong in holding a closed meeting" Jan. 24 to discuss drainage problems behind the Dist. 23 three-school campus site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. Those who attended the meeting were Grodsky, Jim Hendran, Dist. 23 business manager; John Stull, Dist. 214 board member, a High School Dist. 214 board member, business manager and superintendent; an employee of Arlington Heights, manager of a department store and two representatives of area sanitary districts.

The group decided that Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Sanitary District urge Dist. 214 to hire an engineer to develop a plan to control flooding in the area. Dist. 23 officials say, that runoff from the Memco Discount Store in Arlington Heights is being channeled into a drainage ditch at Hersey High School, which in turn, drains onto the property behind MacArthur Jr. High School. Dist. 23 has an exclusive contract with Dist. 214 allowing water from Hersey to drain on Dist. 23 land.

According to an attorney for the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI), the meeting was not illegal. "It would have been if a board was sitting as an entire group or if a sub-group appointed by the board to fact-find had been involved," he said.

Teachers, board meeting set

Teacher and school board bargaining teams in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will meet Feb. 15 to exchange ground rules proposals, the first step towards 1973-74 contract negotiations.

The two teams will meet again on Feb. 22 to decide on the ground rules, including whether or not bargaining will be open to the public. Dist. 23 negotiations were open for the first time last year.

The first two meetings will both be open, to the public, according to Henry Vellely, attorney for the district. The Feb. 15 meeting will be held sometime during the school day "since all we have to do is hand over proposals," according to Supt. Edward Grodsky. The Feb. 22 meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the district administrative offices, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads.

CHAIRMEN FOR the two teams both said their teams had made a decision on the open-bargaining question, but would not reveal their recommendations until the Feb. 15 meeting. Dist. 21, the only other Northwest suburban school district to hold open bargaining last year, decided to close its 1973-74 contract meetings.

Unlike last year, Larry Halter of the Illinois Education Association, will not negotiate for the Prospect Heights Education Association this year. Dave Kessler, chairman of the teacher's team, said "it was a joint decision between Larry and us to have us do our own negotiating this year. We thought we should start doing our own."

Last year, the two sides agreed to seek mediation because they could not reach agreement after 13 sessions. After four hours of mediation, the teams agreed to a contract including a 2.6 per cent cost of living raise for all returning teachers and $21,825 in merit pay funds.

Could you please print a picture of James Coburn and tell me everything you know about?

James Coburn

Sure we can print a picture of James for you and tell you a little about him too! Born in Laurel, Neb., on Aug. 31, 1928, James attended school in Los Angeles City College where he studied drama. Having served time in the U.S. Army, his first acting role was in the coast production of "Billy Budd". He later moved to New York where he worked on TV commercials, then in teleplays on such shows as STUDIO ONE and ROBERT MONTGOMERY PRESENTS. James did some summer stock in the Detroit area before returning to Hollywood. His first film, "Ride Lonesome", was in 1959 and since that time he has starred in several and even made a couple of films just for TV viewing.

I would like to complain about the outrage of not having "Bikini Beach" on when it was scheduled. I was looking forward to it all day and sat down, only to find an unscheduled movie was on. What have you got to say for yourself?

G.J. Rolling Meadows We plead innocent. It is our responsibility to print the schedules of the shows that as we get the information. Several times the changes are made at the last minute and we have no way of changing the listings. Be patient and keep watching the Movie Guide section as you can be sure—"Bikini Beach" will be televised again and probably again.

Would you please give me some information on Donna Mills? Where was she born? Please print a picture. I am an avid fan.

Donna Mills

Actress Donna Mills follows the horses, not at the racetrack, but anyplace she can ride them herself. She fancies herself as a number one animal fan. As a child in Chicago, Donna had no pets, but studied dancing and later drama.

Miss Mills has varied her acting career with TV guest roles, a seven month stint as a nightclub singer in the daytime drama THE SECRET STORM, and in several Broadway roles. While doing the daytimer, she also had parts in DAN AUGUST and LANCER. Clint Eastwood saw her in August and asked that she play his girlfriend in "Play Misty for Me," a movie in which he starred and directed.

Born in Chicago on Dec. 11, Donna has been doing guest spots since THE GOOD LIFE series. Guess what! She is still single!

I am a big fan of Marlon Brando's. I would like to know if you can tell me how old he is. How many children does he have? Where does he live, I'd like to write to him.

Marlon Brando

Marlon was born April 3, 1924 in Omaha, Nebraska and educated at the Shattuck Military Academy in Minn. It wasn't until 1944 that he made his professional debut on Broadway in "I Remember Mama."

Brando has been in many, many films and stage productions, one of the most recent being his starring role in "The Godfather." The star has one son. We don't have his home address, but you may write to him in care of Paramount Studios, 5451 Marathon St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90038.

Please tell me where to write to Rick Monday of the Chicago Cubs. I am a great Cub fan. Is Rick married and does he have any children? How old is he?

The Cubbies are happy to have fans—no matter if great or not! You may address you envelope to Rick c/o Chicago Cubs, N. Clark and W. Addison, Chicago, Ill.

Robert (Rick) Monday is married and, as yet, has no children. Happy birthday Rick! His birthdate is Nov. 20, 1945.

Can you tell me where I can get full size pictures of Wilbur Wood and Billy Williams free?

Not being sure if by full size you mean life size or what, we are giving you the addresses for the two baseball players. Send your request for Billy's picture to him c/o The Chicago Cubs, N. Clark and W. Addison, Chicago, Ill.

One of the Sox best pitchers, Wilbur's picture request should be sent to him c/o 324 W. 35th, Chicago, Ill. Good Luck!

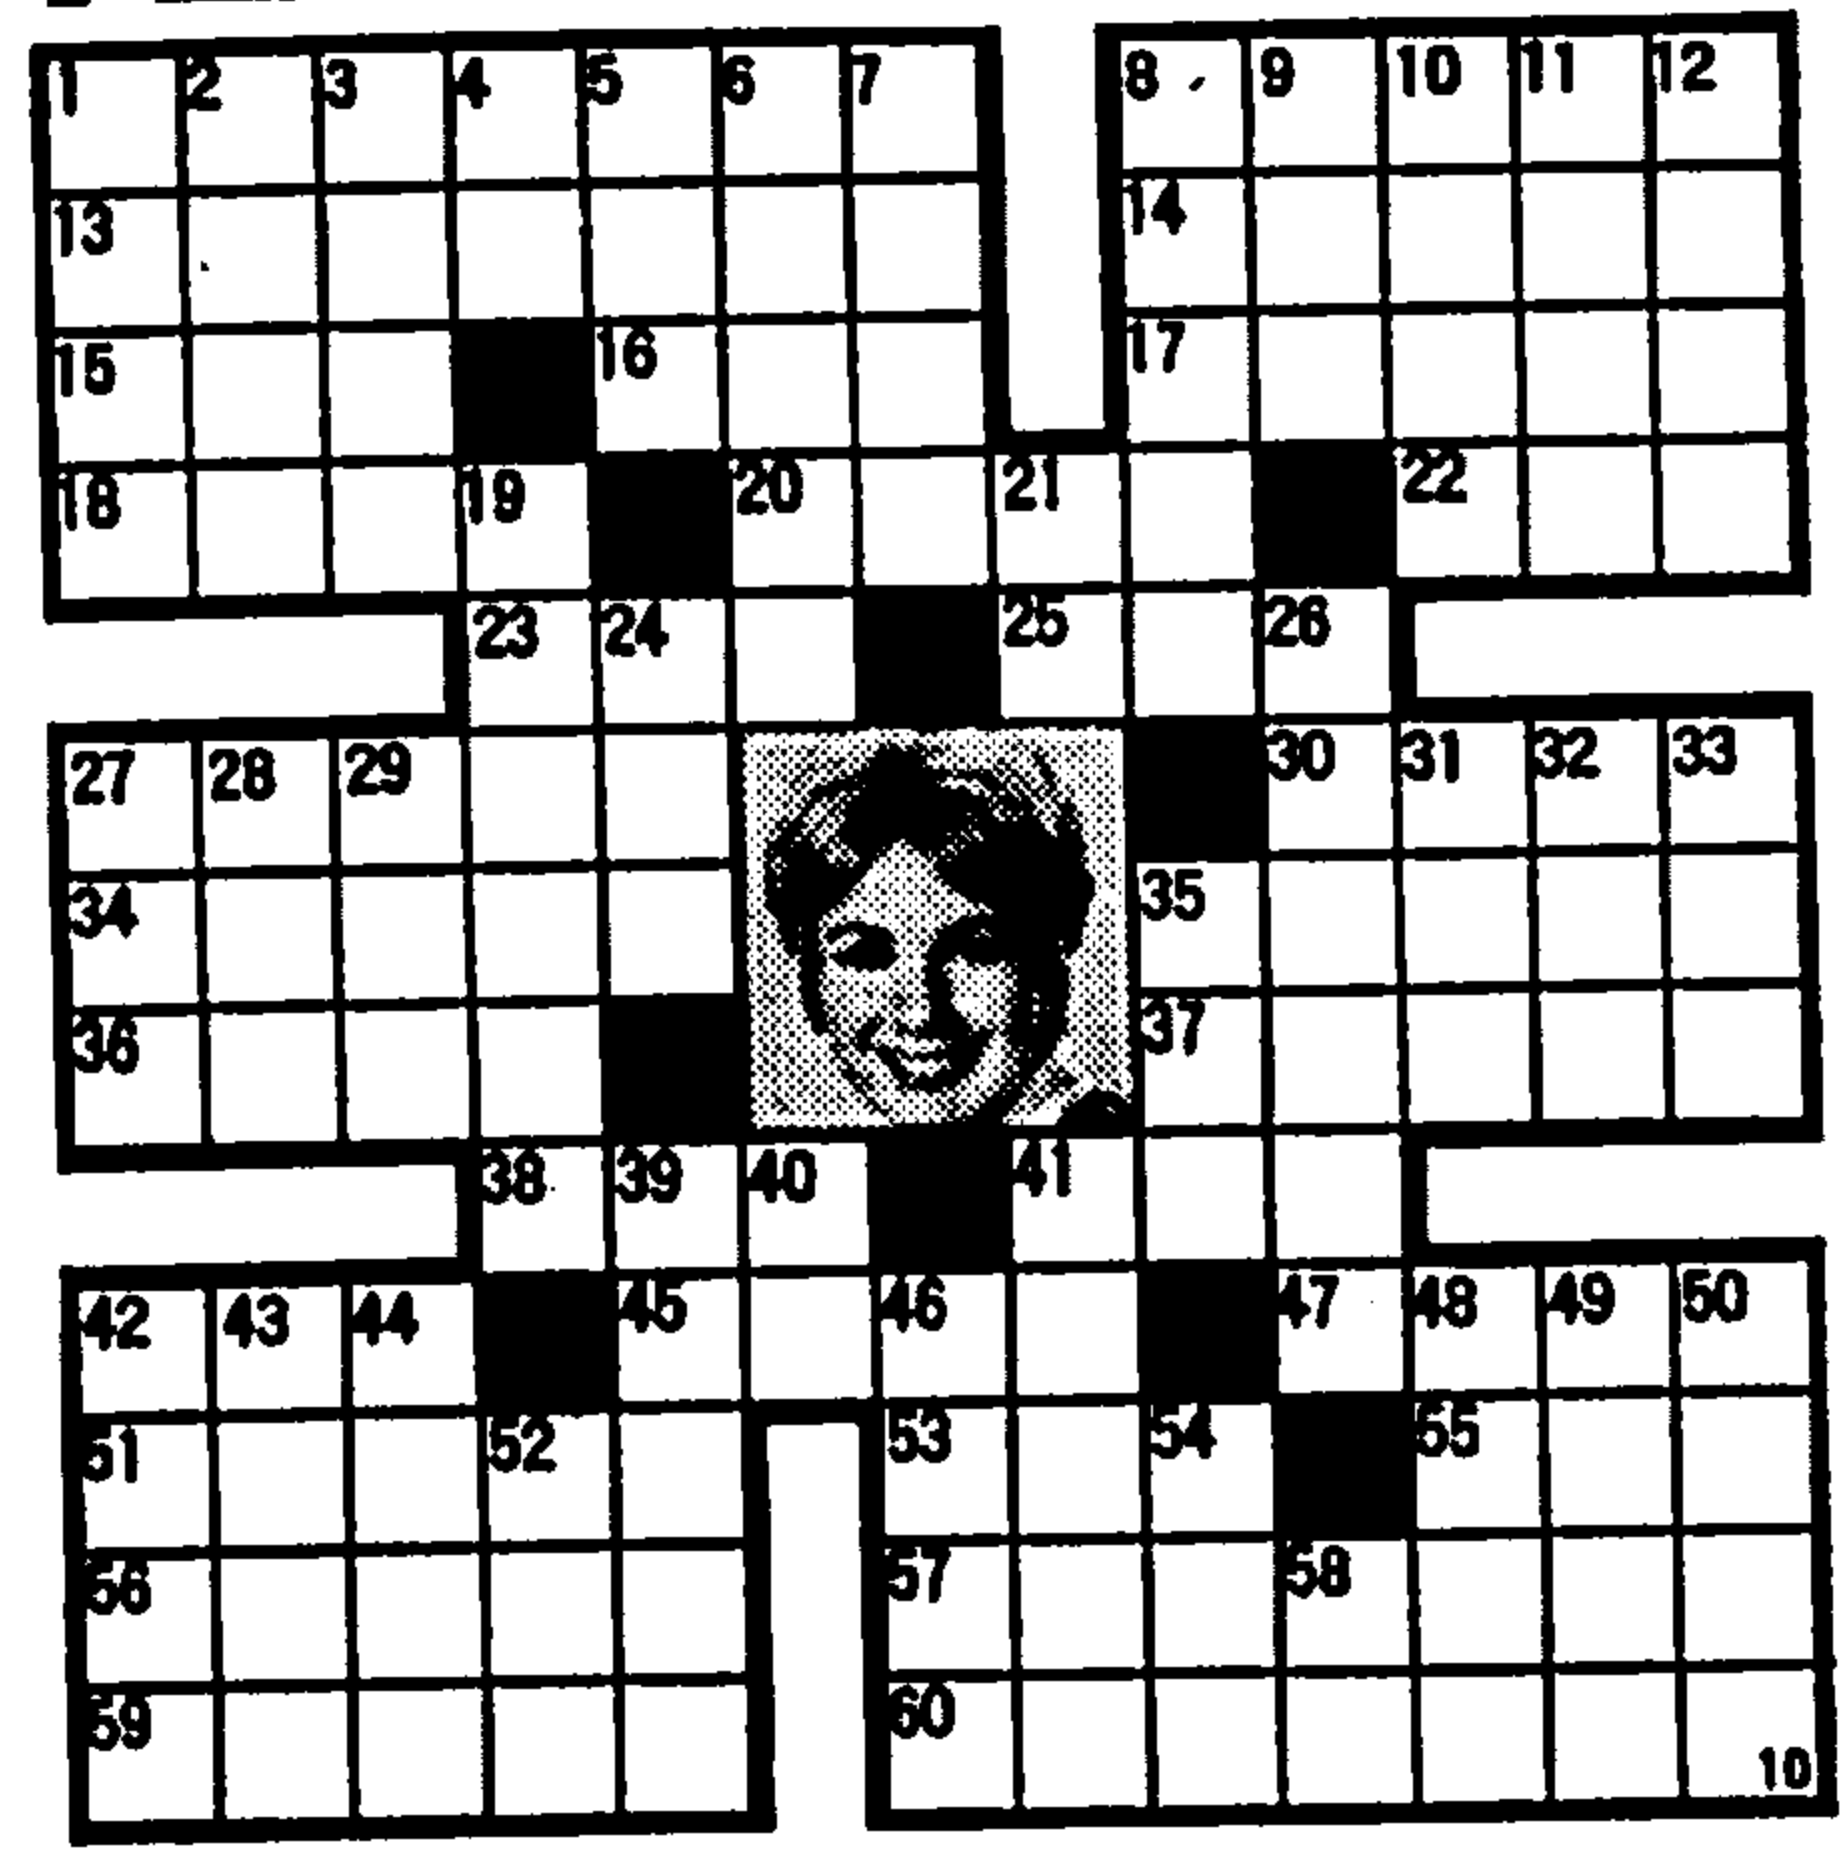

I think this paper is really neat. It always answers any questions anyone asks. How old is Ricky Nelson? Where may I write to him?

Rick Nelson

Rick, whose real name is Eric Hilliard Nelson, was born in Teaneck, N.J. on May 8, 1940. Since he has recorded several times for Decca Records, we suggest that you write to him in care of Decca Records, Inc., 445 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y.

Look for Us at the Boat Show

Before you go afloat this season, let us assist you in "fitting out" your boat for her insurance equipment.

MARINE INSURANCE, like your life saving and fire fighting equipment, has no use until disaster strikes.
You are comfortable in the knowledge that you have it, but hope you never need it. Like your other emergency gear your insurance must be suited to the ex-posure, capable of meeting any contingency and in good order.

William Shatner is guest on 'The American Sportsman'

Actor William Shatner is about to embark on a stunt-flying instructional tour in one of the most sophisticated stunt planes in the world — a Pitts Special. The sequence is one of the highlights of "The American Sportsman" airing Sunday, Feb. 11 on the ABC Television Network.

MODEL RAILROAD SOUND

Picture your favorite steam locomotive standing on the ready track, headlight glowing, the slight hiss of steam escaping from the cylinders. Two short blasts on the whistle, the bell starts its steady ring, and the slow bark of the exhaust begins as the locomotive moves forward. Then two longs and two shorts on the whistle as the train moves toward the first grade crossing, the exhaust pulse increasing as it moves out into the countryside. The cutoff is notched back and changes in exhaust sound exactly duplicate the prototype as the train moves through a cut, over a trestle and finally sends back a long wailing whistle before disappearing into a distant tunnel.

It is a sight to behold . . . and a sound to hear. Now it can be heard on your layout with PFM's complete Model Railroad Sound System. It truly brings a new dimension to scale model railroading.

Friday night on CBS

Post Civil War drama with 'The Undefeated'

John Wayne and Rock Hudson star in "The Undefeated," an action-packed adventure film set in the Southwest immediately after the Civil War, on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, Feb. 9 in color on the CBS Television Network.

At war's end, Col. John Henry Thomas (Wayne), leader of a Union cavalry unit that had attacked a Confederate position commanded by Col. James Langdon (Hudson), heads west with some men to round up wild horses and sell them to the federal forces. Langdon, unwilling to live in a conquered land, burns his plantation and heads for Mexico with his family and a group of settlers. Evading Union troops, the party crosses the Rio Grande.

Meanwhile, Thomas learns the contractors are swindlers and decides to sell his horses instead to Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. Thus the paths of Thomas and Langdon again cross, as both groups get embroiled in the historic confrontations between the Mexican leader Juarez and the Emperor.

Movies: where it's at

It appears that movies are where it's at on television this year. According to a recent Broadcasting magazine report, all network-originated movies — both "made for TV" and theatrical versions — are placing among the top 35 shows in average prime-time ratings. Using two major ratings results as criteria, the "Top 10 Movies on Network TV This Year" and "The Ten Most Watched Movies: 1961-'72," the trade magazine came up with some interesting findings.

ABC scored very well in the overall movies race, with its "Sunday Night Movie" emerging as TV's current third-highest rated show, and number one of all movie shows. That network has had the top five rated movies thus far this season, with "Love Story," "True Grit," "Patton," "Goldfinger," and "Brian's Song" lined up in that descending order.

IN THE "MOST-WATCHED" category of all time, "Love Story" is on top, followed by "True Grit" and George C. Scott's "Patton."

It is the fact that "Columbo," a portion of NBC's Mystery Movie on Sunday evenings, has garnered such high ratings that it has caused a bit of disconcertation within the industry. One segment has elbowed its way into the number six position on this year's 10 most popular movies, while another is in tenth place.

Seems that not everybody in the industry is convinced that either the "made for TV" or "series" films such as "Columbo" have any business being considered along with regular feature offerings. The question of what constitutes a movie might hang heavy over network execs but the viewers have put their stamp of approval on both as having the entertainment value that they desire.

ON THE 10 MOST-WATCHED list, NBC ended up in fifth place with "The Birds." This year NBC's showing of "The Green Berets" has placed it in the number seven position, followed by CBS's "Valley of the Dolls" (eighth), and "Cactus Flower" on NBC (ninth).

Besides the aforementioned "All-Time Favorites" shown by ABC, the fourth and fifth most-popular are "Ben Hur," on CBS; and "The Birds," on NBC, respectively.

SO MUCH FOR lists. The Broadcasting findings reveal some other noteworthy items:

- Of the top 10 rated movies ever shown on network TV, four—"Love Story," "True Grit," "Patton," and "Goldfinger"—managed to steal their huge audiences during the first 11 weeks of the 1972-'73 season.
- Of the all-time top 20 movies on TV, six were shown in this season alone.
- The season began with 10 movie programs. Now, with ABC adding the "Monday Night Movie" and NBC bidding with "Tuesday Night at the Movies" the new total is 12, an all-time high. That makes 21 hours and 30 minutes a week, fourteen hours of which will be theatrical movies.

HOW SERIOUS ARE the networks about feeding the public movie appetite? As a "for instance"...The ABC-TV "Movie of the Week" which started out as an experiment with an initial one-year investment of $7.5 million (more than they ever committed to a single series) is still around. Now, more than four years later, its investment reportedly is a "reasonable" 33% higher.

While the movies seem to be what the folks are turning to, the question of feature films versus made for TV types is still being pondered by networks. And among the considerations one would have to give money a high priority.

An average of $450,000 in costs rides with each 90-minute movie made for the media. In comparison a two-hour film bears a price tag of around $1 million. The originals have to be deficit-financed. But, then, there's always the second time around —and the right to syndicate the films. Those items please the budget-minded.
